STATE SENATOR D. L. WARD.

While the return of Mr. D. L. Ward, of Craven county, as State Senator from the Eighth District, to the next General State Assembly, seems assured, judging from the promises made by the friends of Mr. Ward's, there may be those who if they understood better Mr. Ward's position on a few public issues, would not merely vote, but assist in making his nomination a practically unanimous one.

In Carteret county, there is some opposition to Mr. Ward, because in the last legislature, as Senator, he opposed the bill which had for its purpose to double the tax on oysters, a measure which looked both unjust and unwise, as its effect would tend to curtail the oyster business, thus causing the increased tax to be less effective, and to the consumer, add to the cost which he would have to pay.

In the matter of the Watts law, which Mr. Ward upheld, could he have done differently, as a democrat, in upholding this law, which was incorporated in the State democratic platform? If our representatives in the State legislature, or in Congress for that matter, are going to be criticised, let it not be for following strictly and literally democratic doctrines which the voters have declared for in their public gatherings and platforms.

In some quarters there are insinuations that Mr. Ward is a railroad attorney, not a crime in itself, though objectionable if the attorney goes to the legislature to represent the people. On this issue Mr. Ward's record is open, and on examination it will be found that he usually appears at court against the railroad interests, and he was against granting the Atlantic & North Carolina railroad lease in perpetuity, which was practically sought, when the life of the charter was 47 years.

If other issues have been urged as reasons for Mr. Ward's not again receiving a nomination, which is usually given twice, they have not been heard or presented. The Senator representing Carteret, Craven, Greene, Jones, Lenoir, and Onslow counties, in the last legislature was a gentleman ever courteous and approachable, always at the service of his constituents, and standing for democratic principles. His return will reflect credit on his district and the State, and the people will have a representative who will stand firm for their interests, and at no time has there been greater need for such a man in the General Assembly, as there will be next winter, when that body meets again in Raleigh.

WHAT KIND OF EFFORT WAS MADE?

While the newspapers of nearly every section in the South complain of lack of labor, and express the desire for immigrants to come and fill up the labor needs, and even with some efforts by local organizations to attract immigration, the South, according to official figures, only secured about one per cent. of the immigrants arriving in this country during the month of May, or in figures, 1,412 out of the 120,951 immigrants that arrived at New York during May.

The real question is, does the South want these foreigners who are coming to America, as much as they sometimes profess they do? Is it not largely immigration, those calls for foreign labor? That is, will the local authorities, or property owners in the sections which profess a desire for immigrants, make such a tender of property or its equivalent, and so make an actual inducement for would be home seekers to come, and take up a bona fide residence, to work at whatever may be tendered there, and of course it would be understood in advance that living wages of some kind would be provided all immigrants, so that they might become at once self-supporting, and not be a weight upon the community, where are such sections? The immigration question is a business proposition, and immigrants are not to be secured except by special inducements, and the South has not yet either learned, or does not care enough to learn the method, and so secure more than the one per cent. of those coming from foreign shores.

SOUTHERN EDUCATION AND NATIONAL LEADERSHIP

Every leader of educational thought, every promoter of educational advancement in the South feels the imperative demand for this work in the future of this Southland's, not only its commercial prosperity, but in its social status, and as a section whose voice may receive recognition by the national leadership of the country.

In this social and national leadership the South's participation in the affairs of the nation during the last fifty years will be found in the ratio as the educational movement has been. Statistics can be found to largely verify this. Take the eleven Southern States of the Confederacy, their population (exceeds that of Indiana, Iowa and California, by three times, yet the three western states have 8,000 more school students than the eleven Southern States. Take it in national leadership, and cannot it be said the western three can carry more weight than the eleven Southern? Look at the South's representation in Congress, among thirty-two chairmen of House committees, no representation, no representative in the President's Cabinet, none among the first class ambassadorships of Europe, and at Washington only an Assistant Secretary of Southern birth. Of the four greatest political questions raised in this country during the past decade, the South has had no constructive part in a single measure. And yet the South will not find itself in the nation's councils, able to fill representative positions, to assist in constructive movements for the people of the entire country, unless the South shall have mentally equipped by a thorough training to be sent out to take the positions, which men with educational equipment and educational mental poise always find awaiting them.

