THE SUMMER HEALTH OF NEW BERN

It is not a new observation, that of saying that New Bernians are great travelers, and especially so during the summer months. It is a noteworthy fact that this is true, and while there are several excuses given for the New-Bernians being such travelers, that of having to leave their own city, because of heat and possible sickness is not one of the reasons.

Health statistics may not be particularly newsy matter for hot weather consumption, but such a report as appeared in yesterday's Journal, with no conspicuous head line to call attention to it, can be read and enjoyed by the New Bern stay-at-homes, and perhaps with equal satisfaction in one way, by those who are away from home, and not having all the comforts of a summer home, at the places where they may be.

If there has been a summer season here just like this year's, since June 1st to the present date, with its rain and humidity, the oldest inhabitants do not recall it. There have been days and nights of rain, and when it was not raining it was hot and humid, followed by rain, and again hot and humid. It has been such "feeling weather" that has more than encouraged going away, and the New Bernian exodus of 1906 has exceeded previous years. Yet there have been the stay-at-homes, and these people have had to endure the above kind of weather which would seem to be most unhealthy and fatal, yet mortality statistics indicate no such weather which has prevailed, for the season would seem to be one that makes sickness general with many deaths. Yet since June 26th to August 22d, the white interments in the cemetery in this city have been one adult and two children in fifty-seven days, certainly a record which would seem impossible during a most favorable season, and a record which cannot be equalled by any city in this state with a population of 14,000.

This health record speaks well for the sanitary condition of New Bern, and also for the skill of its physicians, for while there has been some sickness, the cases have been handled with skill, to the preservation of life, and the making of a mortality record that will not likely ever be equalled again.

METHOD AND CO-OPERATION IN CHARITY WORK.

New Bern has in the Stewart Sanatorium an institution which should cover every need that a hospital, which has been so greatly wanted locally by doctors and citizens, for many years. This sanatorium while a private institution can be made a public institution, to every practical purpose, and to secure this only calls for joint work on the part of all citizens who are contributors to charity, or would be such, if there is a charity which would rightly appeal to them.

At present the Stewart Sanatorium has three free beds, those being contributed by Mr. J. W. Stewart, by Mr. J. B. Blades and by the City of New Bern. These are worthy contributions, but there should be other free beds, as well as some provisions made whereby those who are in need of accepting a free bed, may if their needs are still greater, have medical services and medicines, as well, free of cost. All this involves cost, but it does not mean excessive cost, if there be a co-operation of local short-sighted and intelligent method pursued. In this same connection it might be said that the colored citizens of New Bern should have their free bed, and other free attention, for the needs of their own race.

The Stewart Sanatorium is splendidly equipped, and is every way adapted for the use and comfort of this city and county, and it is to be hoped that the necessary steps will be taken to make it a permanent and useful institution for the benefit of all.

proclamation, as having an institution where the unfortunate can receive humane treatment and be restored to health, that might never be theirs, if it depended upon their own resources. It only needs local co-operation among the charities inclined, with some intelligent direction, to give the right and proper aid, so that the helpless, through sickness or injury may receive attention and be given treatment that will restore them to the world, to work for themselves. There is no need to name the local charities that should organize for this work, they are well known, and those who conduct them could easily form a plan whereby a co-operative movement for free beds and free medical attention could be provided for those coming under their notice, and these unfortunates be taken to the Stewart Sanatorium.

WHERE LIES THE REPRESENTATIVE'S FIRST DUTY?

The nomination and election of members by the several counties, to seats in the next General Assembly of North Carolina, possesses this year more than the usual features and political phases which have entered into previous State elections.

It is not so much that there is any lack of Democratic party feeling, or any disposition to be slack in party fealty, but there are some questions, strictly within the party lines, which are not so easy of solution, and which can easily arouse a feeling among Democrats that might prove a serious menace to party stability, which is all important to the best interests of the party, as well as to those material interests of the State which can be disturbed by change of administration, or through legislative enactments that may be passed by a General Assembly.

A question which has already caused local animosities among candidates seeking nomination for the legislature, but which has not been actually voiced at primary or convention, where nominations have been made, that in the case of New Hanover county, showing itself quite prominently. The question might be stated, "where lies the representative's first duty, to his home constituents, or to his state and his party?"

Again particularizing in the case of New Hanover county, which means the city of Wilmington, this question must prove a most important one, for Wilmington in its local option favoring saloons, is greatly at variance with the Democratic tenets which come under the Watts and Ward laws and the prohibition expressions of Governor Glenn. It is hardly likely that the voters of Wilmington would elect a representative who was not wholly in sympathy with local option, and the gentleman so selected could hardly be expected to favor any legislation which opposes local option.

While this same issue may not be so openly seen in other counties, yet there has been the tendency in many to name men who seemed to favor local option rather than be pronounced for party and state and indifferent to the wishes of local constituents.

The fact that the political dangers which have in the past always menaced any but a united Democratic party in North Carolina, are now eliminated to a great extent, makes the local feature more prominent, and representatives are named for the performance of local legislation, rather than sent to ignore local sentiment, if there shall be the party call to work for some general law, North Carolina conservatism and independence is seen in this change, and through it will come a more thorough county representation, a representative legislature which will be less political and more alert to social, educational, industrial and material advancement. The danger lies not in such a legislature, but in the attempt to dwarf the representative's efforts who believes his first duty is to those who elected him.

You can easily obtain information about this time honored institution by applying to Preston Lewis Gray, B. L., Principal, Mebane, N. C.

UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Dyspepsia is often caused by Catarrh of the Stomach—Peruna Relieves Catarrh of the Stomach and is Therefore a Remedy For Dyspepsia.

