NATURAL ADVANTAGES
MUST BE BACKED UP, LOCALLY.

The Friday night meeting at the court house, brought out some pretty plain talking, as to where New Bern has failed to "make good." What is needed besides being told and pointed out the way, is some rugged work that will open up the way for a Greater New Bern.

The way this city has gone forward, with no co-operative work on the part of a majority of its citizens, proves that the local natural advantages for a city, are most favorable. But these natural advantages have been in great measure neglected. New Bern at the 1910 census should have had a population of not less than 25,000. The geographical situation easily provides for such a population with the increases year after year finding location and employment. The country surrounding New Bern is blessed with soil and climate to raise breadstuffs not only for this population but also for shipment of a large surplus. The forests have wood for manufacturing plants. The fields can raise cotton for mills. Transportation by water highways, lead to interior points, to bring up country products here in the raw state to be manufactured. A great deep water route opens the way for an exporting city, with shipments to foreign ports.

These are but a few of the possibilities that local effort can develop and make real. At present natural advantages are to be found in many sections, but these only become of value when the people offer substantial aid to outsiders to take hold, or by such substantial local co-operation produce development and permanent growth.

The great need today, to bring about this Greater New Bern is for a substantial, co-operative local movement, that will in a short time richly repay every dollar spent out every hour given to the movement.

NEED OF A CITY MARKET.

In this age of progressive sanitation, the products that go into the daily consumption of the people are being scrutinized more and more, as to their freshness when brought to market, and as to the care exercised by the market men when they resell to the local consumer. Not every tradesman has the means at hand to properly protect the perishable goods that he offers daily for sale. There is always sickness, particularly during the summer months, when people have spoiled vegetables, decayed fruit or tainted meat as their food. The fault does not lie with the dealer, altogether, nor is the consumer to be blamed as careless and therefore deserves to pay the penalty.

The law provides pretty generally, that milk and other things entering into the family consumption, shall pass inspection. Local sanitary laws governing food inspection and food protection against flies and weather are safeguards. Not always can these laws be carefully carried into effect, due to various causes.

A city market in New Bern would prove of great local value, both because of the better sanitary arrangements that could be instituted under one roof for a number of dealers, each sharing in the full benefits at a minimum of cost, with all the latest improved safeguards for the preservation of meats, fish, vegetables, fruits and perishable products, to keep these in a fresh state until the consumer would want them. A central city market would mean the saving of time to house-keepers, who would find under one roof the necessary articles for the day's meals, and so be able to quickly purchase what was wanted with a saving of time and effort, besides getting the chance to make selections from stocks that would be fly proof and dust proof. It is no simple matter for the housekeeper to market during the summer months. There are blocks to be traversed, with a range of products to select from, that makes it most difficult, and not all of these market offerings can be kept strictly fresh until the buyer comes. With a city market the inspection work would be simplified, there would be practically absolute sanitation. There would be labor saved every house keeper, and health protection to every consumer.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. ## BUFFALO TONGUES.

The Blackfoot Indians Used to Turn Them Into Hairbrushes.

"Walrus whisker toothpicks and buffalo tongue hairbrushes!" the explorer cried.

And he displayed a packet of black toothpicks tied with a strip of red rawhide and a flat black hairbrush that seemed molded out of rubber.

"These two articles," said the explorer, "are of strictly native manufacture—native American manufacture. Take the toothpicks first. They are made by the Indians of Alaska. The Indians, whenever they kill a walrus, pluck from his face his long and stiff whiskers, cure them and slip them to the Chinese. At every fashionable Chinese dinner you will see the stately mandarins between each course picking their teeth with these walrus whisker toothpicks.

"It's the Blackfoot Indians who use buffalo tongue hairbrushes. A buffalo's tongue is rough. The spines on it make very good hairbrush bristles. And these bristles in a Blackfoot brush don't come out, for the Blackfoot simply skins his buffalo tongue, cuts it in hairbrush shape, cures it, and there you are.

Every Blackfoot in the past had his buffalo hairbrush. But those days are gone—gone with the buffalo herds—and where in the fifties you could buy a good buffalo tongue brush on the plains for a ladle of puppy dog stew I doubt if you could get one now for a keg of freewater."—Washington Post.

