STRIFE OVER SOUTHERN FAST MAIL APPROPRIATION

Through its Greensboro correspondence, and in several of the State newspapers, the Journal notes that over the Southern fast mail appropriation there seems to be not merely a matter of difference of opinion, in both asking for it, and also trying to secure it by every legitimate endeavor, but there seems to be even a determined opposition to it in some quarters, notably on the part of two North Carolina Congressmen and a Raleigh newspaper.

So far the Journal has been able to learn, the desire to defeat this appropriation appears to have personal grounds. In other words, if the appropriation can be defeated, the Southern Railway will lose a subsidy, be out of pocket as it were, therefore suffer in some degree, financially, to the satisfaction of its enemies.

There is also an alleged reason, which to put mildly is most absurd, that to cut off this appropriation is a needed economy on the part of Congress. It is very hard to swallow this economy plea, especially if it is urged by a southern man whose neighbors and very many of the business interests of the south, would be seriously affected by the stopping of this fast mail service, which every one along the line of the Southern Railway has accepted today not as a luxury, but as a positive necessity.

If the economy plea was real or tenable, would the cutting off this appropriation mean the same amount of money coming to the south in some other appropriation? Of course such a question as this could not be sensibly answered in the affirmative, so that if this appropriation, establishing a most important mail service to the south, is cut off, it means that the south loses the money which this mail service calls for, and it does not come back in any other appropriation, so that both money and service are lost to this section, rather the section which is in direct and indirect communication with the Southern Railway.

It ought to be time for the people of the South to give up personal animosities and petty exhibitions of selfishness and try for benefits for all.

SCHOOL VISITING AND SCHOOL TEACHING

In Friday's Journal Superintendent Craven of the Graded Schools of this city, had a most important communication on the attendance of pupils at school at this time of the year, and giving reasons for the necessity of this attendance.

Parents whose children attend school, do not always know of their regularity or irregularity, and often are surprised when at the end of a school term their children stand low in their classes and their attendance at school. For the first, the parent very often blames the teacher, when the child's intermittent attendance at school is the real cause for poor lessons and the low average.

If parents would examine their own conduct and its bearing upon their children, while these children are being educated, they would quite likely find that when they gave personal attention and took an every day interest in every phase of the school going of their children, that the children made good progress, and there were no reports of tardiness, poor attendance and low percentage of standing in the lessons of their children.

The school teacher is a most important factor in every child's life, that attends school, but without the parental support, the teacher's task is a most difficult one, and good results for the pupil are hard to secure. What the school of this city want, is more parental interest shown by the parents whose children attend school.

IMPORTANT TRIPLE ABBES!

Colored Tramps Taken Into Custody By Officer Montague.

Officer Montague made an important capture of some thieves yesterday. He had received the complaint from Virgil Ooby a colored resident of Queen street that his shop had been broken open and things inside molested. The officer had also been informed of depredations elsewhere as well as the presence in the neighborhood of three suspicious characters. He found some men loitering and loafing around that vicinity and upon enquiry found they were the ones suspected. He arrested them and a trial was given before Mayor Patterson yesterday afternoon. They were found guilty of breaking into a building with felonious intent and in default of bond were taken to the county jail to await trial in the Superior court, April 9.

They were negroes giving their names as John Williams and William Morris, of Wilmington and Charlie McCray of Norfolk. Williams and Morris are both black, the former about 5 feet 9 inches and the latter 5 feet 4 inches tall. Morris has mustache. McCray is a ginger color and appears somewhat smaller than the other men and has a mustache. All three range in ages from 21 to 25 years. It is believed they are old offenders and possibly fugitives from justice. They were tramps and had no money about them. They had been begging from house to house.

can largely be accomplished, and in no better way, than by the parents becoming regular visitors in the school room, to note the child's work and also become acquainted with the teacher, and through the teacher learn of any difficulty in the child's every day work, and between parent and teacher any trouble of the child's may be easily corrected, and the youth, with this double help placed upon a comfortable road to seek his education, and be stimulated in the desire for an education.

School teaching is not all that is needed to assure an education for the child, and parents who fail to visit the school room are both doing themselves injustice, in not becoming familiar with every phase of their children's lives, but also in failing to visit the school room, are lending no encouragement to their children, who need just this kind of attention.

OUTWARDLY RESPECTABLE AND INWARDLY HONEST

The oft felt, if not always expressed fear that the industrial, commercial and social conditions in this country may be overthrown and destroyed, is caused by the shock produced by illegal actions on the part of those in high public places. The majority of people it is a good thing to say, are honest, yet the dishonest minority, when some specially atrocious case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde is made public, with all its sickening details published in the daily newspapers, this gives the impression that humanity as a rule is corrupt at heart.

The spirit of the hour, is the demand for a complete exposure of every existing thing, be it in the corporation or church, in public office, in society. It is called "reform," but the change sought could come without the promised or sought for, reform. That human characteristic, which in every day language is termed the "game," through individual selfishness, provokes in many persons, dishonesty, yet this should not stamp every one dishonest, or discourage the ambitions from seeking and succeeding in the highest degree, and doing so in an honest way.

But in no way will this individual "game" thrive honestly so well, as through the public sentiment which will demand not only the cloak of an outward respectability, but inwardly the heart of honest desires and purposes. It is the calling for substance throughout, not the shell of respectability surrounding the care of rottenness.

Respecters of the rights of others, will themselves gain respect. Those seeking positions of public trust should prove themselves sound, morally, before they are elected or given such positions, and great institutions, with their responsibilities, great public offices with their involved duties of service, should only be filled by men who have the outward and inward honesty, and the individual sincerity of an upright character.

All this involves a struggle, for there is no perfect humanity, yet perfectness in this earthly life though not expected, still there need be no hypocrisy with its mantle of respectability to cover up the blackness of heart, which seeks personal aggrandizement, regardless of the evil methods taken to accomplish the result.

Twenty five negro laborers employed as truckmen at the Southern freight depot went on a strike this morning. They demanded $1.50 per day. This demand was refused the men are being replaced by other men, and the railroad authorities say there will be no inconvenience after today.

 Made by the Old Dutch Process mixed with Pure Linseed Oil, and used by the painter uses it. It spreads easily and uniformly, forming an elastic coat that immediately becomes a part of the wood itself. It will not crack or peel as do adulterated paints. This means attractive appearance and perfect protection through all the long years of its life. When it does wear, it wears away uniformly, and when the painter is called upon again, he finds the surface all ready for him without recourse to scraping and "burning off." Remains of Infant Found.

Kingston Free Press.

Some eyes had noticed for several weeks a newly made grave in the woods back of the Kingston Furniture Factory's plant, and Thursday evening an investigation was made by some men and it was found to contain the body of an infant, apparently a day or two old when buried. The body was clothed neatly and buried in a box at a depth of about 18 inches. The grave was rounded and a head and foot board placed there as a marker.

A difference of opinion exists as to whether it was a white or colored child, but it is the theory generally accepted that it is the child of colored people and that it was buried there simply as a matter of economy and no criminal intent is believed to be connected with it. No one has claimed the corpse. It was replaced in the box and re-interred in the same grave.
