EXTRACTED A BULLET.

After Being in a Man's Body a Year Ball is Located by X Ray and Taken Out.

About 14 months ago Ben Boston, a tenant of Mr. Freeman Erul, was accidentally shot by Mr. Erul's son. The wound although very painful healed over and Boston has been able to do about his duties. The bullet entered the muscular part of the arm and lodged in the back but the doctors were unable to locate it by probing. Lately the wound has been troubling the man a good deal. He was taken to Dr. Rhema office where the bullet was located in the body by means of the X-ray. It was between two ribs just beneath the shoulder blade. Dr. Rhema assisted by Dr. Rhem cut the ball out and the man is doing finely.

The ball was a .38 calibre and the point was broken where it hit a bone. It was an ugly looking missile and it was a wonder that it did not make a far more serious wound.

Superior Court News

The verdict of the jury in the case of Abbott vs. A. C. L. Railway was reached Monday night and awarded the plaintiff a judgment of $2,000.

The case on trial yesterday was Galoway vs. Adams, an action to set aside a deed. The verdict was rendered in favor of defendant.

With the exception of the case of Hill vs. A. & N. C. Co. all other cases on this term's calendar have been continued. The aforementioned case will be tried today and the intense interest is manifested in it. Among the directors interested who are attending the trial are, Messrs J. W. Gringer, Lovett Hines, D. Oestinger, F. C. Dunn and M. H. McCoy of Kingston; Judge W. S. O. B. Robinson and attorney F. A. Daniels of Goldsboro. It is likely that the examination of witnesses will take up the entire time today and argument which will all be lengthy, and will occupy the attention of the court all day tomorrow.

LaGrippe and Pneumonia.

Pneumonia often follows LaGrippe but never follows the use of Foley's Honey and Tar. It cures LaGrippe coughs and prevents pneumonia and consumption. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar and refuse any substitute offered. Mr. G. V. Fisher, of 187 Osgood St., Chicago, writes: "My wife had a severe case of LaGrippe three years ago, and it left her with a terrible cough. She tried a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar and it gave immediate relief. A 50 cent bottle cured her cough entirely." Refuse substitutes. For sale by Davis Pharmacy.

Lukens

Feb. 13.

Capt. W. B. Barister R. Laughinghouse and R. S. Cherry made a flying trip to Oriental Friday.

Mr. P. J. Delamar, who is the surveyor for the Pamlico Lumber Co., and Mr. Samuel R. Street, Jr., a surveyor of New Bern, made a trip up South River Thursday to survey the open grounds of the company and to dig a hole six feet deep to get a barrel of dirt to send to mineral experts of Boston, Mass., to be analyzed. Mr. W. E. Lukens of Philadelphia, Pa., thinks that he has a Pea fuel farm in Carteret county. We hope that the dirt sent to the Pea Fuel Company of Boston will prove to be a Pea Fuel soil. They were taken up there on Mr. W. H. Powers' boat "China." The boat broke down and Messrs. Powers, Street and Whitford had to walk seven miles to Lukens, and it rained and the night was a dark one for them. Mr. Delemar staid with the boat until Mr. R. H. Laughinghouse could get to them and tow them to Lukens. They arrived at Lukens at 1.30 a. m. Friday morning. Mr. Delemar reports a very severe trip; he says that he has been caught out before but never had been on a rougher trip than this and he wishes to thank Mr. Powers and many times for his kindness he showed towards them. Mr. Powers thanks Mr. Rice ever so much for his kindness in taking them over the river. Also the whole party extends many thanks to Mr. Edwards for guiding through the woods to Lukens. The barge Elko, of Philadelphia, Pa., was towed into our harbor yesterday by the tug Curtain.

Mr. R. S. Cherry went to Oriental yesterday to consult Dr. Daniels about his neck. Regret very much that he is not improving faster.

Mr. J. I. Smith and Mr. J. T. H. Moore made a flying trip over the river on the boat Shoofly this morning.

Capt. William Massey reports a hard trip coming across the Chesapeake Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Pittman and Miss Ida Barker were in our vicinity for a few hours this morning.

Mr. P. D. Luvill from over the river was here for a short time today.

Blue Eyes.

Falled.

All efforts have failed to find a better remedy for coughs, colds and lung troubles than Foley's Honey and Tar. It stops the cough, heals the lungs and prevents serious results from a cold. J. N. Patterson, Nashua, Iowa, writes, "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs and tried at least half a dozen of the best cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world." For sale by Davis Pharmacy.

His Arithmetic.

"Tommy," asked the teacher, "if you have six sticks of candy and divide with your little brother, how many will each of you have?"
"I'll have five and he'll have one," answered Tommy. "Too much candy always makes him sick."—Chicago Tribune.

WELL DESERVED

HIS DIFFICULTY.

