SAVING MONEY.

To save money you are not obliged to resort to mi-serly practices, to deny yourself all the pleasures of life but merely to regulate your expenses by so arrang-ing your mode of living that your income will afford a surplus. This surplus it is that you should put in the bank and if you do so regularly, you will soon build up a substantial bank account: We cordially invite savings accounts in any sum from $1.00 upward and checking accounts in any amount.

A WHITE HOUSE JEST.

As a general thing, one of the first duties of the wife of an incoming president and one of the things also usually enjoys heartily is to attend to such rearrangements and refurnishings of the White House as may be necessary or advisable according to her personal taste, the size and customs of her family and so on family, and so on.

I remember one occasion, writes el William H. Crook in the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post, when Mrs. Harrison had finally decided upon some slight architectural changes and had brought her architect's plans to the president and asked his opinion of them. General Harrison studied the drawings with care and noticed that several piches were left, each plainly marked. At last he said:

"Well, my dear, here is a place for Lincoln, and here is a place for Grant's bust. And you have left three places for Vest." Then he added, with well assumed indignation, "I am decidedly opposed to so many monuments to Vest-in the White

Mrs. Harrison hastened to explainwhat her husband, of course, knew all the time-that the word "Vest." was the architect's contraction for vestibule, of which there were three on the plans, whereupon the president said he was satisfied and handed the draw ings back to her, with a twinkle in his keen blue eyes, Shakespeare Censored.

The dramatic censorship in England oday, much as it is abused, is very mild compared to what has been known in former periods when many of Shakespeare's plays have been cen sored. Colley Cibber in his autobi ography tells us of one master of the revels, who was responsible for the licensing of plays in his days, expunging the whole first act of Cibber's adaptation of "Richard III." on the ground that the distresses of Henry VI. would remind weak people of King James, then living in France On another occasion "King Lear" was Inhibited during the Pluess of George III. George Colman when reader of plays banned the use of such words as 'angel" and "heaven."-London Mail.

"Which Carlyle?"

There is nothing to mark the Arch House, where Carlyle was born, in the Scottish viliage of Ecclefechan, from the other lowly dwellings that line the village street, and a native guide wili be needed if the pilgrim desires to find his way to Carlyle's grave; hence the story of the great writer's brother. rant of his identity, they asked him gans, -F. S. Duffy. the whereabouts of Carlyle's grave "Which Carlyle?" "Oh, the great Carlyle, Thomas Carlyle," With unmoved face he gave the information asked and was rewarded with a fine outburst of hero worship. "We have come all the way from America," said the spokesman of the pilgrims, "to lay this wreath on our great teacher's grave." "Ha!" rejoined James, still unmoved. "It's a gey harmless occupation!" All of which, and especially that "Which Carlyle?" goes to show how vain is the search of the man who visits Ecclefechan on the lookout for worshipers of Carlyle,--Argonaut.
