

FROM JERSEY LAND.

Massachusetts and Reminiscences of a Volunteer Soldier Last May.

Penns Grove, Jan. 29, 1906.

Editor Journal, Sir:

Being one of the survivors of the 9th Regt. N. J. Vols, and a subscriber to your lively little paper, the New Bern Weekly Journal, and one that invaded your city on that memorable 17th day of May, 1905, a day that cannot be forgotten by any Jerseyman who participated in the affair, the reception in the evening at the court house, and at the Camp of U. C. V., and by the Daughters of the Confederacy, and the next day, 18th, the march to the Cemetery, Yank and Confed marching side by side, and the unveiling of the monument erected to our brave boys who fell in battle, all so grand that it is almost indelible, I felt that I would like to stay with you a while. I have been very much interested in your paper and always read it every night before retiring, the reports from your correspondents from localities where I used to be somewhat acquainted 40 years ago. In the afternoon after the unveiling of the monument I boarded the train for Beaufort, but things have changed so, that there is not many places that look as they did in time of the war, the old battle ground but very little remains to show there ever was a battle fought there, the foundation of the old block-house at Havelock is still visible, the old covered bridge across the stream there, has given way to a trestle. While my Company was on duty at the block-house, guarding the old covered bridge, I used to spend a good portion of my time with hook and line, and many a pike I have landed from the stream, about a mile down the stream was an old mill and a family lived there by the name of Guthrie, who had two sons about 20 years of age, I wonder if they are still living? The next place of interest was Newport grown from 3 small houses to quite a town, Newport Creek looked quite natural, Newport Barracks, the remains of the old Fort showed quite plainly, there used to be families lived there at that time by the name of Jones and Bell. Carolina City came next, and when I looked across the smooth waters of Bogue Sound, how fresh the memory came back to me, of the days when I used to spend my time fishing and clamming in its waters. Morehead City has grown from a few old houses to a city of considerable size I next went across to Beaufort and registered at Mrs. Davis' Hotel for the night, after supper in company with Mr. Oscar Newkirk, we started out to take in the sights of the place by moon light, we started for the boardwalk along the sound down to the line between the old town and the new, took in the sights of Mr. Derr's residence along the sound which is a very nice one. Mr. Derr was an engineer on the road between Morehead City and New Bern in time of the war, and by the way a Jerseyman, then to the old jail which looked very natural, also the Baptist church, then out to the suburbs to the scrubbrush where we used to catch the mocking birds. In 1862 after the fall of Fort Macon our company (I done provost duty in the town, while on duty there, our company under command of captain Huffly went to Swansboro on a sail boat under flag of truce, to take into the Confederate lines, a Confederate Lieutenant from Beaufort and I think his name was Mansfield. The boat was piloted up the sound to Swansboro by a citizen of Beaufort, which I was fortunate enough to find on my trip to Beaufort. The building we were quartered in on Front street, I see is torn down, and some of the old lumber still lying in the yard, and the old market house which stood in the middle of the street has also disappeared. There was a butcher occupied a stand in it by the name of Hartman. In going from New Bern to Beaufort on the train, I entered into conversation with a gentleman (I did not learn his name) I think he lives in Morehead City, he had a white potato patch which he pointed out to me close to Morehead he asked me what kind of grass seed would be best to sow in a poultry yard. I told him orchard grass, I think if he sees this he will remember the circumstances, I would like to have his name and address. In travelling through your State last spring I saw that your farmers are up-to-date with their farming and I expect they are now getting ready for next years work. In reading your paper I have become very much interested in the way they have controlled the cotton market this year, and I think the way they are getting organized they will hold the cotton market in their own hands and reap the reward themselves, instead of those who never saw a cotton plant grow. We have had no winter up here, we have had plenty of rain, but no snow or ice, it has been signing all winter, and the farmers are getting their hot houses ready, for sowing their seed. The acreage for early tomatoes this year will be about one third larger than last year. With best wishes for the good people of New Bern and North Carolina, and a prosperous year for the Journal. A colored boy was drowned across the river from here last Saturday afternoon. The boy and some colored men were rafting logs for Captain Whitehurst Lee, and the men got wet and went across the creek to warm by a fire they had made. Some one of the crowd told the boy to come over to the fire, and he staid across the logs, which were not fastened together and he missed and fell between them. The men on the other side of the creek went in search of their lost companion and found his cap on the logs and they knew that he was drowned and they went to work at once and recovered his body, which was taken home. We could not learn his name.

We are glad to learn that Mr. G. R. Jones is improving very fast. He was hurt at the Pamlico Lumber Co. mill last week.

We regret very much to add to our sick list two more cases of diphtheria in Mr. Tom Tasto's family. The little girl Nita is no better at this writing.

The barge Experiment finished loading today. It will go from here to Vandemere where she will get her deck load.

We regret to learn of the illness of Mr. John Neal, Sr. We wish him speedy recovery.

Mr. Joe Long has a large force at work on the River View Railroad this week.

The Pamlico Lumber Co. mill has been shut down since Friday noon on account of not having logs to saw. The high water keeps the log hands out of the woods.

Feb. 1.

We are having lots of rain, only a few days of sunshine.

Our Pollocksville writer seems to think the sun is miledew. I don't think he knows anymore about what he is talking, when he says the sun is miledew than he does when he tries to make light of Harvie Jordan. He wonders if Jordan would accept the nomination for President of the United States. I wonder if he is not worthy of the office.

We are pained to hear of the death of Mr. and Mrs. John Dickinson's infant son. We learn that Rev. J. R. Jennett's infant son is very low with diphtheria, we hope to hear of its recovery.

Mr. Jordan wants the farmers to get a paying price for their cotton, so as to enable them to raise it. We hope that Mr. Jordan's plans for the relief of southern farmers will accomplish much good.

We would be glad to hear from Lane Schoolhouse now and then. What is the matter with the correspondent.

In Memory of W. B. Lane

Dear friend, oh we miss thee, through the long and weary days, And when the evening shadows into darkness fade away: We think of thee, whose noble love, so beautiful and so free, Forever with immortality must be. Oh, God make us just what thou wouldst have us be, As we lift up to thee, an humble prayer from sin to be free. We are still on life's rugged voyage, we miss thy genial presence to cheer, We miss thy pleasant companionship, so tender and so dear, Oh, why hast thou left us, with nothing to cheer, but tender memories of the past, Can I ever forget, when last we met, little we thought 'twas the last. Oh, could we, we would not call thee back, thou art gone to receive thy rich reward; 'Tis sweet to lie down, with a harvest almost reaped, Only to awake, in the presence of the Lord. Life without thee is like day without sunshine, Bereft, indeed, are we, never to know thy beautiful life, on earth again, But I'll ever cherish the memory of thy wise counsels, in happier days given, That when I close my eyes in death, I'll meet thee in heaven.

Wake County Cotton Association Meeting.

Special to Journal.

Raleigh, Feb. 3.—The cotton growers of this county today effected a strong organization. The feature of their meeting was an address by Governor Glenn, who told them they did not sufficiently esteem themselves. He warned them against leaving the farm for the town, gave especial warning against their arch enemy, the speculator, and called for the thorough organization which alone is able to fight him. He said that if the cotton organization was a trust it was a good one, which meant a fair and legitimate profit; a trust which will give them a roof, clothes and more bread. He called on all to join and none to desert. The warehouse plan was strongly endorsed. Pres. C. C. Moore of the State Association followed. The convention endorsed Senator Overman's bill; declared for 10 per cent reduction of acreage and levied a tax of ten cents on a 141
