THE ASSUMPTIVE I.

A jellyfish swam in a tropical sea. And he said, "This world it consists of nal cause Is an inference clean against logical laws.

Again, to suppose, as I've hitherto done.

There are other jell yfish under the sun Is a pure assumption that can't be backed

By a jot of proof or a single fact. In short, like Hume, I very much doubt If there's anything else at all without, So I've come at last to the plain conclusion.

When the subject is fairly set free from confusion.

And he died, with a few convulsive twists.

But somehow, the universe still exists. Divine and profane history is filled with stories of men and women whose self assertion, self conceit, and gross personal egotism have led to their self humiliation and down fall. Holy Writ every where warns of the pride that pre ceeds a fall, and yet human kind, it is not a matter of sex, must learn through and from personal experience, before the warning is understood.

The complete elumination of the ego from any individual, is to be deprecated. Without personality no human being can be attractive or win success. There can be no character except there be individuality, and yet what is more repulsive than this individuality when it grows through self conceit to place itself upon the plane of infallibility. Reaching such a personal altitude of self-assump tion, it is not hard to say, to paraphrase slightly,

"That there may be others under the sun.

Is a pure assumption that cannot be backed," particularly any one sufficiently endowed with sense or ability to be worthy of consideration, much less to be held as a rival.

It is a hard age to preach or point to success except through point to success except through self assumption, the mental and physical forces that domineer through sheer strength, that refuse to recognize any right except not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and the personal force. And yet the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its humility in the form to make man blood, helping the system to do its work naturally.—MRS. Rosa Porrs, Birmingham, Ala. These tablets are self, based upon the divine law rather than upon the gross and material, though the latter might seem to bring greater results,

NEW BERN FIREMEN TAKE FIRST PRIZES.

That sporting query "can New Bern come back," has been fully answered by the record of its vol unteer firemen, at the State Fire men's Tournament at Charlotte this week. It might be truthfully said New Bern never had to con back, for while its volunteer firemen have not been quite as aggressive at these tournaments for several years past, as in years preceding, this full has meant for oth er cities to catch up, in order for

SURPRISED THE HIGHLANDERS

Their Own Ogneral.

Ignorance is not biles on the buttle-field. When the South African war began the Boers, brave fighters though they were, lost many an advantage through almost childish simplicity in the art of war. Mr. Howard C. Hillegas, in his "Boers in War," gives an incident of this trait.

While fighting at Magersfontein a number of youthful Boors, in this their first battle, allowed a hundred high-landers to approach to within a short distance of the trench wherein the Boers were concessed. They then sprang out, calling "Hands up!"

The highlanders, completely surprised, threw down their arms and advanced, holding their hands above their heads. One of the young Boers approached them, scratched his head in perplexity and said to his friends. "What shall we do with them?" After a consultation they allowed the highlanders to return to their column

When the young floers arrived at the Boer langer, laden with the cap-tured rifles, their general asked them why they did not bring their prisoners. The youths looked at each other, and one of them sheepishly replied;
"We did not know that they were wanted." It was not the lads, however, who always made the mistakes. One old Boer, on viewing for the first time a company of highlanders in the dis-tance, refused to fire, insisting that it was a herd of estriches, and he per-suaded all the burghers in the trenches near him that they were ostriches, and nothing but ostriches.

A Splurge Anyhow. "So you employed the most expensive soloists you could find for you

"Yes," replied Mr. Cumrox. "Mother and the girls insisted on it I don't know whether their idea was to show that we do care for art or that we don't care for money."-Washington
