Reported Death of G. W. Ward.

News reached here last evening of the reported death of Mr. G. W. Ward, a well known resident of Swansboro, at Charleston, S. C. He was on his way home from Punta Gorda, Florida, where he had been living with his son for the past two years.

Mr. Ward had not been in good health for some time but the malady from which he suffered was not considere dangerous, and it was believed that he was recovering from the attack. He was greatly rejoiced at the prospect of his return to his old home which he left to be with his son and to enjoy the milder climate of Southern Florida.

Mr. Ward was a warm friend of the Journal and was the paper's faithful chronicler of events for many years. His letters were enjoyed by his many friends on account of his unique originality. His nom de plumes of "Cracker Boy," and "Salter Path Schoolmaster" will be well remembered. He was enthusiastic about everything that he saw and was one of those rare men who always saw the silver lining to every cloud. He loved his fellowmen and was a genial, companionable man.

No details of his death or funeral could be obtained last night. The Jour nal will publish that tomorrow.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Will The Warehouse Be Removed?

There seems to be a determined move ment to prevent the shifting, and making up of trains on Hancock street, and certainly it is a great nuisance, but suppose the city council should forbid it

For many years the merchants have demanded a warehouse downtown. Mr Bryan while president of the A. & N. C. caused a fine, commodious one to be built. The convenience has no doubt caused a good increase of patronage to the road by the merchants. Hence the increased traffic necessitates the handling of more cars. Heretofore the trains passed along Hancock street witho t needing to stop. Now in order to discharge freight and make up trains it is necessary that locomotives and cars pass constantly along the street. The noise and smudge is a great annovance to the people living along there, but what is the remedy? Forbid the making up and shifting of trains as it is called, and the railroad company will will consider and take action in the mat lives a remarkable woman, over eighty have to provide a warehouse elsewhere, perhaps a mile or so from the business part of town, and that will necessitate the merchants hauling their goods several times the distance they do now and of course the cost of handling will be increased in proportion to the distance.

While the aldermen are considering the matter they should not lose sight of the fact that the merchants will be annoyed and seriously affected by any action that will cause the removal of the warehouse

Trains should not be allowed to stand across the streets, nor should there be any unnecessary movements of trains, but, there are several sides to the matter and all should be seriously considered. The question is, can the merchants do without the Trent river warehouse?

The secret of Pleasant View is no se truth, which any well ordered mind might readily have fathomed without the necessity of painful intrusion upon the well earned seclusion of a woman who gave the full measure of her services to humanity before retiring from the theatre of human activities.

At Pleasant View, in Concord, N. H., years of age, who is going through the gradual process of completing the spiritualization of her faculties. She s performing the miracle of human life which may be witnessed in any home where dwells a grand old father or mother whose earthly days are largely over, though the loving children would cherish that life for many years, if possible.

The attempt to have an interview with Mrs. Eddy was begun in February by The Boston Herald and culminated successfully on Sunday, May 21st.

A MESSAGE COMES FROM MRS, EDDY. On Sunday morning I attended service in First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Concord, and after the services. which are unusually brief to one used to a long ritualistic, I went for a stroil, I was walking in a general way in the Mr. Mann, the steward, driving toward me. He drew up at the curb and said Mrs. Eddy had decided to see me for a few minutes at one o'clock. We drove back to the little villa, and as I walked up the driveway I heard the piano which some one was playing on softly, and just before my ring a ripple of laugh-

All the foolish fears of a great secret at Pleasant View suddenly dropped from me like a hateful cloak. I perceived the beauty of a happy home life being naturally and agreeably here in this well ordered, well kept country residence.

The housekeeper answered my ring on this occasion, and said she would take my card to Mrs. Eddy. I went to the parlor, and there met Mrs. Sargent and a young man, an under secretary, who has recently gone to Pleasant View. It was he who had been striking the

It was he who had been striking the piano keys.

The maid came back to fatch me, and said: ', Mrs. Eddy will see you now.''

"You are going up with me, are you not!' I asked Mrs. Sargent.

"I will go to the door with you, if you wish it," she replied. "But Mrs. Eddy wisnes to see you alone."

"And may I talk with her?"

"Certainly. That is what you are here for," smiled Mrs. Sargent again, with her bit of quizzical playfulness.

We went upstairs to Mrs. Eddy's study, which is in the tower room with study, which is in the tower room with the balcony running around the window. Mrs. Sargent left me at the door, and, to my surprise, closed the door after her as she left me. I saw a lady with white hair standing in the window with her back to me. She stood there quietly for a few seconds, and then turned and came toward me. She held out her hand cordially and spoke my name.

She was the rarefied image of that painting in the room below which I had studied so carefully, and every feature was the feature of the photograph which all the world is familiar with as he picture of the founder of Christian silk, with a piece of rare old lace arranged in fichu fashion about her neck. Her hair was perfectly white and rippled softly away from her face. Her skin had the delicate bloom of a dear old lady's, and, though it was fine and almost transparent, it was in no way artificially touched. The hand which she gave me in greeting was very small and well formed. In stature she must be about five feet five inches.

"All that I ask of the world now." continued Mrs, Eddy, in a voice which had the sweetness of a silver chime about it, "is that it grant me time, time to assimilate myself to God."

Again I was silent, for there was force and decision in every word so gently uttered. The force was like a command accustomed to be obeyed.

"Are you satisfied, now that you have met me personally, and now that I have acceded to all your requests?" "I am satisfied," I replied.

"I would that I could satisfy every one who wishes to see me," went on Mrs. Eddy. "I would that I could en-

She touched my forehead with her fingers and lifted her hand as though to bless me as I withdrew from the room. My last glimpse of her was as she stood there, erect as youth, dom inating in expression, and yet gentle, flowerlike, and very lovable. Her last gesture was a wave of her uplifted

We walked for a few minutes on the rear veranda, white Mrs. Sargent, who has been so long the close companion of Mrs. Eddy, related something of the daily life at "Pleasant View."

"Mrs. Eddy is an early riser," sh said. "She has all her meals with great punctuality, coming downstairs for most of them. Sne is not faddish about her food in any way, has never given up the eating of meat, nor in any way does she show a peculiarity about what she takes for nourishment, though of course, she has always been very moderate in her appetite. She would like to take more exercise than she does, but there is little seclusion for us in these grounds, as you can see. She can walk here on the veranda, and she takes her daily ride, which is always an hour in length. "She loves order and regularity above all things, and she likes to have the household affairs move with precision She also likes to have a family around her, as you see. She sometimes throws aside all other work and writes poetry. Her writing is excellent, and she punctuates each sentence with great

"She takes a personal interest in her daily mail, which is voluminous. She answers a great many letters entirely in her own writing, writing rapidly and apparently without effort; but a large number of letters are disposed of by dictation to her secretaries. "She superintends all the business which is carried on here, supe vising all business of her secretaries. Someimes she spends fong periods in con templation, and she likes to look across the river there to Bow hill, where she was born. She told a member of the household the other day that she knew every bit of the territory over there. and that she could see seven counties from her window.

"Our life here is very simple, though quite busy. But it is a life consecrated to God, and every day seems to bring a renewed blessing from association with this beautiful life of Mrs. Eddy's. She is always gentle, always self-effacing, and only interested in the living of a holy life. We who are spending our days at 'Pleasant View' have the oppor tunity of growing wonderfully in the tenents of the Christian Science faith." QUESTIONS ANSWERED BY MRS. EDDY.
