WILL DEMOCRATS DEFEAT RAILROAD RATE BILL

The Washington dispatches tell of lively sessions in the United States Senate during the present term, and the Democrats are credited with being the means of defeating many important measures. Particularly in this work of defeating bills, the Senate Democrats are said to have defeated several pet bills of the President, among these being the New Mexico-Arizona State Road bill, the Santo Domingo treaty and the Philippine tariff bill.

The interest in the Hepburn bill, for regulation of railroad rates, which went so easily through the lower House of Congress, is now in the Senate, and the chances of its passage look dubious, if reports from Washington are to be relied upon. There is an absence of all enthusiasm on this bill. This bill is another pet measure of the President's, and with the powerful influence of the Aldrich faction opposed, the possibilities of its passage look less hopeful each day.

President Roosevelt has seemed to look upon the Democrats as being altogether in favor of the Hepburn bill and the selection of Senator Tillman as leader was hailed as an omen of success, but with amendments proposed delays will take place which may easily defeat the bill. And even if it comes to a vote it is a question if there may not be enough Democrats who will oppose the bill to kill it, for politics have no such burdensome effect upon Senators, there is a sticking together, to put through or defeat bills, no matter if a President may have personal interests in the measure, and may be greatly concerned in its passage. It will be of interest to note if there are not enough Democrats who will favor the Aldrich interest to defeat the Hepburn rate bill, as there were to defeat the important bills noted above.

DANGERS IN COLD STORAGE FOODS

The public sentiment which declared against adulterated foods, with the demand for a conspicuous stamping, showing the true contents of every package containing foods sold to consumers, this sentiment is now extending to cold storage foods, with the demand that cold storage foods shall have printed upon their wrappers or cases, the date when these foods went into storage.

To very many people, the exact science of cold storage is unknown. To say that any meat or food product comes from a well known warehouse, this is sufficient to warrant the purity of the article, be it meat, fish, vegetable, fruit, or egg. Frozen, to many people, means absolute preservation of the article so frozen. It is true that in one way cold storage preserves, but it is also a fact that decay is not stopped by cold storage, for it goes on in food. The fact that cold storage prevents the showing of decay in food, except by careful examination, makes it the more necessary that every food going into storage should have its date of entry plainly indicated, so that purchasers may know whether meat has been stored one month or two years, and whether the vegetable is of some recent seasons growth, and the egg of the present or a previous decade.

The chemical changes which take place in food in cold storage, makes the knowledge of the length of such storage most essential to the consumer, for while a short period may not prove injurious, a long period can prove not only dangerous to the health of the consumer, but even threaten life. Those who are presumed to know, say, that food which has been in cold storage over six months, is not safe for the stomach. And if this is true, the need of a law which shall show the time of storage of every food article in warehouses, is one which should be to the soon enacted and put in active operation, so that there may be no longer danger from cold storage products which are stored longer than six months for after this time every warehouse should be forced to throw out the food, as no longer being merchantable.

FREE SEED DISTRIBUTION GRAFT

The movement to secure congressional legislation, to prevent hereafter any distribution of free seed by the government to farmers and others, is said to have been started by a local seedman at Cincinnati. However this may be, or whoever is the promoter of the idea, for the government to go out of such distribution, has made a good move, for however desirable this congressional prerequisite, to look at it honestly, therefore sensibly, every one must admit that the time has long passed for this free seed giving, and it is time to abolish it, and set aside a little petty graft for congressmen, who however honest some of them may be in the matter, yet the custom has grown into an abuse, and the giving, because of the actual need of the seed by the recipient, is entirely passed away.

If the government was the chief and perhaps only true producer of seed, and the farmers unable to secure such seed, except by its distribution, then such seed distribution might prove a good thing. But these conditions do not exist, for free seed distribution simply means extra appropriations, and the added cost of mail transportation, to give congressmen the chance of making a display, by sending packages to their constituents at home. It is all an added tax, of hundreds of thousands of dollars which works to no purpose, except it may be for some few congressmen, who may gain a little at home popularity, because of their free packages of seed. The congressman who has any real vitality, does not need this graft, and all others should be deprived of it.

The remarkable recovery of Kenneth McIver, of Vanceboro, Me., is the subject of much interest to the medical fraternity and a wide circle of friends. ## Recollections of Flag Ceremony at Raleigh.

The day of the flag ceremony at Raleigh March 2nd, contained many features that the participants of Co. H. 10th N. C. T. will always appreciate. The occasion was an eventful one, full of historic ardor, and planned on a high basis of success. The trip from Beaufort to Raleigh was the happy mingling of the joys that bless true friends, who get together after long years of separation. The one moving sentiment of cordiality and good will, beamed from the face of every veteran, and shone like a halo from the smiles and bright starry eyes of the many lady friends who graced the trip, while the comingling of esteemed male friends, who wished to show their respect and love for the old soldiers, added no little to the overflowing cup of genuine pleasure as we sped on to the capital.

The cleverness of the Raleigh reception, the participation of high officials, the crowded Senate chamber with fair ladies and gallant men, enriched the scene and swelled our hearts with grandeur, ecstasy and love. The Yarrowburgh festivities, the enchanting music in the reception hall while awaiting dinner the warm grasping of hands as introduction was given to distinguished officials and honored guests, kept our minds and thoughts happily entertained and delighted. Then to dinner of good things, tasteful and delicious, and the body was soon wrought up to that pinnacle of ecstasy enjoyed by the mind, and now both measured up to fullest thermometer joy. Then for home, laden with hearts full of love for Judge Douglas for the return of our flag, and for the splendid speeches in its reception, and for Raleigh's open hospitality. And now last but not least, we owe much of the pleasures of the day that bathed us with the fervid joys, to that gallant and warm hearted gentlemen Mr. Fred L. Merritt of the Howland Improvement Co., who provided us with free transportation on special comfortable coaches, and gave us the dinner at the Yarrowburgh. Words can not express our thanks to him and the R. R. Co., he so ably represents, for this marked heartful courtesy, but I feel sure if he could measure the warmth of the heart's red current as it flows full of love and gratitude for him and his, he would feel he was repaid for his unexcelled courtesy. May the magnificent enterprise his R. R. Co., is engaged in the development of this section of our State and especially Carteret county, result in mutual blessings and the most abundant success to all concerned and may our people aid with heart and hand.
