CAPITAL PUNISHMENT IN CRAVEN COUNTY.

The hanging of the coloreed murderer in this county, set for August 31st, is an event of unusual occurrence. The crimes committed, which would be held by a jury as calling for capitol punishment, have been rare, and the few which have been regarded as sufficient for such punishment have passed under some lesser degree of character of crime, and the death penalty has not been meted out.

In this county, and doubtless it is the same elsewhere under similar conditions, the excession has been that capita, punishment could not take place here, a rather severe reflection upon any community, and one not provocative of the best spirit to promote law and order. Capital punishment is in degree the same as rny law which demands of the criminal the expiation of the deed committed. The various punishments today, as called for to be visited upon criminals as they may be provenguilty, are meant not average society, but to deter the repitition of crime of every degree and shade. The effectiveness as a so-called curative of crime punishment, is to be found most in the infliction of the law's penalty upon the guilty by its publicity, for publicity seems ever creative in crime of a morbidness which provokes additional crime rather than a deterrent to its commission.

The old method of public executions was found to have a brutalizing effect upon the crowds who witnessed such scenes and had no effect in minimizing in private, there is the tendency on the part of the press where great publicity is given to the crime, the criminal and his punishment, to have the equally unwholesome effect, that was given to the public execution of one hundred years ago,

NORTH CAROLINA'S POSITION IN SOUTHERN GROWTH.

Recent census figures from Washing. ton, show the ever increasing growth of the South, and among the states of Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina and Alabama, the sum of capital invested in manufactures shows the greatest increase in the Old North State, namely, 106 1-2 per cent. against South Carolina's increase of 81 per cent, the next state showing the greatest increase. In the South's new commercial era, North Carolina is not exhibiting any conservatism which restricts her growth, a conservatism which means hesitation in grasping the opportunities that offer themselves, and which grasped means development and growth attended by prosperity.

North Carolina retains third place among cotton manufacturing states. There were 212 cotton mills in the state in 1905, as compared with 177 in 1900. During this five-year period the amount of capital invested increased 73.9 per cent, and the value of products increased 66.5 per cent. The value of cotton products was 32.2 per cent. of the total value of all manufactures of the state, and 42.6 per cent. of the wageearners are employed in cotton manufacturing. North Carolina was third in the production of chewing and smoking tobacco in 1900. In 1905 it had outstripped Kentucky and was a close second to Missouri. The increase of capital invested in the tobacco industry during the five-year perion was 365 per cent; the increase in value of products was 87 per cent. In the manufacture of cigars and cigarettes there were in 1905 twenty-four times as much capital five times as many wage-corners, six times the wages, and cleves times the value of products as in 1900.

And yet great areas of territory re main practically undeveloped in this state. Take this Eastern Carolina see tion, which has just begon in lagrowth, that is to say, comparatively so, for no great as us of outside capital have come in, except the recent great purchases of railroads, steamboats, saw mills, timber lands etc., which are supposed to be by Standard Oil people, and these millions of capital which have been invested have not yet fairly begun the work of development and growth, which such an investment means. As with other sections of North Carolina there is no question of the industrial position which this section will take in a few years.

A CLUTTON FOR MONEY.

Commentaries passed upon which have ended, should justly take into consideration the talents with which the departed were entrusted during their careers on earth. Talen's are not of like degree or kind. The reward is not so much as to the number of talents given the individual, as to the earning which each talent will show at life's end.

It is not the extremely wealthy man or woman who usually makes the best rendering of accounts at the end, but nore often the comparatively poor, who have given to others, and more than shared this world's good, with an unselfishness, that is computed as divine. The life of the late Russell Sage, with its ninety years on earth, offers nothing worthy of emulation for the youth of to lay. A life with so-called personal virtues, because a single idea was followed which would not permit the spending a cent for recreation or dissipation. It was a good life, that of Mr. Sage's, in the acceptance that no dissipations were indulged in, but this cannot beheld as creditable, for his dissipation was one which lead to saving each cent and dollar, building up and piling up millions, a vast pile of wealth to worship for its mere intrinsic value, and for its ability to grow more dollars. The Russell Sage life was one of money gluttony, with not a visible trait that another person lived who was at all entitled to consideration, where a Sage dollar was involved.

When the bomb thrower menaced the physical Sage, the impulse to save his life caused the millionaire to pull the poor clerk between himself and destruc tion, but the glutton money spirit was shown when, danger passed, the maimed clerk was refused all willing compensation for his injuries, that saved the Sage life. And in charities during life, the same glutton spirit for money which made every dollar given, not one for love, but a forced giving because of external pressure, the life of the now dead millionaire reveals nothing worthy emulation. It was a successful life for it filled to the full the one only thought, such crimes. Today, with executions purpose and effort, the accumulation of gratification of every hope and love, and which now life is over, the superb talent shows to the world only dead sea fruit, a life of failure, when its possibilities were so great for good.

