THE SEASON OF CHARITY.

The last month of the year, the season for giving to relative and friend some offering expressive of affection, it is also the season when the poor and unfortunate look to those blessed in material things and fortunate in their surroundings, for some relief. The poor and unfortunate are aways to be found, always needing help, but in this month with its approach of Christmas and all the association connected with that holiday period, charity seems to be more pieces and the chief's machine at a totgeneral and generous, the poor than formerly paid for one horse.
