New Shoes?

It takes a deal of moral courage for some folks to buy new shoes. Stiff soles and unyielding upper leathers sometimes bring serious foot-troubles in their wake. To many new shoes mean torment for a week or more.

SHORT PASSING EVENTS

SATURDAY.

Up to the present time this week there have been about ten sales of cotton sold on the local market. The average price paid for the staple was 14 cents per pound.

Much interest is being manifested locally in the proposed highway from the sea to the mountains. This highway would take in this city and would be of great commercial value to the citizens of this county.

Several days ago some one broke into the office of the Southern Express Company at Bayboro and stole several gallons of whiskey that had been shipped to lovers of the ardent at that place. The thieves took every precaution not to leave any clue as to their identity or how an entrance was effected and they have not been apprehended.

At a dance held at James City last night one of the dancers, a colored man pulled a razor from his pocket and started in to carve up another negro who was paying too much attention to a dusky damsel with whom the assailant was enamored. Intense excitement reigned supreme for a short while and several of the participants were slightly injured. The negro who wielded the razor escaped and could not be located.

SUNDAY.

There were two minor cases on the docket in the police court yesterday afternoon, but as neither of them was of any importance but a short while was consumed in the session.

Much fertilizer is still being shipped out of this city by the local manufacturers. It is not at all an unusual thing to see several boat loads of this product lying at our docks ready for shipment and numerous wagon loads are being carried away each day.

Late yesterday afternoon one of the Norfolk-Southern shifting engines ran into and killed a horse belonging to one of the band of Gypsies who are encamped out on Willett's farm. The animal

Doctors Said
Health Gone

Suffered with Throat Trouble

Mr. B. W. D. Barnes.

Mr. B. W. D. Barnes, ex-Sheriff of Warren County, Tennessee, in a letter from McMinnville, Tennessee, writes: "I had throat trouble and had three doctors treating me. All failed to do me any good, and pronounced my health gone. I concluded to try Paruna, and after using four bottles can say I was entirely cured." Unable to work. Mr. Gustav Himmelmreich, Hochheim, Texas, writes: "For a number of years I suffered whenever I took cold, with severe attacks of asthma, which usually yielded to the common home remedies. Last year, however, I suffered for eight months without interruption so that I could not do any work at all. The various medicines that were prescribed brought me no relief. After taking six bottles of Paruna, two of Lascopa and two of Manalin, I am free of my trouble so that I can do all my farm work again. I can heartily recommend this medicine to any one who suffers with this annoying complaint and believe that they will obtain good results."

MAKING LONDON A GREAT PORT

$12,000,000 For Increased Water Area and Dry Docks.

London, April 24.—The improving of the port of London under the act by which the government took over all the great docks and vested them in the control of the Port of London authority is about to begin. The undertaking will occupy years and will place London on an equality with Liverpool, Southampton and other ports in respect to modern equipment.

Work will start on the South Albert dock, which will cost nearly $12,000,000, and accommodate the largest ships afloat or projected. The entrance lock will be 1,000 feet long, 110 feet wide and a capacity depth of water of 48 feet. The entrance will be 850 feet long and may be extended by a caisson. The water area will be 65 acres.

There will be a new drydock 1,000 ft. long, 110 feet wide and 13 1/2 feet deep, corresponding practically in accommodation with the entrance lock. It is proposed to straighten the Thames river just below the Pool by moving some of the present docks from the north to the south side of the river, thus shortening the river passage.

Mrs. Shepherd Was in Bad Shape When She Could Not Stand on Her Feet.

Durham, N. C.—"I am a farmer's wife," writes Mrs. J. M. Shepherd, of this city, "and have a heap to do."
"Four months ago I could not stand on my feet, do anything much, but at this time I do the most of my work. I took Cardui and it did me more good than all the doctors."

"You don't know how I thank you for the Cardui Home Treatment. I wish that all women who suffer from womanly trouble would treat themselves as I have."

BAFFLED THE INDIANS.

An Old Army Paymaster's Safe That Was Apache Proof.

Years ago in the west, when the government sent out safes for the use of its army paymasters in remote districts, it was the custom for the paymaster in cavalry service to ride in an ambulance with the safe, escorted by a guard of six mounted men.

On one occasion such a guard was attacked by a large force of Apache Indians. Two men were killed, and the Indians captured the ambulance with the safe. This safe contained about $5,000 in greenbacks, and it weighed some 400 pounds and had a combination lock.

Now, the Indians in question had never seen a safe at close quarters until this one happened along, but they knew that it contained money; also they wanted that money.

They first pounded off the knob with stones, under the impression that the door could then be pried open. Their attempt was, of course, a failure. The next step was to try their tomahawks on the chilled steel in the hope that a hole might be cut in it. This means, too, proved of no avail, so they determined to try fire. Accordingly, they gave the safe a three-hour roasting. Luckily for the government, it was fireproof. They threw big rocks upon it while it was hot, but they were as far from the money as ever.

