A TALK TO FARMERS.

The farmer is the salt of the earth. Without the farmer, the industrial world with all its flurry and immense wealth could not exist for a day.

Many a family depends largely upon Peruna as a family medicine and the family physician.

Some farmers are far removed from physicians, and in any case they are far more self-reliant and more liable to depend upon a household remedy than people who live in the cities.

Dr. Hartman, who for many years was a farmer himself, and who still owns and manages one of the best farms in the State of Ohio, is a friend of the farmer, and it is with the farmer that the immense bulk of his correspondence is conducted.

MR. J. B. ALEXANDER

A Necessity in the Home. J. B. Alexander, publisher of the "Fruit and Floral Guide, a Magazine of Horticulture," published in Hartford City, Ind., says of Peruna:

"I was afflicted with catarrh of the throat and head for over ten years. I was treated by many physicians, but grew worse until I was seldom able to go out in cold weather."

Pe-ru-na, a Household Friend.

Mr. Henry Schroeder, Route 9, Napoleon, Ohio, writes: "I suffered for almost ten years with catarrh of the stomach and all doctoring was of no avail."

Mr. W. B. Callahan, proprietor of Big Hill Farm, and prominent fruit grower and stock raiser, Glenvar, Va., writes: "I write to express my kindness toward you and your good medicine, Peruna."

General Wheeler's First Meeting With Lee.

"I found my way to the door of the office of the Superintendent of the Academy. The Superintendent's orderly, whose duty it was to announce visitors, was for a moment absent, and being ignorant of military rules I knocked at the door."

"In reply to the question I bowed to express the affirmative and after a few kind words he took me to the door of the Adjutant, Lieutenant I. B. Fry, afterwards a prominent General, telling me that Lieutenant Fry would give me all instructions and directions."

The above is only a foretaste of this article, in addition to which there is a thrilling dramatic narrative of General Wheeler's campaign at Chickasaw, from the pen of one of his old troops, Dr. John Allan Wyeth.

A New York Criticism of The Clansman.

"Stage," a theatrical magazine published in New York, has the following to say of "The Clansman": "George H. Brennan brought 'The Clansman' to town, and some of the critics got out their biggest blue-roses and proceeded to have much fun with it."

"The author likewise justifies the famous Ku Klux Klan, and points out that it was organized for the distinct purpose of protecting the white women of the South against the black beasts whose crimes have for so many decades made the country's blood boil with rage and resentment."

"Whatever may be said of 'The Clansman'—that it is, for instance, uncouth in spots, and that it is the truth—it is a fibrous and stirring play of splendid story and bold, dashing treatment. It is an answer to 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.' It has legitimately sensational episodes that go thundering into the brains and hearts of its audiences as few plays have done in recent years."