Globe Trotters Plus.

A number of tourists were recently looking down the crater of Vesuvius. An American gentleman said to his companion:

"That looks a good deal like the infernal regions."

An English lady, overhearing the remark, said to another:

"Good gracious, how these Americans do travel!"—Lippincott's.

SOLVES A DEEP MYSTERY.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and of rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poison that causes rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at all druggists.

Easily Spared.

Infamous Cruelty to the Ladies. This from the "Personal" column of the London Telegraph:

"Will the fairer of the two ladies who entered the Apsley gate of Hyde park in a landaulet on Sunday at 12:15, who smiled at gentleman riding by cob, kindly make appointment tomorrow through these columns? He earnestly longs to again meet his ideal centaur."

The connection between a centaur and two ladies in a motorcar is not obvious, but we pass over that to protest at the infamous cruelty of a creature who deliberately sets two ladies the task of deciding between themselves which of them is the fairer.—Belman.

THEIR AWFUL SECRET.

It Caused the Real Estate Agent to Change His Mind.

When the family who admitted that they were moving because the tenants at the old address made their lives miserable confined to the renting agent that they had one peculiarity which they wished him not to mention to their neighbors in his building the agent got uneasy and executed a mental quickstep trying to devise some way to break the lease. But aloud he said very courteously:

"I shall be glad to oblige you if I can. What is it you wish me to keep a secret?"

"The fact that we pay our rent promptly on the 1st of every month," said the head of the family. "That was something that nobody else in the other house did, and the agent as an incentive to quick action on our part published the news of our promptness. The only action it stirred them into was persecution of us, and they carried that to such extremes that we had to move. If you will kindly refrain from using us as a club to whack your delinquents into obedience we will appreciate it."

The agent resolved not to cancel the lease, but at the same time he relinquished a hastily conceived plan for procuring prompt remittances.—New York Times.

Music of "The Lost Chord."

The music of "The Lost Chord" was composed under most touching conditions. Arthur Sullivan was watching by the bed of his dying brother, Frederick. One night shortly before death the invalid sank into a peaceful slumber. Arthur, who attended his brother day and night, took the opportunity to read, and it happened that his eyes fell on Adelaide Anne Procter's poem, "The Lost Chord." The verses impressed him greatly, and music appropriate to them suggested itself to his mind. Taking a sheet of music paper, he began to write, and absorbed was he in his task that he set hour after hour working at it until the song was completed. Probably the acute emotional conditions under which the music was composed account largely for the power to touch the emotions which undoubtedly "The Lost Chord" possesses.—George Leon Varney in National Magazine.

A Go as You Please Railway.

The Quest-Etat railway is a standing joke in Paris on account of its slipshod ways. They tell this story of an incident which happened when M. Briand was premier:

A Russian prince was in Brittany and wanted to come up to Paris. He telegraphed to his secretary: "Shall arrive in Paris tomorrow 8 a. m. Don't wait accident to train. See Briand about it." The secretary called on the prime minister, who was most affable. "It is not the general custom of the Quest-Etat to avoid accidents," he said, "but I will ask the director to see what can be done."

The express arrived safely without the smallest mishap, but six hours and a half late, during all which time the Russian prince's secretary had been waiting on the platform.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Speech.

Mr. Lincoln was not the "orator of the day" upon the occasion of the dedication of the soldiers' cemetery at Gettysburg. That honor belonged to Edward Everett, who fulfilled his duties there by delivering one of his elaborate orations that kept him on his feet for more than two hours. It is said to have been a splendid oration, and yet it is clean forgotten, while Lincoln's little speech, prepared on his knee as he was traveling in the car to Gettysburg, is known all over the world.—New York American.

Value of New Ideas.

Some large business firms employ a man whose sole duty it is to read every trade journal, every technical paper or pamphlet, and every magazine in order to get new ideas about the conduct of their business. Such information is laid each day before the heads of the various departments, who in turn pass it down the line to men under them and see that the new idea is tested. By this means each worker is kept in touch with what other men are doing in his particular line, and so his personal efficiency is increased. Almost everything can be done in a manner a little better than the present way, and modern business demands to know and practice the best. Dog-eared carried around a cup to drink water out of till one day he saw a dog lapping water with his tongue. He threw away his cup and afterward drank water out of the palm of his hand. He got from the dog a new idea.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Old Time Senators.