Hon. M. C. Butler, Ex-U. S. Senator from South Carolina for two terms, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writes to the Peruna Medicine Co., as follows:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, besides a good tonic."

CATARRH of the stomach is the correct name for most cases of dyspepsia. In order to cure catarrh of the stomach the catarrh must be eradicated. Only an internal catarrh remedy, such as Peruna, is available. Peruna exactly meets the indications. Peruna is sold by your local Druggists. Buy a bottle today.

LIGHTS OUT.

An Experience That is Becoming Altogether Too Common in New Bern.

Words are too insufficient to express the deep disgust that existed throughout the city last night over the electric light fiasco. It appears that the mere expense they put the people to the worse service. We might almost suppose that the attitude of the commission is that of the "people be damned, we're getting our pay." The lights went out at eight o'clock; we were assured that they would be on in a short time; after due waiting we again had the cheerful intelligence poured in our waiting ears that there would be no more lights.

It was a spectacle not entirely devoid of humor except that there was too much practical truth in the experience when people went groping around town trying to buy or borrow lamps. It was a good thing for people having lamps and oil to sell.

The merchants lost a good bit of trade last night on account of the failure of the lights, but there's a way of recovery and make no mistake, the losers are going to make good when the collector goes his rounds. The forces of nature showed their disgust too. Even the moon hid her face; doubtless because she felt that having no competition it wasn't worth while to shine.

A part of the machinery evidently broke as the fire engines were called in to service to supply the mains.

The lights came on at 10:13 but the "cussing" stands."

Galveston's Sea Wall.

Stomach Troubles and Constipation.

No one can reasonably hope for good digestion when the bowels are constipated. Mr. Chas. Baldwin, of Edwardsville, Ill., says, "I suffered from chronic constipation and stomach troubles for several years, but thanks to Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, I am now well and free from all these troubles. I can eat and sleep as well as ever. I feel like a new man. For sale by Druggists."

AN EXCITING FIGHT.

Rat Battles Three Snakes And Proves a Worthy Antagonist Though Beaten at Last. (Special Correspondence.)

Raleigh, Aug. 24.—At the State Museum today there was a lively scene in the snakes' den, in which there are rattlers, black snakes and king snakes, a large and very angry rat was put in. He attacked the snakes and bit them all. They all except one struck him, but yet he fought. The black snake and the king snake, which are constrictors, tried to get a coil on him, but the quarters were rather too cramped. The big rattler did not notice the rat, as he is shedding. The rat finally died, game to the last. The snakes were in a tumult and were badly frightened.

Trade Report.

New York, Aug. 24.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say for Richmond and vicinity:

The local Iron Foundries are doing an active business. They are working at full capacity and in some instances have been compelled to cancel orders on account of scarcity of labor. Local structural iron and steel manufacturers and contractors are busy. Present indications are that in the building lines figures will show an increase over 1905. This city is the center of the South for the manufacture of steel ranges and cast stoves, and those engaged in this line are especially busy. The produce market is at its regular end-of-season dullness. Little is being done locally in this line with the exception of Southern fruits and melons from a nearby territory. Collections in dry goods, shoes and hardware lines show improvement while in the grocery and produce lines they continue poor.

An Ingenious Accusation.

"The favorite horse of the Chinese Emperor," said a Chinese statesman, "died through negligence on the part of the royal master of the horse. The emperor was so enraged at this that he drew his sword and would have run the careless functionary through the body. 'But the learned mandarin, Yenta, struck up the emperor's sword, saying: 'Sire, this man has not yet been formally accused of any crime. He deserves to die, but his accusation should come first. It is the law.' 'Well,' said the emperor, 'tell me what he has done.' 'Listen, your majesty,' said the mandarin, turning to the trembling master of the horse—'listen to a catalogue of your heinous offenses. In the first place, you have allowed a horse to perish that his majesty had entrusted to your care. In the second place, it is on your account that the emperor has become so exasperated that he has actually on the point of disgracing himself in all his people's eyes by killing a man for the sake of a horse.' 'Enough,' said the emperor, appreciating the rebuke. 'Let him go. He is pardoned.'"

Breaking It Gently.

"Laura," said Mr. Ferguson as he buttered a biscuit and passed his coffee cup for a second filling, "I don't miss anything, but after I had come in last night, about 11:30, I found the house had been broken into. Somebody had smashed a pane of glass in a basement window, crawled inside and made his way up the stairs to the first floor. There hasn't been anything disturbed in the pantry, the china closet or the sideboard, has there?"

"No," answered Mrs. Ferguson. "But, mercy, who could it have been and what do you suppose he wanted?"

"I suspect," he rejoined, clearing his throat, "that I—er—did it myself and that I wanted to get inside without disturbing anybody. You had all gone to bed, and I had left my latchkey in my other trousers. It will cost about 25 cents to repair the basement window. The weather man, I see, predicts possible showers for today."—Chicago Tribune.

Three Kinds of Lightnings.

The Etruscans of old believed that there were three kinds of lightning— one incapable of doing any injury, another more mischievous in its character and consequently only to be issued with the consent of a quorum of twelve gods, and a third carrying mischief in its train and for which a regular device was required from the highest divinity in the Etruscan scale. Curiously enough, modern scientific men agree with the view that there are three kinds of lightning, but their varieties differ from the Etruscans. The first is known as forked lightning and runs in zigzag lines, the second as sheet lightning, because it is seen in a body, and the third as globe lightning, as it sometimes runs in the shape of a ball. The latter variety is rather slow in moving.