A danger threatening the educational advance in the South today, is the allurements of commercial life, the tremendous resources of the South's natural resources calling for laborers, for youth who are but partly trained, who think the partial training can be completed by actual experience at the bench, loom or in the office, but who realize too late that two or three years taken from high school and college with the discipline and technical training advantages, can never be made up.

It should be the fight, the contending thought of every educator, every one who can assist in education, to strive for the training of youth towards a definite end, a course of study which shall turn out the finished product in a man well and thoroughly educationally balanced, clear-eyed and keen of brain, who shall be able to grasp great national problems, who shall be wanted to help solve the great destinies of the people.

The South has this raw material of youth, it only demands that skill, honest effort, thorough endeavor be pursued to develop and bring forth the finished product in the man who will be both representative of the South and of the American nation.

Trade Report

Richmond, Va., June 22.—Bradstreet's says about Richmond and vicinity: Wholesale dealers in manufacturers of blotting paper and card-board continue to receive large orders. They are shipping to points further from Richmond, than they have previously and this has been the best season in their history. The loose leaf tobacco market continues active, prices continue to range higher than at comparative period last year. The planting of this year's crop has been about completed in eastern Virginia and North Carolina and the acreage will not be so large as that of last year on account of the scarcity of labor. The produce market is active, increased shipments are being received; especially is this true of Southern vegetables and melons. Prices are fair and collections good. Retail trade continues active for this season of the year.

Standard Oil Company Prosecuted

Washington, June 22.—The Cabinet discussed the feasibility of prosecuting the Standard Oil Co., and the department of justice will take the matter up and a thorough investigation will be made.

The Gard of Thanks.

The Elizabeth City Economist speaks pertinently of a custom thus: "The editor of this paper would be the last man on earth to knowingly say a word to hurt the feelings of any of its subscribers or citizens, especially at a time when the dark winged messenger of death has brought sorrows to the home, but from the best of motives we desire to call the attention of our readers to the custom of publishing 'cards of thanks.' It is a custom that has outgrown its purpose, if it ever had one. When sickness and death come to your home it is only natural that your friends and neighbors should do what they could to assist you. They would be heathens if they did not. They know from the expression of your face that you are thankful and deeply appreciate all they do, and it is not necessary to rush into print and tell the world that your neighbors were kind when you were in trouble. The reading public are becoming tired of the old stereotyped 'card of thanks.' You can express to your friends, by a look or word that your thankful needs in a more impressive manner than you can in a column of cold type."

Death of Maj. S. D. Pope.

"Life one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him" Major S. D. Pope passed from the sleep of life to the sleep of death yesterday afternoon. He had been in failing health for several months but his friends were much encouraged at his apparent improvement and returning strength and while it was known he was still frail his demise was a great shock to all. Yesterday he lay down on a couch to take his usual after dinner nap, and his daughter heard him groan, when she reached his side he exclaimed, "oh, such a pain!" and turned over and expired.

Major Samuel Drew Pope was one of our best known citizens, he has been a resident of New Bern for many years. He was born in Greene county in February, 1836, and was a brave and honored soldier in the Confederacy and retired from the service with the title of major. In later years he has held several offices. One of his duties was a trustee of the Knights of Honor to settle with the heirs of the late John W. Moody which he was to have transacted yesterday at 3 o'clock. He was a straightforward, honest citizen who had a high sense of duty and a man who was respected by all. The funeral services will be held at the Centenary church this evening at 6 o'clock. Rev. G. T. Adams will officiate.

RALEIGH

Decrease in State Convicts, Corporation Commission Proves Weak. (Special Correspondence.)

