Affects recents appartted from a trunk shows that in the sixties of the last century principals of girls' schools thought they were fitting the girls for society by urging them to retain small walks. Accordingly they offered walks. Accordingly they offered prizes to the girls having the smallest waists. The girls were put through a course of training for reducing their waist measure. The conditions of the contest were that the correct should not be removed on retiring at night and that each pholl must be inspected every morning to make sure she had not loosened her corset. One of the persons who engaged in the contest afterward wrote of it:

"Some of us, tried hard to be permitted to refire from the contest, but we were rebused for stultifying ourselves and accused of making fools of our principals. On the following morning the undergoverness, with her maid, came as usual to superintend the follets, and after satisfying herself that each lace was drawn in to the utmost she fastened it in a knot at the top and, passing the ends through a piece of card, placed her own seal on them, so that any attempt to loosen the corset during the night might be infallibly detected in the morning."-Detroit Free Press.

Winning to Lose. Prince Viadimir Teropakoff, a pendless nobleman, sacrificed his life at Moscow in an attempt to win a strange wager. Count Waldig, a wealthy landowner, made a bet with him that he would not drink a gallon of liquor at a draft. The prince's reward if he accomplished the feat was to be the title deeds of a valuable estate. The prince ate nothing all day with the exception of a salt herring, and in the evening, in the presence of the count and four witnesses, he raised the gal ion far to his lips and drank steadily until he set it down empty. The title deeds of the estate were handed to him, but hardly had he received them when he sank to the ground and died
