STATE ENCAMPMENT

Board of Officers on Tour to Select Site.
Governor's Dates for Speaking.—Marriage Invitation Issued.—Prof. Massey to Leave.—Walks of Catholic Orphanage Falling.—Thanksgiving Proclamation to be Read in Schools.

Raleigh, Nov. 22.—The State National Guard Board of officers met at Goldsboro today and went to Morehead City to inspect the site offered there for the permanent encampment grounds and then goes to Wrightsville to make a similar inspection of the land there offered. Among the members of the Board are Generals Armfield, Robertson and Macon and Colonels Ludlow, Graig Bragaw and others. The work will be finished this week. Adjutant General Robertson says the bid of Asheville came in too late and will not be considered in this case.

The State Historical Commission has begun the work of copying the letter books of the Governors. The oldest letter book is private property, being that of Governor Pollock, from 1768 to 1726. Part of this has been copied and printed, but only a very small part. The writing is very quaint indeed, and very hard to decipher, owing to the difference of the shape of several of the letters.

Mention has been made of the fact that General Carl A. Woodruff, U. S. A., retired, retires from his position at military headquarters. It is a pleasure to know that he will continue to reside at Raleigh.

Governor Glenn has cancelled his engagement to speak at Wake Forest College Sunday, to the class of Prof. Carley, owing to the fact that the Professor's child is quite sick.

Col. and Mrs. Charles Earl Johnson of Raleigh has issued invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Miss Mary Wilson, to Mr. Frank Masien Kimbark of Forty-Seventh E. Leovort Place, New York City. The date is December 6, at 9:30 p. m. at Christ Church here.

Col. and Mrs. Johnson will receive from 10 o'clock until midnight that evening at their residence. Mr. and Mrs. Kimbark will be at home in New York after January 1st.

Tomorrow Prof. W. F. Massey and all the members of his family except two, will leave for Philadelphia, where he will devote himself entirely to editorial work, of which during the past few years he has done a great deal. One daughter will remain here, as the stenographer to Secretary Richard H. Lewis of the State Board of Health, and a son, who is a cadet at the A. & M. College.

The walls of the burned building at Roman Catholic Orphanage here are falling. Father Price, who has charge of the orphanage is making a study of plans for a new building, and he is very much pleased with the design of the old State school for the white blind here, when it was two stories high. It is probable that a structure of that kind, in the form of an E will replace the burned one, being only two stories in height while the one destroyed was four stories.

Governor Glenn today sent for Supt. James McKee of Central Hospital for insane here and talked with him about the new building for women which is in course of construction there. The Governor directed Dr. McKee to push the work on this new wing with all possible dispatch and informed him that he desired it completed at the very earliest moment possible. Governor told him when the work was done he would look after furnishing of the building. Governor remarked to your correspondent that the construction of this building would greatly relieve the present congestion. He then went on to speak about the insane, announced that tomorrow he would make public an address to the people of the State on this subject. He stated that he would deal with this most important question on the subject of the insane most clearly and distinctly.

It is the Governor's wish that his Thanksgiving Proclamation shall be read in all the schools of the State. He is a very devout and earnest Christian and is speaking today about an address which he will deliver next Sunday to the students at Wake Forest College. He said that he would urge young men not to be ashamed to be Christians. Not only young men but old ones have time to fall, this false and terrible sort of shame.

The Governor orders a special term of the Superior Court of Sampson to begin January 8, Judge Shaw to preside.

It was announced yesterday that the Governor had selected December 14th as the date for the address which he will deliver before the North Carolina Association in Baltimore. He today decided to change the date to the 16th.

The State Department of Justice will hold a session in the State House at Raleigh on Monday next.

INSPECTION PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS

By State Board Internal Improvements. Report Will Be Made to Governor.

Raleigh, Nov. 23.—The State Board of Internal Improvements has inspected the hospital for the insane at Morganton and Goldsboro and will devote much of December and January and perhaps part of February to visiting other institutions, added by the State, there being in all about 15 of these. The report will not be made to the Governor by the two members of the board who inspect until all the work is completed. The Governor has full power to adopt all such recommendations as are made by the board, as under the new law he has authority to do what it recommends. It is under this law that the Governor has power to order the completion and equipment for the new building for the insane at Raleigh. The interests of the State in this direction are in the keeping of the board and the Governor has full power to protect the State's interest. The board is going to make a very thorough inspection of all institutions, in a systematic way, and can do so in the freest manner, having no connection with any of these. It has no hostility, of course, to any institution. The statement is made that there are about 3,000 insane in the State, and the making of provisions for these is one of the gravest questions. The Governor today gave to the press a letter to the people of the State in which he goes fully into this very important matter.

Shaw and Herrick vs. Washington. Secretary Shaw recently said our government must be one by party or mob. George Washington declared repeatedly that party fealty was the gravest danger that threatened the perpetuity of the American Republic.

The elections in several States on November 7 last seem to indicate that the American people are growing rapidly to uphold the Washington doctrine rather than the more narrow Shaw declaration. Mr. Samuel E. Moffet, writing on "The Recovery of Free Government" in Collier's for November 25, says:

Never in American history have local "off-year" elections produced such heart searching among politicians and given such promise of far-reaching results as in 1905. The meaning of the returns was mournfully recognized by Governor Herrick, of Ohio, who said:

"The greatest danger now confronting the American people is the readiness, in response to some sudden whim or pretext, to desert party principles and follow some individual who claims, some time with sincerity, often with hypocrisy, to represent a cause that is higher than party fealty."