Raleigh, June 22.—The State Cotton Growers Association sent out today blanks for reports on the cotton crop, July 1st, these all to be in hand July 10th. The reports call for statements as to the acreage compared with last year, the condition of the plant, its size and also the labor situation. The Association has had no news recently regarding the crop except scattering reports which conflict somewhat, some saying there is an increase of five to seven per cent over last year and others that the acreage has been decreased that much. President Moore of the association is sick at his home at Charlotte, having been sick ever since his return from Texas last month. Secretary T. B. Parker has been at Hillsboro some days where his aged father is very ill.

The total number of State convicts has now decreased to only 700. Of these 128 are now in the penitentiary here. No more are available for work of any kind. A charter is granted the South Atlantic Lumber Company Greensboro, capital stock $50,000, W. L. Clement and others being stockholders. The company will manufacture all sorts of wood works including spokes, bobbins, etc.

The Fayetteville gas and electric company of which J. H. T. Martin is the president, has increased its capital stock to $75,000, the State authorizing this increase.

The friends of ex-Congressman W. P. Crawford are very proud of the way he won in the 10th district in the contest for the Democratic nomination for Congress. 154 votes were required and he already has 142, not including Cherokee which has its primaries tomorrow and which will give him over half its vote.

The railway schedule matter which has made the corporation commission quite prominent during the past fortnight has brought out the fact that the powers of the commission are not so great as many persons had thought or seemed to think. From time to time things have been done which were rather broader than the law permits. It will require the addition of considerable power by the next legislature to make the commission truly a court as it is now held to be practically only an advisory board.

Following the Flag

When our soldiers went to Cuba and the Philippines; health was the most important consideration. Willis T. Morgan, retired Commissary Sergeant U. S. A., of Rural Route 1, Concord, N. H., says: "I was two years in Cuba and two years in the Philippines, and being subject to colds, I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption which kept me in perfect health. And now, in New Hampshire, we find it the best medicine in the world for coughs, colds, bronchial troubles and all lung diseases. Guaranteed at all druggists. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free."

One of the features of the celebration at Jamestown, Va., will be the restoration, or rather the attempted reproduction, of the old church which stood there. It is to be restored by the Colonial Dames and a sea wall built.

Practically the entire session of cabinet was devoted to the consideration of the proceedings likely to be begun by the Department of Justice against the Standard Oil Court.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Journal.

Being a regular reader of your paper and interested in all that you have to say relative to the upbuilding of New Bern. I feel constrained in my way, to add some word of endorsement.

In the first place, the newspaper is the mouthpiece of the people. It speaks to hundreds where the individual speaks to one. The power of the press is untold when based upon the high plane of honor, justice, and patriotism. The newspaper that is known for its integrity and sincerity must necessarily command the respect of the people, and is largely the moulder of public opinion, and when so conducted its influence is far-reaching and cannot be too highly valued in a community of public spirited people.

In the Journal we have had a paper that has faced the vicissitudes of journalistic life about a quarter of a century, advancing all that pertained to the welfare and betterment of the community, and now does it not behoove us as loyal citizens to further its usefulness in advocacy of the public needs and benefits that have been brought out in its columns recently. Without having made any special note of these suggestions, we recall a few instances which deserve special attention, and cannot be treated lightly or indifferently if we wish to see New Bern and this section keep pace with other places not nearly so well situated.

Along the line of education the Journal has during its entire existence been a strong supporter, and its recent agitation for an auditorium is most strongly emphasized at all the closing exercises. Under the supervision of Prof. Craven and his excellent corps of teachers (who, by the way, we are glad to know have had their salaries raised, and yet not to that amount which they are deserving.)

We have a most excellent system of schools, take advantage of these equipments costs money. Along the other lines the Journal is constantly delving to awaken a unanimity in the public spirit. Not that we haven't citizens of one business qualifications, but that there is a fearful lack of coming together and reaching out for the great possibilities that surround us, many of them lying at our very doors only awaiting to be brought to the light.

Let the Journal continue to agitate until there is a spirit of restlessness that is not satisfied to merely to follow, but take the lead along with other places. Teachers must incur considerable expense if they expect to keep up with the times. There are summer schools, normals, lecture courses, etc., to be attended and to take advantage of these equipments costs money.
