THE DESIRE FOR PATERNALISM.
To the average man of fifty years paternalism is more acceptable than it is to the boy of ten years. Untried and inexperienced youth wears the yoke of strict obedience very ungraciously, and fails to heed physical warnings in the matter of food and drink and rest, as being not merely personally distasteful but as quite unnecessary. The "don't" to youth appears as the attempted barrier to pleasure and individual gratification. It is the riotous gluttony of youth that opposes every restraint, not upon principle, for youth has no distinctive senses that analyze, but upon pure physical grounds is the judgment passed. Is it good or pleasurable for the minute, is the test. The question of after effects has no part in the decision.

For this reason the man of fifty is quite tolerant of paternalism, particularly if the application be such that provides a job that is certain, or gives a shelter even with what would have seemed humiliating conditions years before. Because of individual failure to make money, to gain a fixed and easy competence, does the desire for paternalism gain. Like the youth, who may have suffered through failure to obey, yet can turn to food, shelter and parents' love, so is the age of man who benefits of comfortable surroundings, there is an appeal in paternalism, which may restore him to a situation that at least provides for temporary needs, if it does not yield those things that might be termed luxuries.

Municipal and governmental paternalism too often harbor not those justly entitled to such consideration, but those who gain position through questionable methods. Particularly are "political berths" once secured and held for a time regarded as personal property, and any interference arouses the ire of those in possession. The rightly exercised care of youth will make the home not just a staying place, but the one place that is best on earth. So with the rightly developed citizenship, neither municipal nor governmental paternalism will be abused, but yielded to, will give such security to it is needed and wanted by every man for his greater personal comfort.

THE RAILROADS AND GOOD STREETS.
The order before the board of aldermen of last Tuesday night's meeting, to see that the Atlantic Coast Line comply with the requirements in keeping up Queen street, is one of those regular orders that board after board of aldermen for years have issued against this railroad. The issuance of these continued and oft repeated orders to comply with municipal requirements indicates the indifference of this railroad company towards this city's demands. That the present or previous boards of aldermen have issued orders to the Atlantic Coast Line to comply with municipal laws, has only been after residents along Queen street have been seriously inconvenienced and their property jeopardized by this railroad's tracks as a street obstruction to travel, and as a barrier in the rainy season to drainage. Queen street is not simply an opening in the city through which the Atlantic Coast Line has the entire right. It is a residential and business street. It is a public highway for every kind of vehicle. It is a municipal street upon which every traveler is entitled to full protection, and this protection means safety and the just comfort that should be vouchsafed every person upon a municipal highway. The Atlantic Coast Line has so kept its track that the street is either a dust bed or a series of ponds, according to weather. New Bern has spent $100,000 for paved streets that give certain sections splendid highways. For what the Atlantic Coast Line enjoys in its passage through and protection in this city, it should be compelled to pave Queen street from curb to curb its entire length traversed by the Atlantic Coast Line. Both the property owners on Queen street who have suffered from this railroad's annoyances for years, as well as the commercial interests of New Bern, should unite with the board of aldermen in getting this work accomplished. Good streets movement demands the paving of Queen street. And the Atlantic Coast Line should have it done.

A Handsome Woman
Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eyes, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangement, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal purgatives reveal themselves as a love on the surface. Headache, dark spots around the eyes, sallow skin, a constipated feeling—mean that the bowels and digestive organs are sending help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in a healthy way. They do not merely loosen the bowels but tone up the bowels and regulate their normal function. In girls and women they not only give relief, but they have a beautifying effect. Chamberlain's Tablets are so valued by women of all ages for their ability to cure constipation, indigestion, biliousness, headache, neuralgia, and other ailments. Sold by all druggists. Price 25 cents.

GIVES HIS BLOOD TO SAVE COMRADE
Goes Under Knife for Second Time in Philadelphia Hospital.
Philadelphia, August 3.—Sacrificing another large quantity of his blood in an endeavor to save the life of Daniel Montagne, a hero of the Merrimac, Corporal William Gray, a quartermaster at League Island navy yard, today for a second time submitted to an operation at St. Agnes hospital for the transfusion of his life fluid into the veins of his old shipmate. Dr. William Funtleroy, of the Washington naval hospital staff, sent here by Congressman Richmond P. Hobson, of the Merrimac, handled the knife, assisted by Dr. Charles H. Whitmer, of the local hospital staff.
After the two men had been taken apart and their wounds dressed, Montague immediately showed improvement and is rapidly growing stronger. Gray, while weak, is in good condition and will be sent back to the navy yard in a few days.
Weak women should read my "Book No. 4 for Women." It tells of Dr. Shoop's Night Cure. Tells how the soothing, healing, antiseptic suppositories, bring quick and certain help. The book is free. Address Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Bradham Drug Co.

The Care of Evergreens.
Do not overlook the pruning, or perhaps we would say cleaning, of evergreens, as it consists of little more than picking out the dead branches and twigs. If you open the branches and look into the center of most evergreens you will find a mass of dead twigs and leaves. All this should be cleaned out, and if the plant is not too dense on the outer side you will find new growth start from where you have taken the dead wood. The plants will be much benefited, as it will remove the harbor of injurious insects and disease.—Michigan's Garden Bulletin.

Grim Music.
"On one occasion," said a London actor, "I decided to take a house in the suburbs and after a good deal of hunting about found one that suited my purse. Indeed, it was so excessively cheap, that I was on the point of signing the lease at once, when it occurred to me that I had better take another look at it by gaslight. That night I was making a second tour of inspection and went into the dining room. It was a balmy summer night, and as I threw open the window I heard a peculiar tapping sound.
"Knock, knock, knock."
"I pricked up my ears to listen. There was silence for a moment, and then the noise continued. I turned to the caretaker and inquiringly said:
"See here, my friend, I know why this house is cheap. There's a ghost on the premises."
"Oh, no, sir," he answered by way of reassuring me. "That's only the noise from the coffin factory across the way, sir." He hoots woaks three nights."
He did not sign the lease.
