THE SUCCESS OF AD-VENTURE.

Ad-venture in the business world has ever proven necessary to win success, as was it needed when in the early days the spirit of adventure should lead men to risk life and property in search of new lands.

The local merchant of a town will complain because his fellow citizens, those who ought to purchase their goods at home, send their orders to the big city merchant. But is the local merchant an advertiser? Does he present his goods in an attractive manner through an advertisement in the local newspaper? Does the merchant do his part to promote local enterprises, and therefore obtain the right to criticize those about him who fail in their duties of citizenship?

The merchant who complains is not the one who advertises, for the success of advertising gives the merchant no pause in his business to utter complaints, for there is no time left on account of the trade which comes through good advertising.

The small merchant may think that his advertising must be done upon a scale proportionate to his store's size and his present trade. No greater mistake could be made. The scales down advertisement, is certain to make the merchant have less spirit in his business, for the merchant who has the true spirit of ad-venture makes his store goods come up to everything that his ad may declare in the newspaper, for the mercantile spirit which will only use big ads is going to have the goods to sell and will sell them, while no advertising calls for nothing at the store, neither attentive and polite clerks, nor up to date goods.

The ad-venture spirit is the one which has made the great merchant, and which keeps the same merchant great, because he knows that the true source of his mercantile success has been due to his advertising and the bigness of it. The failures in trades of all kinds can be generally traced and found to be due to lack of mercantile enterprise, which was often seen in the absence of the spirit of ad-venture.

CLEANLINESS FOR APPEARANCES

The person who washes for just appearance sake, and the city which keeps its streets and walks fairly presentable, may both preserve the looks of decency, although neither can be held up as examples for imitation.

The Woman's Club, with the unerring woman's sense of cleanliness being next to godliness, has begun the campaign in New Bern for more decent public looks and appearances, by making the Academy Green the scene of the first cleaning up and keeping clean, by having receptacles placed for the disposal of trash which may be found on the school grounds. This work, upon the school grounds, will be largely left to the young people, and perhaps no better age could be enlisted in this work, certainly at no age could the education be better commenced, than with the children.

In too many places in the city, house holders have not even the thought of keeping the front of their premises clean for the very sake of the appearance of their places upon the visiting public, and in no way does this trashy appearance become so noticeable and bad, as from the apparent effort to keep clean by putting upon the public street the accumulations of tin cans, paper and general refuse. But however laudable the purpose to clean up, this sweeping and piling up rubbish on the public street, does not accomplish real good, for while the householders may get the trash from their own lots, it is a nuisance to the public eye, and a source of the public's health over which, which ought to be gathered up and at once disposed of, not made a present, as it were to the city authorities, with the blame resting upon the city, if the rubbish is not taken away at once.

It is this indifference to even the appearance of streets and walks, which gives this city such an untidy look, which is in evidence on nearly every street in the city, and thus when simply a little care only need be taken on the part of each and every household.

But as before noted, the Academy is a beginning, and it may lead, surely ought to, to a consideration of every citizen's lot and premises. Let there be public and private cleanliness not only for appearance sake, but also for the sake of health and decency.

SEEK WORK NOT CHARITY.

The reports of the "poverty parades" which have recently taken place in the streets of London, seem incredible reading to the people of this country, blessed as this country is with great crops of grain and cotton, which are bringing high prices, and whose coal and iron trade gives employment to many hundreds of thousands, with wages sufficient and above a living for the workers.

When local conditions, that is the prosperity of the United States is considered, to read of thousands of thousands of men and women in the great metropolis of London, who are without employment and cannot get any, it should shame every idle person in this country, where their labor is wanted.

The great feature, outside of the number of the unemployed, five to six thousand taking part in the "poverty parades," is the denunciation on the part of these people of charity, flags bearing such devices as "Curse your charity; we want work," being carried in the parade, and also the resolutions passed, condemning charity as a cure for the unemployed, and asking that works of national utility be started for the unemployed, that they might earn their existence through labor, rather than through private or national charities.