The elections of 1905 did indeed mark the almost total disappearance of the Great American Superstition—the delusion that party organizations were inspired by "party principles," and hence had a rightful claim on the allegiance of citizens who believed in those principles. It was this superstition that lay at the very base of the power of the bosses. It was easy for a boss to secure control of the nominating machinery of a party, but that control would have been of no use to him without some means of inducing honest citizens to vote his ticket after he got it nominated. Those means were furnished by the Great Superstition.

A MATTER OF HEALTH

Jordan Reports Heavy Returns From Cotton Planters.

New Orleans, Nov. 23.—"Pledges for tying up 3,000,000 bales of cotton for 90 days or longer are being received at the headquarters of the Southern Cotton Association in large numbers, already by wire and mail although the movement is but a few days old," says President Harvie Jordan of the Southern Cotton Association. "Up to Saturday Nov. 18, pledges by wire held one hundred thousand bales had been received by me at the Atlanta office. It is confidently believed that one million bales will be pledged before the end of this week and that the whole three million will be tied up by Dec. 10."

The division officers of the different States have gone actively to work through the co-operation of the country officials have sent out solicitors in each county who will make a house to house canvass reaching every individual holder of spot cotton and securing pledges for every bale that can and will be held a 90 days. If any holder object to signing the pledge for a fixed price of fifteen cents, let him sign to hold for 90 days regardless of any fixed price; the market will take care of itself and we surely will get our figure.

Not a Speculative Deal. "The public mind must be disabused of the idea advanced in some quarters that the present effort to tie up so large quantity of spot cotton is done in the interest of speculation. The plan is urged purely in the interest of South ern farmers who have cotton to sell and who should receive better prices for their holdings than present markets dominated by Bearish speculators, authorize. The demand for higher prices is based solely upon the present legitimate laws of supply, demand and consumption of raw cotton. Spinners of American cotton amount to 300,000 bales of spot cotton per week, and if there is no curtailment in consumption the demand for American cotton will reach 15 million bales between Sept. 1, 1905 and Sept. 1, 1906. These figures are based upon actual facts. Jobbers' supplies were never so short as at present. Mills were never so pressed for the entire output of their spindles and looms as at present. The entire civilized world was never before in so prosperous a condition as now.

More than 4 million new spindles have come into operation in Manchester England within the past three months which will create a new demand for at least one million bales of new cotton not heretofore existing. Consumption is unprecedented, while supply of raw cotton is limited. The American crop is short. The India and Egyptian crops are short. The price of wool is very high and scarce. Mills are now mixing an enormous quantity of cotton in woolen goods, which is another important factor curbing the use of American cotton.

December 2nd Meetings. On December 2nd called meetings of farmers will be held in all the civil subdivisions of the various cotton counties and Parishes for the purpose of making effective the annual reorganization of the Southern Cotton Association. As the farmers meet at their respective beats, school precincts, Militia Districts or townships, let them make up lists, giving names, postoffice addresses and number of bales they are willing to hold for 90 days, where they have not already signed pledges to that effect. Let these lists be mailed to Southern Cotton Association, Atlanta, Ga. The names of all who sign pledges will be treated as strictly confidential.

The South absolutely controls the monopoly of the world's cotton supply. All civilized nations depend upon American cotton for clothing. There is no raw fibre that can compete against it either in prices up to 15 and 20 cents per pound, or in supply. It is not a question of speculation or bulling the cotton market, but a great business proposition based upon the legitimate conditions that confront us at this time. Hold your cotton. Be a factor in tying up the 3,000,000 bales and the world will respect the farmers of the South. The light is on. The farmers are well entrenched and have all the ammunition in their possession. The enemy is working the game with hot air and false manipulated figures. The members of this Association and its friends, and other organizations should stand firmly together and an easy victory will be won. Determined and active cooperation is the only way to success and it is the only way to the betterment of the situation."

Governor Glenn orders a special term of court for Columbus county, to try civil cases only, to begin January 15th, Judge Cooke to preside.

Ever since Governor Aycock came into office, five years ago, it has been the custom of your correspondent to give a rabbit hunt every November in compliment to the Governor and other State officials, and today one of these hunts was enjoyed. The dogs were the very fine pack of pure breed beagles owned by Messrs William Robbins and Charles Crawford, 32 in number, and in the party were those gentlemen and the heads of the various State departments, except commissioner Patterson. The scene of the hunt was the fine plantation of Mr. Samuel Wilder, about four miles west of Raleigh, where the hunt last year proved so successful and enjoyable. In the party were about a dozen gentlemen. It was the first hunt Governor Glenn has had since he took office and the outing will do him a great deal of good as he has been a very hard worked man this year. The same may be said of the other State officials.

The unique case of State vs Monroe Johnson on appeal from Mecklenburg county has just been decided by the Supreme Court, the finding of the lower court—Judge Cooke, being reversed. The trial judge had held that Johnston was not guilty of retailing when he had gone from Charlotte to a prohibition town, to Salisbury, procured a jug of whiskey for one, Tom Brown, of Charlotte and delivered it to him in Salisbury. The question involved was whether the sale was actually made in Salisbury or in prohibition Charlotte. The lower court held it was Salisbury and that Johnston was not guilty and the Supreme court reverses this and orders that judgment be passed on Johnston for retailing in Charlotte.

In the appeal of James Lyles, administrator vs Brannon Manufacturing Co. from Mecklenburg, the finding of the lower court is affirmed in holding that the defendant was not guilty of contributory negligence in the death of Chas. Lyles by the explosion of a soda fountain tank. There is also an affirmation of the finding below in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Dina Calkwell vs the Life Insurance Co. of Virginia in which the company appeared to have given the plaintiff a policy with the understanding with the agent that she could draw out her money after ten years.
