OBSTACLES NO STOP TO EMIGRA-TION.

A change of home, would seem to imply a change for better conditions. This unless the change be a forced one But if an observation is made of emigrants, it will be found very often that families will more into new countries, when there are hard obstacles to face.

The Canadian section in the far notrhwest is attracting American farmers, who are leaving their homes in this country, to take up a living and residence in this new section, which seems to offer extra inducements to the farmer. The advantages of these unsettled plains of Canada may prove great, when once industry and perserverance have conquered the first obstacles. But in this the outstart of their journey the emigrants are suffering hardships. Reports tell of a thousand of these seekers of newcountry, at present held up by snow and winter conditions, at railroad points, where they are forced to meet the rigors of the climate. Some of these people are already ruined. Others are in pitiable shape, having lost stock and are angry at the immigration autities, who brought them out tions from the international market wer its wires. The futility of such deices is patent. New York and Liverool will be "doing business at the old tand," as the slang phrase goes, and will, be free to manipulate values in the spinner's behalf. The meaning of this freedom will be absolutely plain, whenever a hig crop of cotton happens o coincide with bad trade. In that event, the bears will reap a golden harvest and the farmer will curse his false friends. It is astounding that such a craze should have come during a period of high prices and general prosperity, but these paradoxes are NICK EMMERICE. not uncommon and desire for quack remedies is perennial. The strands of good and evil are inseparably interof their suffering. When I first solt Cooper's New Discovery I did not know that the medicine would remove twined, yet the dream of disentangling them is as old as the race."

The following can only be settled by carrying it out. letter is a fair sample of the symptomit as experienced by an individual thus ffected: "I was always tired. My stomach good. ## STATE LAWS AND OUTSIDE BUSI-NESS.

State legislatures are called upon to enact protective measures for local residents. What is a real protective asure and what may go beyond and prove injurious to industrial and commercial interests, it takes careful consideration to determine. It is but natural for legislators to become prejudiced, and in such a condition to make laws that mean trouble and hardship for those interests that need help.

The Texas legislature has just pass ed what is known as the Mayfield bill. The purposes of this hill were to abollab apocolation in that state. Of this bill the News Orleans Times-Democra CAUD:
