J. E. Latham & Co. Weekly Cotton Letter.

Special to Journal.

Greensboro, N. C., April 28.—The fluctuations in the cotton market during the past week have ranged within 20 points on the summer months, and about 15 for the fall and winter months. May delivery continues to rule at a considerable premium over July, because the May delivery is concentrated in strong hands, and while no acute corner is likely, it is probable that this difference will continue for the present, and probably during the whole month. Any strain placed upon the May option would have the effect of attracting further shipments in New York of low grade cotton, and this in turn may perhaps cause the July and August option to be very weak, and it is understood that the crowd that is buying may have sold heavily of July delivery. We understand the public to a considerable extent are not in the market, in fact they usually withdraw from markets that are manipulated. A full acreage is being planted, and up to the present time the crop has made unusual progress, and the start is good, and if the present start should be anything like continued through the growing and gathering season, a large crop would be certain, and with it considerably lower prices. It is universally admitted that a large crop of cotton, say not under 12 million bales, will be needed next year. It is very easy at the present time to figure on the law of averages, that the yield will be considerably more than this figure but it is the fear that something may happen to the crop, that now sustains the price of the fall months. The statistics of the present crop are daily growing more bullish, but not sufficiently so to cause any particular alarm among the spinners. It seems quite probable that there will be enough cotton to go around with comfort. It looks to us like the fluctuations will be very narrow until the situation of the new crop is better developed.

The Great Military Mobilization.

The great military mobilization for procuring sufficient funds to pay off the indebtedness of the St. Peter's church, will culminate this Sunday in a grand "parade and inspection." (Reports of the various commands).

Bishop T. H. Lomax, Charlotte, will occupy the pulpit at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Rev. H. H. Wells, of Kinston, will preach at 3 p. m. and his choir will sing. The Sunday School Rally will take place at 2 p. m. and the Varick Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m.

Reduced rates with a final limit for Monday, 30th, along the entire line of the A. and N. C. railroad has been secured, and large crowds from Beaufort, Morehead City, Goldsboro, Kinston, and other points are expected.

Considerable interest is manifested in this novel and interesting way of raising money for the church, and therefore will doubtless result in a good success.

Pennywise on Painting

The cost of the paint, be it the minor portion of a bill for painting. It is the painter's time in putting it on that costs. The outlay for paint is rarely more than a fourth, never more than a third. A little personal attention to the paint your painter uses will save you the necessity of hiring him so often.

Lead (made by the Old Dutch Process) mixed with Pure Linseed Oil and properly applied lasts a many years. Mixtures of unknown ingredients last from one year to three, according to the proportions of real paint (White Lead) they have in them. Some mixtures have almost no White Lead, and consequently almost no value as paint.

Skilled labor and poor material are a most expensive combination. In using Pure White Lead you get full value for the painter's time.

Send for booklet containing several handsome reproductions of actual houses, offering valuable suggestions for the best results in painting your house. A test for paint purity is also given.

Money Continues to Come In

The "touch of nature", that "makes the world kin" is surely in evidence in the San Francisco earthquake. The mere recital of the terrible experience of the stricken city causes every heart to ache and stimulates a desire among all people to lend a helping hand.

The Journal is very pleased to add to the contributions already made to the cause the sum of ten dollars from Kuhn's, Onslow county; five dollars donated by Mr. Wm. Kuhns and five dollars by Mr. James H. Young. The same has been turned over to the general relief fund in charge of Mayor Patterson and sent to the proper authorities for the sake of the earthquake and fire victims.

Presbyterian Church Notes

The Sunday School hour has been changed and the time of meeting is 9:40 a. m. Last Sunday morning the attendance was very satisfactory for the first time. Owing to the frequency of summer storms in the afternoon, and the extreme heat, the morning hour will prove much better than afternoon. The sluggish feeling of the hot summer afternoons is a disadvantage to the success of the school, where vim, snap, and progress are desired.

We would like to have parents and all the grown people in the school, as well as all the children. The Sabbath is a day of holy rest. Use the afternoon for bodily relaxation in a scriptural manner, but give the soul a chance to worship God in the fresh hours of morning.

The pastor wishes the next few Sabbaths to be devoted to evangelistic services. The sermons tomorrow will be at 11 a. m. Why I am a member of the church; at 8 p. m. "Repentance is godly sorrow." Travelling men and strangers are especially invited, and the general public are cordially welcome.

ARTS AND CRAFTS

One of the Most Interesting Sections of Jamestown Exposition.

Norfolk, Va., April 27.—One of the most interesting sections of the Jamestown Exposition will be that part which is devoted to the Arts and Crafts. The multiplication of machines and means for making every available article which enters into the list of human necessities has caused the artistic handicraft of past centuries to become extinct from lack of market.

It might be that the whites never quite assimilated the artistic instinct of the savages in the manufacturing of useful objects, or that the artistic ideas of the more civilized race found expression through other media. But, at all events, the English fell far short of the Indians in handicraft.

Nevertheless, the early settlers did produce some fine specimens. Only the very heaviest articles were imported during the early days of the colony, and while the rudest couches, deal tables and rough chairs might suffice for John Smith and his followers, the advent of gentle women at Jamestown changed the complexion of things. Other colonists at other points brought their wives with them, and a list of handicrafters sprung up in the New World.

In the South, all of the cotton then produced in that section was homespun, and woven into fabrics of varied artistic merit, while the sheep gave the wool for winter wear. This was also sheared, washed, carded, and spun without the aid of machinery. In those days the wheel and loom were not objects of curiosity or ornament, but entered deeply into the personal life of every householder. Some of the earlier carpets made in this country compare favorably with Oriental rugs, and this is very wonderful, since carpet-weaving was a comparatively new industry in the Occident when America was opened to English-speaking people.

In a village consisting of 8 or 9 buildings, each one of which will look like a colonial cottage magnified many times, the Jamestown Exposition will lodge its artistic handicrafters. The various kinds of metal workers will each have their own building, and the objects of their inventive genius will be turned out daily. Wood workers will build chairs, tables, beds, bureaus, washstands, book cases—and, in fact, all articles of furniture.

The Jamestown Exposition management, in thus interjecting into the twentieth century a phase of the seventeenth, believes that it will inculcate an artistic spirit in modern manufacture, and at the same time will teach the wearer or user of home-made articles that, instead of being ashamed of using cheap things, they in reality should be proud of using the best that is made.