The spirit of these poor people is one to be commended, and it seems a pity that these surplus thousands of unemployed cannot be brought to this country, and given the opportunity to show what they can do for themselves in a land where labor is needed and wanted, and where those who will work, can always gain a good livelihood.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Come Out of Your Shell.

Do you allow yourself to become absent-minded, wrapped up in a brown study? Look about you. Speak to those that you have been in the habit of ignoring. Make friends with every one. Strive to touch life everywhere you can. You will accomplish your tasks better by so doing than by going forward blindly absorbed in meditation or engrossed by internal musings.

Man's Unreasonableness.

is often as great as woman's. But Thomas S. Austin, Mgr. of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable, when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick, she could hardly leave her bed, and five [5] physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters, she was perfectly cured, and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by all druggists, price 50c.

Oh, hubbly, deeb, what do you think are the first words our lady will say?"

"Well, if she takes after you, they will probably be, 'This is a nice time to come home.'" said the brute.—Fertland Telegraph.

In Time of Peace.

In the first months of the Russo-Japan war we had a striking example of the necessity for preparation and the early advantage of those who, so to speak, "have shingled their roofs in dry weather." The virtue of preparation has made history and given to us our greatest men. The individual as well as the nation should be prepared for any emergency. Are you prepared to successfully combat the first cold you take? A cold can be cured much more quickly when treated as soon as it has been contracted and before it has become settled in the system. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cure of colds and it should be kept at hand ready for instant use. For sale by Davis Pharmacy and F. S. Duffy.

RALEIGH.

Illicit Still, Captured and Moonshine In Jugs.

Inmates in Methodist Orphanage Increase.— Educational Interest Continues.— Orders Issued from Adjutant General's Office.— Bond Required for Cars Military Property.

Raleigh, Nov. 21.—The revenue officers are very busy just now and deputy collector Pool made a raid in Johnston county in which he captured one illicit distillery and yesterday got another in Sampson. Deputy Collector Downing is at work around Chapel Hill and Hillsboro and every train brings to the office here jugs containing moonshine whiskey which he seized and sent in.

The number of orphans at the Methodist Orphanage here today reached 71, which is a gain of nearly 30 over this time last year. Many more are expected before the end of the year.

The Supreme court today took up appeals from the 13th district, among the attorneys present being W. A. Self, and T. M. Huffman of Hickory; W. C. Feinster and R. R. Williams, of Newton; Louis Swink, of Winston; ex-Judge D. M. Furchess and A. L. Coble of Statesville; R. A. Droughton of Sparty; George P. Pell of Winston.

Today State Veterinarian Butler and State Horticulturist Hume left for Richmond to attend the important annual convention there of the heads of agricultural colleges. Miss Mamie Birdsong, stenographer of the State Agricultural Department has gone there to be the stenographer to the convention.

Prof. Chas. L. Coon of the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction has returned from a week's trip to Union county where he held six teachers meetings, all largely attended. He says the interest in education there he found to be very marked.

Orders are issued today from the Adjutant General's office quoting an order from the War Department relieving Brigadier General Carl A. Woodruff, U. S. A., retired, at his own request from further duty with the National Guard of North Carolina. Another order regards the death of Major General James D. Glenn, late Military Secretary to Governor Glenn and former Adjutant General. Another order requires all officers of the National Guard responsible for public military property to file with the Adj. General the $500 bond for the proper care and use of such property and its return in good order when.

Paul Gilmore as Capt. Debonnaire.

To merely say that the audience was pleased with the performance at the opera house last night would be harsh, unjust and untrue criticism. The people were charmed, delighted, and showed their appreciation by frequent and hearty applause. The play was a most welcome change from the driving, sentimental rot that is loose and is doing much damage both to theatrical interests and society.