Next the Apaches dragged the safe up the side of a mountain and tumbled it over a precipice 200 feet high. They expected, of course, to see it burst open, but the only damage was a slight injury to one of the wheels. The safe was left soaking in the river for three or four days, and great was the Indians' disappointment at finding themselves still baffled.

Then they tried gunpowder; but, knowing nothing of the art of blasting, they brought about an explosion that burned half a dozen warriors and left the safe none the worse.

The Indians worked over that safe off and on for a month or more, but failed to get at the inside. Finally, in disgust, they left it in a deep ravine.

Fourteen months later, when peace came, the army accidentally found the safe. It was lying in the bed of a creek with a great pile of driftwood around it. It was a sad looking safe, but when opened showed its contents intact.—Harper's Weekly.

"Catgut" From Silkworms. Probably but a small percentage of the fishermen who use flies strung with fine translucent "catgut" are aware that the almost unbreakable substance that holds the hooks against the fiercest struggles of the struck fish comes from silkworms.

The principal center of the manufacture of this kind of catgut is the island of Procida, in the bay of Naples, but most of the silkworms employed are raised near Torre Annunziata, at the foot of Vesuvius. The caterpillars are killed just as they are about to begin the spinning of cocoons, the silk glands are removed and subjected to a process of pickling, which is a secret of the trade, and afterward the threads are carefully drawn out by skilled workers, mostly women. The length of the thread varies from a foot to nearly twenty inches.—Scientific American.

FOR COMPLICITY IN DYNAMITING

Los Angeles Times Building, Noted Labor Leader Arrested In Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 24.—Charged with being in the plot leading to the dynamiting of the plant of the Los Angeles Times in Los Angeles last October and with having a connection with the dynamiting of the Llewellyn foundry, also at Los Angeles, John J. McNamara, Secretary and Treasurer of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Association, was arrested here Saturday night.

A requisition for his return to California was honored by Gov. Marshall. Armed with it and with the indictments against him, Indianapolis detectives, accompanied by James Housie, a Los Angeles detective, took charge of McNamara at the international headquarters of his union. Apparently the visit of the officers was a complete surprise. McNamara was hurried to the police court where a special session was called for the purpose of disposing of his case; so that the California authorities could get away from Indianapolis without delay. Judge James Collins, presiding, asked the prisoner if he was John J. McNamara, named in the indictment and in the requisition.

"I am," said McNamara from a bench where he was seated surrounded by officers.

"Is he the man you wanted?" asked Judge Collins of Detective Housie. The latter replied in the affirmative. McNamara was informed of the nature of the charges. He was not asked by Judge Collins regarding his guilt or innocence.

With a detective at each elbow McNamara advanced toward the Judge and stated that he had not received an opportunity to be heard in his own behalf.

He insisted that no time had been allowed to employ an attorney to consider the requisition.

He declared that he wanted an opportunity to defend himself before any further action was taken.

Judge Collins informed him that he could do nothing but turn him over to the California authorities under the circumstances, as it was not within his jurisdiction to determine whether or not there was evidence to prevent his extradition.

Without any further parley the detective hurried out of the building with their prisoner, who was handcuffed to Housie.

VIENNA DEATH NOTICES.

They Read Like an Extract From a Family History.

"Don't die in Vienna. You'll be sorry if you do," writes an American on his first visit to that city, "not because of the usual objections, but on account of the death notices in the papers. They appear flanked by all sorts of ads. and range in size according to the desire for notice on the part of the family of the late lamented. Every possible title is mentioned, and the name of every member of the family goes to make up the notice. A death announcement black bordered and covering half a page of the paper is nothing unusual. Here is a sample:

"Bruno Welss, purveyor of lubricating oil to his imperial and royal majesty, and his wife, Amalie—born Horstizky—in their own and in the names of their children—Hans, Otto, Miona, Laura and Hilde—and their sons-in-law, Military Surgeon Dr. Lols Krobinoky and Architect Oskar Zellinek; their daughters-in-law, Louise, born Lederman, and Marie, born Anspancker, as also in the names of their grandchildren—here follows a long string of names—and their mother and mother-in-law, Frau Ernestine Winkler, relict of Commercial Councilor Anton Winkler, announce to their friends the entrance into eternal rest, after a long and severe illness, of their dearly beloved son, Arthur, in the twenty-sixth year of his age."

"This is correct except as to the names."—New York Tribune.

Tune of the Engine.

Engineers, both locomotive and stationary, judge of the condition of their engines largely by their "tunes" when running. Every engine has a tone of its own, and an experienced engineer with bandaged eyes could unhesitatingly pick out an engine to which he was accustomed. As a locomotive roars along the rails the engineer is always listening, though subconsciously, to its familiar tune, and if there comes the slightest discord or if the tone changes he knows instantly that something is wrong and makes an investigation at the earliest opportunity. He may have no ear for music, but the change in the tone of his great machine will be at once noted.—Exchange.
