Drain and Clean off The Fields.

Of things which may be done this fall and winter in preparation for next rear's crop, there is none quite so im-portant as drainage. It is true that all the land may not be drained this winter, but if one hundred acres can not be rained this winter, is that any reason the ten acres which need it mon should not be drained? Or, if not ten, the re, or as much as can be drained, The drainage is the best, but if that possible, is that any good reason glotting the drainage question en-