Captain Debonnaire is a play of a different character. It is a society drama of the 17th and 18th centuries when the Dutch were in possession of New York—not in a military sense, and when the French made social invasions on the city of New York. It was as gay then as it is now and the play showed the extent of that gaiety. In all it was an evenly balanced drama and one which gives a person a thoroughly good feeling for having witnessed it.

Paul Gilmore has been before the footlights in other plays that have gained renown and public favor. Particularly prominent has been in "The Mummy and the Humming Bird," a play of widely different purpose and the fact that he has been a principal actor in both plays with great success is alone evidence of his great versatility and power. The one last night was one of tremendous action. His other success was one fully as well deserved but considerably milder.

There was an element in the acting that was more fascinating and wonderful than anything that has been produced here. The gallant dashing, striking Captain de Cadillac whose personal life was women's love and men's jealousy was the magnet of the whole show. While this was true, the magnetized actors were none the less deprived of their splendor by their association with this eminent star. The entire support was grand and there was all the play that could be desired of a refined audience.

We cannot close without saying a word of the scenery and costumes. These important features were beautiful and most appropriate giving an accurate idea of life in New Amsterdam at this primitive time. The sword play in the third act was the finest exhibition of skill of the kind ever seen here.

A Destructive Calamity.

CARING FOR OLD TREES.

Bone Dust And Wood Ashes An Excellent Tonic—They Not Necessarily Injurious.

The following article from the Baltimore Sun may be of some practical good here. Conditions as far as trees are concerned are pretty much the same everywhere and a good suggestion for the care of old trees in Baltimore is good here. We believe that the observations herein noted can be made of practical benefit.

Some valuable information regarding the care and treatment of old shade trees is given by Mr. N. F. Flitton, superintendent of the Clifton district of the park system and one of the most prominent horticulturists in the State, in response to a request from a subscriber of the Sun.

In the Sun of July 23, Mr. Flitton told of methods of improving the condition of venerable trees and prolonging their lives, and one recommendation was the use of ground bone and wood ashes as nutrient for them. Much interest was taken in the article and many have desired further information. As a result the following queries have been propounded:

Why is it necessary to put the bone dust in holes and scatter the wood ashes on the surface?

How near the base of the tree should it be commenced and how far should it extend?

How much bone dust is required for a tree nine feet in circumference?

If this is done, will it save the trees without cutting them?

On two of our large oaks English ivy is growing. We do not wish it removed unless it is positively injurious. Is it?

"One can readily appreciate the sentiment expressed in regard to our venerable shade trees," said Mr. Flitton, "and for one to advise cutting back their beautiful umbrageous heads, destroying their beauty for at least three or four years, is sufficient to incur displeasure for a long time.

Woodman, spare that tree; Touch not a single bough— is the dictum.

"What can be done? We are confronted with an unalterable condition. Nature has reached the limit of time at which she can send the invigorating sap over so large a surface, hence a surgical operation has become a necessity for prolonging the life of the tree. The application of stimulants will not accomplish this.

"After the branches are shortened in, however, a little persuader in the shape of bone dust and wood ashes, the one in the autumn and the other in the spring, would act as an excellent tonic. Please kindly bear in mind that there are many grand old trees around some of our Maryland homes now passed into a decrepitude that would have thrived for a good many years had the proper attention been given them at the right time. Dead wood is a load that no tree can carry without injury and should be promptly removed.

The planting of so-called English ivy to climb on young healthy trees is to be commended. On the health of old trees having rough, thick bark ivy has no appreciable effect, when the growth is confined to the body of the tree. Any climber permitted to ramble over the branches is a positive injury to health. Ivy is not a parasite, as many suppose, but derives its sustenance from the earth. You may, if the trees have passed their usefulness, permit the ivy to grow as it pleases. If the trees have some vigor yet do not permit the ivy to grow, except on the body and the bases of the large branches, and no injury to the tree will result."