A recent overhauling of a desk in the office of the District of Columbia health officer brought to light a small volume entitled "The Medical Register of the District," which contained a complete list of the senators of the Thirty-ninth congress, giving their weight, height and head and chest measurements. The author of the book, Dr. J. M. Toner, says in explanation of the table:

"It shows that in all the points observed our senators exceeded the average of mankind in all parts of the world as well as the average of our own country."

From the figures given it appears that the tallest senators at that time came from Kentucky, the shortest from New Hampshire and West Virginia. The average height was five feet ten and a half inches, and the senatorial heads, "measured at little lower than the hat is generally worn," showed an average circumference of twenty-two and a half inches. Fourteen of the forty senators were six feet tall.—Washington Star.

NATURAL MEASURES.

The Hand, the Pace and the Cubit of the Scriptures.

The first "natural measurement" to which the memory naturally recurs is the hand, four inches, employed in determining the height of horses. This measure is, of course, derived from the breadth of the palm, and it has become so well fixed in popular esteem that it is unlikely it will ever be superseded.

Another popular natural measure is the pace, and probably every countryman who has had to do with land has used it. The usual method is to stride off, taking as long steps as possible, calling each pace a yard.

A natural measure much employed by a dressmaker is the yard as determined by stretching her chin and her outstretched hand, or if it be a matter of inches she will fold the bended upper joint of her thumb along the cloth. These natural measures are generally close enough to serve all practical purposes.

For many hundreds of years there was employed the measure of the forearm from point of elbow to tip of middle finger. This was the cubit of the Bible.—St. Louis Republic.

Church Theaters.

Few people know that plays in England, Germany, Italy and France were fostered for religious purposes by the church centuries before they were taken up as a separate secular business. Moreover, few visitors to St. Paul's cathedral, in London, realize that that church during Elizabeth's reign and the first years of the reign of James I. set aside one of its adjacent buildings for use as a secular theater. Its little stage was famous, and the company of choir boys as actors presented many of the great plays of Shakespeare's time. They acted from about 1598 to 1608 under the management of Edward Pierce, their great master in music, who as church almoner had business control of these adjacent buildings owned by the church.—London Standard.

No Room For Him.

Several relics of exceptional value and of unusual interest to archaeologists were discovered in a small town near Nuremberg, and as soon as the news reached him the director of the Nuremberg Historical museum went to the village and introduced himself to the mayor, saying:

"I am in charge of the museum at Nuremberg, and I'd like to—"

"You're too late, my good sir," interrupted the mayor. "We've already got here several merry-go-rounds, a bearded woman, a theatrical company composed of apes, a troupe of trained dogs and a band of Hungarian musicians, so you can readily see that we've got no room for your museum."

And with these words he nodded to the director and went away.

Greenland's Exclusiveness.

Greenland, with its icy mountains, is very exclusive, and so far from inviting visitors, it even makes it inconvenient for tourists to land on the little bit of occasionally green land that surrounds its great heart of perpetual ice. Permission must be had from Denmark. Denmark is, indeed, very careful and conservative in the management of Greenland affairs. The trade there is monopolized by the state, and only government vessels are welcomed to Greenland waters. This is to protect the Greenlanders from unscrupulous merchants. The state also fixes both the price they shall pay for food and the price they shall sell at.

HELP FOR THOSE WHO HAVE STOMACH TROUBLE.

After doctoring for about twelve years for a bad stomach trouble, and spending nearly five hundred dollars for medicine and doctors' fees, I purchased my wife one box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which did her so much good that she continued to use them, and they have done her more good than all of the medicine I bought before.—Samuel Hoyer, Folsom, Iowa. ### Clever Man.

With a sigh she laid down the magazine article upon Daniel O'Connell. "The day of great men," she said, "is gone forever."

"But the day of beautiful women is not," he responded.

She smiled and blushed. "I was only joking," she explained hurriedly.—Western Christian Advocate.
