Greensboro, Sept. 21.—The opening exercises of the State Normal and Industrial College yesterday were peculiarly impressive, appropriate, and eloquently shadowed with saddened dignity. Instead of the usual, bright, happy, smiling faces of the enthusiastic students upon a return for another year's work, there was the impress of sorrow stamped upon each face on account of the deplorable loss of Dr. McIver, the creator of the institution, its founder, its only President and tirelessly faithful friend since it was organized less than fifteen years ago; for while the whole State will miss him, none will miss or grieve over his loss as will his students, who more than any one else could realize fully what his death meant to them, to the college, to the cause of woman's educational rights, as a duty from the State.

There were over six hundred students in the auditorium when President Foust, Dean of the college faculty, and selected as acting president until the selection of a successor to Dr. McIver, President, Rev. Dr. L. W. Crawford, who made the invocation. After a few expressive and appropriate remarks on the events of the past few days which had placed him at the head of the institution.

It was only yesterday that State Superintendent Joyner was heard from. He wired at ten o'clock from Asheville that he would arrive on the first possible train, this showing that he had probably just reached Asheville by private conveyance from Mitchell county, and then first heard of the death of Dr. McIver. In the discussion of Dr. McIver's successor, all eyes here involuntarily turned to Mr. Joyner and there is no doubt felt, from expressions heard from some of the board of directors, that could have been reached, and the fact learned that he would resign his present high and responsible position, he would have been elected at the meeting yesterday.

Mr. Joyner arrived last night. He said he got the news of Dr. McIver's death in Mitchell county Tuesday night, but the mountain streams were so swollen he could not reach Marion, 22 miles across the mountains by private conveyance. He took a local train at seven o'clock Wednesday morning at Spruce Pine, went by Johnson City, Tenn., and had been travelling every hour of the time since then until he reached Greensboro at six o'clock last evening.

Yesterday afternoon officers returned from Raleigh with Kiser Couchfield, his son Oscar and Frank Bohannon, against whom bills of indictment had just been found for the murder of foreman Beachman at the railroad construction camp near Jamestown last summer. They had been in the penitentiary for protection against a possible lynching. They were arraigned later in the afternoon and Tuesday next week is set for the trial. Mr. G. S. Bradshaw has been retained as counsel for Bohannon and ex-Judge W. P. Bynum, Jr., and Col. John A. Barringer will appear for the Couchfields.

As next week is a special term, over which Judge Long will preside, Judge Moore did not order a special venire, that having to be ordered Monday by the judge who tries the case. It is not probable that either one of the eleven capital cases on the docket will be taken up this week, as the time will be devoted to clearing the jail of other cases of smaller moment. If all these cases are contested it will be hardly possible to dispose of more than half of them next week.

In the trial yesterday of the case against Clarence Fruit, a young white boy from High Point, charged with the larceny of a team it developed that the defendant had cruelly beat the horse and Judge Moore took occasion to say that he was in favor of the whipping post being re-established for two classes of people, namely those who are cruel to dumb animals and those who abuse and beat a helpless woman. He said there is nothing worse than beating a dumb animal except to impose upon and beat a weak and dependent woman. In the case of charging Fruit, with larceny he was acquitted. The witness who failed to appear before the grand jury Wednesday were Fred the black, by Judge Moore but several of these men have stood and their names were pronounced and the fact is that the four others who were in ed did not show up. T. M. Woolen and R. M. Simmons, two traveling men, had a personal encounter on the side walk in front of Merritt Johnson Company's store at 1:30 this afternoon. Policeman Ridge cited them to appear before the mayor for an adjustment of their disagreement, which has been of long standing.

On Account of Race War in Atlanta, Deemed Best To Forbid It.

A Judge's Decision On Tobacco.

A Judge of the Carolina Courts, who is evidently a good judge of tobacco as well as law, wrote recently that he had been using sun cured tobacco for forty years, but in all his experiences had found none so good as REYNOLDS, which was first offered to the trade four years ago. Previous to that time cheser after cheser of tobacco made too sweet took to Schnapps and other brands of fine-cured (which required and had less sweetening than any other class of tobacco produced), until there were ten times more pounds cheser of Schnapps and other brands of fine-cured tobacco than the entire production of sun cured. Soon after its production, REYNOLDS' SUN CURED grew so big in sales on quality that R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company for the last two or three years has purchased not less than one-half of the entire amount of the farmers production of sun cured tobacco and their purchases in the section or territory where the best sun cured tobacco grows have stimulated the farmers to increase the production of sun cured tobacco.

REYNOLDS' SUN CURED is not only pure sun cured tobacco, but it is choice selections made from sun cured tobacco grown where the best sun cured tobacco grows.