First Issue Expected September 15th. Seeman of Durham Publisher

(Special Correspondence.) Raleigh, July 24-A special interest attaches to the publication of the North Carolina Journal of Education, the first issue of which will appear September 15, and thereafter semi-monthly. H.E. eeman of Durham will be published and superintendent, E. C. Brooks of the Goldsboro City Schools has assumed the duties of editor-in-chief. A Board of Associate Editors will be announced later, as contributors to the various departments. A prospectus wil! be itued in a few days. The Board of Managers is composed of representatives of all the educational associations of the State and the policy of the Journal will be under the direction of this board. The following departments will be regularly represented; State department of public education, county superintendents, city superintendents; high schools and colleges, primary and intermediate work, plans among teachers, improvement among school houses and grounds, nature study and agricultural interests. An associate editor will head each one of these departing educators of the State. The editor-in-chief is one of the well known educational progressists of the State and is admirably fitted by reason of his learning, training and experience; he has also done much successful work among newspapers. The movement for the establishment of such a Journal took definite shape at the State Association meeting of county superintendents in December, 1905, its need having been recognized as a medium of cooperation for the educators of the State, and the final action in its definite organization was accomplished last June when the Teachers Assembly was so permanently put into effect in Raleigh.

Fishing Party at Morehead. One of the most enjoyable events that has taken place at Morehead during the mid-summer season was the fishing party given by Dr. Jos. F. Pat terson, of New Bern, and Miss Stuart Jones of Charlotte. The trip was made on the fast sailing sharple Katherine Morehead. There were about 25 in the party and, each one was attired in yachting costume fully armed with fishing tackle of all descriptions. Owspecie that fish was decided upon as their game and as a result of the trip over '175 pounds of this fine fish were landed.

At noon a most delicious luncheon was served on board which was greatly enjoyed by the party.

Negro Agent Wants Apart monts For His People.

A special New York dispatch to the Baltimore Sun, says: More white families in the upper part of the city must move out of their apartments to make room for negroes. Notices of eviction presented last week to tenants in 525 West One Hundred and Fifty-first street was only the entering wedge, according to Phillip A. Payton, the negro president of a realty company which makes a business of procuring homes for negroes. Seven other apartment houses have been procurred on the West Side, according to Payton, and within a few days the tenants of all these will be notified to vacate. Payton says he expects to have jurgations heaped on him, but that he is firm in his belief that he has not only a legal right, but also a moral right, to what he is doing. " Every white person on Manhattan Island," said Payton tonight, "knows how difficult it is to get an apartment or a flat. Did he ever stop to think of the difficulty experienced by the honest and respectable negro who wishes to rise socially and intellectually among his own race and rear his children amid proper surroundings?

"When negroes are segregated the bad and the good are hived together, and the bad actions of one are visited upon the heads of all. Morever, it is a fact that the police allow illegal acts to be committed in negro 'colonies' that would be promptly stopped in a neigh borhood occupied by whites. There are many negroes who are not only moral, educated and ambitious, but who have sufficient means to thoroughly educate their children. What are such persons to do? Up to the present they could live only in a negro colony among negroes of all kindsnegroes who were shiftless, drunkards and immoral. I am making a specialty of negro tenants, not only for gain, but because I think negro colonization in New York City has done more to retard the uplifting of the race than any other one thing. No agent requires more careful references than do I regarding my tenants-not regarding their financial responsibility alone, but as to their moral and social standing. "I do not wish to annuy the whites, but I do wish to do all I can, which I think is right, for my own race. We are now passing through the trials and ordeals that many races have experienced almost since time began. This is an age of progress, an age of broader thought, and I think the time is near. although I may not live to see it, when the color line will be so effectually obliterated that white people and negroes will live harmoniously in the same apartment house.'

Payton, although only 30 years old, is rated as being worth nearly a quarter of a million dollars. He and his family live in a brownstone house in West One Hundred and Thirty-first street which contains a billiard room and other luxuries. He owns a large touring automobile and enjoys other expensive pleasures, which his income of about $25,000 a year amply allows.

A Change of Courts.

Kinston Free Press July, 23.-Wooten & Wooten, counsell for defendant, secured an order from Judge Thos. S Purnell of the federal court, today, for the removal of the case of J J Rogers vs. the Pacific Mutual Insurance Co. from the State court to the U.S. circuit court at the New Bern term and the case will be heard at the fall term, in October.

The case is one in which Mr. Rogers, who was formerly general agent for the Pacific Mutual, is suing the company for an amount alleged to be due him under a recent contract. When Mr. Rogers, severed his connection with the Pacifie Mutual he alleged that an amount was due him, several thousand dollars, as per the latest contract, and upon the company's refusal to pay the attached funds in the bank in this city amounting to upwards of $2,000, belong ing to the company replevined and gave