The tears trickle down from my eyes, My eyelids are puffy and red, My nose has increased in size, There's stuffiness all through my head, And I burn and I chill, I'm decidedly ill, I might fill myself with quinine; Hot water some folk recommend, And cold some think equally fine, While others for onions contend, And swelling sage tea Is a great remedy— Ah, kerchoo! Oh, I wish that I knew what to do!

He Found His Man.
Englishmen are rather fond of poking fun at those parts of Great Britain where other than the Anglo-Saxon element is dominant, and a favorite subject for jest is the prevalence of the Jones family in Wales.

One of the colleges of Oxford university was much resorted to by Welshmen. A man from another college looking for a friend went into its quadrangle and shouted "Jones!"

All the windows looking on the quadrangle flew open.

"I mean John Jones," said the searcher.

Half the windows closed.

"I mean the John Jones who has a combbrush," he explained.

All the windows closed but one.—Woman's Home Companion.

An Explanation.
"People always feel suspicious of things with which they are not familiar," said the philosopher.

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "that is why nearly all of us have at one time or another expressed doubt and disapprobation concerning wealth."—Washington Star.

Wearing Borrowed Clothes.

A big retail clothing house in New York is sorely pestered by customers who order clothes, wear them at an evening reception or to the theater, return them next day and demand their money back on the ground that the garments do not suit. The management recently adopted a device like that which seals the doors of freight cars in transit, a leaden pellet pressed on to wire or twine fasteners. The removal of the pellet indicates that the package has been tampered with. This notice is printed on the clothing tag:

"To insure our customers against purchasing clothes that may have been worn by others we have appended this tag and seal. No clothing will be exchanged nor credit given if this garment is returned without the undisturbed seal."—New York Press.

Unique Advertising Scheme.

A Brooklyn business man conceived and tried to carry into execution the other day a unique and brilliant advertising scheme. He had his advertising sign affixed in raised letters to the tire of an automobile, so that when the letters were coated over with white paint the machine painted his advertisement on the asphalt wherever it was driven. But the Brooklyn street cleaning commissioner, being an unresponsive soul who did not appreciate a stroke of genius like this on the pavement, threatened the advertiser with the police and promptly squelched the whole scheme.—Lafayette Weekly.

ENGRAVING ON DIAMONDS.

This Difficult Work is Performed Very Artistically.

Engraving on diamonds can be performed in a very effective manner. It is true a few not very artistically engraved stones were found in India, and a diamond on which the portrait of the king of Holland was engraved was shown at the Paris exhibition in 1875. But the work was imperfectly executed, and the stones looked as if they had been deadened rather than polished. Recently, however, according to the Edelmetall Industrie, the Paris jeweler, Rohrdorf, has produced some very beautiful specimens of engravings on diamonds. Among other things, he has made a yataghan having a thin diamond for the blade and a ruby for the handle. Worthy of notice also are a large circular stone on which a pathway with trees is cut and a half-made of two diamonds. A very artistic piece of work is a bicycle having two diamonds for its wheels, the spokes of which are represented by lines cut in the diamonds and the axles by two holes bored through the centers. Another diamond is cut in the shape of a fish, and a very beautiful brooch consists of a scarabeus surrounded by sapphires and brilliants. The most remarkable of all is a ring made of a diamond. The inner surface is polished and the outer surface being represented by thin engraved diamonds; also diamonds with armorial bearings—e. g., shirt studs and sleeve links with the Russian arms engraved on them. Formerly only flat surfaces could be polished, but Rohrdorf has succeeded in polishing concave parts, as, for instance, the body and tail of a fish and the inner surface of a ring. With his tools he can not only make straight lines, but also model freely. These tools are his own invention, and it is stated that only his son is allowed to use them. They are the result of many years' labor, of fine workmanship and very difficult to handle. Only within the last few years has it been possible to bore holes in diamonds and arrange them alternately with pearls on a string. This work is now regularly done in diamond cutting establishments.—Scientific American.

The Fingers of Galileo.

Florence is excited over the fingers of Galileo. It appears that when the great astronomer's body was admitted to sepulture in the Florentine Church of the Holy Cross in 1737 Vincenzo Cippolli, a prelate, cut off with his own hand "the two fingers which had written so many beautiful things." In other words, he stole the right thumb and forefinger, while another admirer sliced the left thumb, which at last is now in the Florentine museum, while the two Capponi fingers, passing on the migration of the head of the family to France to his steward, are now in the possession of his daughter, an old woman of eighty-four, who seeks to relieve herself from poverty by selling them. She had had offers from an American, but, having the indiscretion to publish them, Florentine patriotism rose in arms and now demands that the fingers should join that already in the museum. Worse still, payment for them is refused, and proceedings have been taken to compel the poor old woman to hand them over.