Special Correspondence.
Greensboro, Sept. 22.—At yesterday morning's exercises of the State Normal and Industrial College, there were present Dr. J. B. Carlyle of the faculty of Wake Forest College, who, in his way to make an educational address in Caswell county, had called to pay his respects to Mrs. McIver and family, and extend his condolence to the officers of the Institution in its bereavement and loss, and State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. Y. Joyner, who had only last, (the night before) reached Greensboro from his mountain trip. Dr. Carlyle being requested by Dean Foust made a few remarks to the students, full of sympathy in the loss and of encouraging hope for the future work. He assured those present that the very best way to show an appreciation of the greatness of the founder and father of the college would be to keep up his high standard of excellence in all that made for Christian character and honest work.

Superintendent Joyner then made a touching and eloquent talk to the students, being plainly so full of grief himself, his words of consolation and of encomium were made doubly impressive by the personal struggle to control his feelings. His first sentence struck a chord of sympathy from every pulsing heart of the vast audience of noble, blessed women present, when he began by saying, "I do most need comfort in this dark hour, to try to speak a word of comfort and courage to you of our dear departed, he was your President; he was my friend; God knit our souls together with a love too sweet to last; too strong, thank God to die."

"He truly gave his life for this work as ever a martyr gave his life for any work on earth and for the same high motives. He had often said to me when I pleaded with him to rest a little here, "I cannot rest until my work is done. My joy is in my work, I had rather do it the best I can and live a little shorter time."

It was true, he could not rest when he saw so much work to do and so little time to do it. Souls like his are too high to live out the three score years and ten allotted unto man, or if by reason of strength such as was his by nature, four score years, if that strength must be preserved by holding back the power that God gave them to elevate and bless the world. He rested not until he found rest prepared of God for souls like his.

"I went with him beyond the seas last fall mainly that I might tempt him to take a little rest which I knew he would not take here. The memory of those long hours we spent together in that pilgrimage of rest beyond the seas remains with me now and shall remain forever the sweetest memory of my life.

He died as he wanted to die—in the midst of the conflict, in the service of his town and people, in seeking honor for his friend. His work and his duty he always put above himself, and was always willing to spend and be spent for them."

State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner, just as he was taking the train for Raleigh yesterday afternoon spoke with cordial approval of the plan to erect a bronze statue to the late Dr. McIver on the campus of the Normal and Industrial College, saying he would cheerfully assist, but he made this very reasonable and suggestive declaration: "Whatever else is done by grateful people to honor the memory of Dr. McIver, I know his will be enough to know that one thing that would please him most would be the establishment of a large loan fund at the College that he loved so well, to aid the young women of limited means in North Carolina to secure the education and the power and the blessing that he gave his life to make possible for them."

Lindsay Roberts and John Pogiesman of the McIver Loan Company, doing business on West Market Street, were served with warrants yesterday morning charging them with collecting money illegally. There was a man with me who says a few days ago brought by a messenger to Greensboro hundred dollars, but the case was compromised. The hearing for the new case is set for the 26th of Sept.

Mr. John M. King has accepted the general Agency for CuestaRay and Co., immense independent manufacturers at Tampa Fla., of Havana cigars. He will have charge of the sales in sixteen states, with head quarters at Greensboro. Mr. King is an experienced and highly successful tobacco man, having represented the American Tobacco Company for many years.

Mr. C. C. McLean, president of the North Carolina Division of the Travelers Association, has prepared and mailed to business men all over the state, a letter committing the T P A of the state, if properly supported by the business interests of the state, to a fight for amendment of the North Carolina exemption laws. It is pointed out that the present laws were passed a long time ago when conditions were very different from those prevailing now. It is charged that they are often a protection and an encouragement to the dishonest man.

State Action for McIver Monument.

Special to Journal:
Raleigh, Sept. 24.—Governor Glenn has issued a proclamation to North Carolinians, calling on them to subscribe to a fund to erect a $15,000 bronze statue to the late President Chas. D. McIver, on the campus of the State Normal and Industrial College. He pays a high tribute to him and appoints the following committee to raise the necessary fund: James Y. Joyner, Miss Gertrude Mendenhall, Mrs. Lindsey Patterson, Francis P. Venable, William P. Osborne, and Josephus Daniels.

Dispensary or Prohibition.

Special to Journal:
Raleigh, N. C. September 24.—This afternoon Judge Webb heard at Chambers a petition for a mandamus to compel the City of Raleigh to call an election on the question of dispensary or prohibition. W. A. Montgomery appeared for the petitioners, Rev. Sylvester Betts and others; while the city attorney W. B. Snow appeared against them and for the city. The Judge ordered the election held. The petitioners say it will be as soon after the regular election as possible, probably about the 7th of December. The city appeals to the Supreme court which will hear the matter next week.

Test Case For Social Precedence.

I. who excluded a member of the navy from a dance because he wore a uniform. The suit is to determine whether a man can be excluded from a public place of entertainment because he wears the uniform of the army or navy. The President says the uniform is a badge of honor.

Jamestown Exposition Appropriation Available.

Special to Journal.
Raleigh Sept. 24.—The council of state this afternoon discussed the matter of the $30,000 which the last legislature appropriated for North Carolina's participation in the Jamestown Exposition, upon condition that the United States appropriated $1,000,000. This has been done. The council decided that the money was not available and so it goes to the credit of the commission up on the books of the state treasurer.

Police Court News.

William Jones, colored, was caught almost red handed in the act of stealing from the cabin of the steamer Adelle Friday. A gentleman testified that he went to the boat and on going into the cabin saw Jones making a frantic effort to escape. A policeman was called and Jones was put under arrest. He was taken before the Mayor and in default of $100 was committed to jail to await trial at the October term of Superior court.

James Fisher, a colored boot-black was bound over to court under $100 on the charge of an assault with deadly weapon. He threw a knife at Ed Chadwick and struck him between the fifth and sixth ribs. The trouble arose over work done on Chadwick's shoes. When Fisher asked for the nickel Chadwick threw mud at him and refused to pay. After some talk Fisher grew desperate drew his knife and threw it viciously at Chadwick, making a painful but not serious wound.

Tenth Bi-annual Report of Board of Health.

[Special Correspondence.]

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 22.—Chairman Simmons speaking with reference to the attitude of Federal office holders in this State towards local politics, said to a reporter today that the situation in North Carolina was somewhat anomalous this year. He said that of course everybody knew that the republican party and its convention has been for a number of years controlled and run by the postmasters, revenue officers and other Federal officers of law and high degree, and that those officials had always been more or less active in behalf of their candidates and against Democratic candidates, but this year he said they were marshalled as an army under the direction of its chief, and presents a front of organized activity never before shown by them in this State. This he said was due to the fact that the President and the Departments of the Government had turned over to the Chairman of the Republican party all Federal officers in his State not under the civil service. To further strengthen on the power of the chairman over these office holders, the Republicans at their recent convention in Greensboro passed a resolution requiring all candidates for Federal positions to file their applications for appointment with the executive committee and to agree in writing to abide by the decision of the committee. This puts every Federal office holder in the State absolutely under the control of the Republican Chairman. He can kill or make alive. Hence the office holders scattered throughout the State, furnish a regular army always at the beck and call of the republican chairman. Whenever he commands they must do or take the consequences. All he has to do is to issue his orders and they must lay aside their public duties if necessary and to obey.

Insurance Commissioner Young announces that a meeting of the two committees which were appointed at the meeting of the North Carolina policy holders of the Mutual Life and New York Life Insurance Companies which was held here on September 12th is called for Friday, Sept. 28th at 12:30 o'clock. The Raleigh schools are now open and it is the report from all of them that the attendance has reached the limit and in several has passed it. The need of more room at some of the colleges is very apparent and within a year's time steps will be taken to meet this need.

A special train with a large party of business men will be in Raleigh on the 28th, spending the day here, the first being to advertise Washington, D. C. The train will tour the South. Newspaper men will be in charge of it, and courtesies will be shown the party here.

During the State Fair there will be perhaps the largest gathering of cotton growers that Raleigh has ever seen. This is called by President Charles C. Moore, of the North Carolina Association, and he will be a speaker and worker as well as President Harvie Jordan, of the Southern Association, and President E. D. Smith, of the South Carolina Association. The best informed cotton men know full well the situation at present and appreciate the difficulty of getting the small farmers in line. There are certain farmers who cannot be held to any agreement, no matter what they may be, unless they see immediate profit in it, and there are some who are suspicious of their best friends. These present the greatest problem to the cotton growers who want to maintain prices. The well informed farmers are fully conscious of the power which could be exerted if there was complete unity, but they know that this is a weak point with the small farmers and the tenant farmers.

Mention has been made of the fact that Governor Glenn yesterday received an invitation from Governor Hayward of South Carolina to have the steamer North Carolina go to Charleston to receive the gift which is promised North Carolina will make to the vessel. The Governor has also received a very pleasant letter of the same tenor from the Mayor of Charleston, who, united with the Governor in saying that all North Carolinians who come will receive a friendly welcome and that the vessel will be in the harbor of Charleston on the 28th of September.
