WELCOME TO OUR GUESTS.

New Bern gives the glad hand to the visitors who will be in our midst today. It recognizes their value to their respective communities and it reckons on deriving benefit for itself from their presence and counsel.

The Bureau of Municipal Research sends out some literature headed "Do you apply efficiency tests to your city administration?"

It is well enough to note that the official name of the new postal service is parcel post not parcels post.

An exchange says, "Charge for the advice you hand out, if you want people to take it."

The earthquake appears to have passed New Bern by. Only the good things befall this town.

RECALL OR SHORTER TERMS?

In view of the discussion about the recall, would not shorter terms answer the same purpose? If you get a bad egg in drawing a public official, the sooner there is an opportunity to turn it loose the better.

A HINT TO THE WISE.

It is hardly necessary to remind the live merchants of New Bern that the parcel post, now in effect, is a golden opportunity for them.

The parcel post makes the cost of transportation a mere trifle. The merchant then simply has to describe his wares in a way to catch the fancy of the prospective purchaser.

Now is the time to solicit the business of the rural dweller through the columns of a newspaper that circulates through the rural districts.

Its subscribers are people whom it pays to reach. They are ready to make liberal use of the parcels post by ordering from the stores that are progressive enough to make a prompt solicitation for their business.

Governor Blease is a mighty busy man. When he can't find anything else to do he pardons a criminal.

There was that inevitable smell of oil about the final speech in the Senate of Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas.

Senator Bailey should have been able to get through with that swan song in less time than four hours. Swan songs to have the desired result should be brief.

JEFF DAVIS. United States Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas died suddenly at his home in Little Rock, early yesterday morning.

SETS GOOD EXAMPLE.

By the Jeffersonian simplicity which he insisted on at his inauguration as Governor of New York William Sulzer set a most commendable example.

With thousands of persons in this country there is a foolish love of ostentation. When they heard of Sulzer's course on the day of his inauguration the folly of their own tastes must have been brought home to them.

Unfortunately men in high places encourage by their examples pomp and display rather than simplicity, and waste and extravagance rather than economy.

One of the remarkable features about the inauguration of the parcel post is that so many people attempted to use it before they learned how.

Craven county needs a jail that will do what jails were intended to do. We understand that the jail has many conveniences and that architecturally it is the superior of most jails.

When the Congressional Money Trust Committee gets hold of William Rockefeller as of course it will, sooner or later, it ought to make a desperate effort to get him put in jail for a substantial term.

Dr. Kilgo criticizes the leaders of the Laymen's Movement and says they go about over the country banqueting on oysters and ice cream.

The Boise Capital News, of Boise, Idaho, published a message from Col. Roosevelt criticizing the Supreme Court of Idaho for a decision barring Progressive candidates for Presidential elector from the ballots.

THE MUNICIPAL DINNER.

There should be many more municipal dinners. That of last night will insure to the advantage of New Bern. It featured the idea of co-operation and that is the supreme need of any city which would forge ahead.

The address of Mr. Daniels was worthy of him and that is evidence that he realized the importance of the occasion to New Bern and its citizens.

The papers and addresses by our local people breathed a devotion to the city and an appreciation of its splendid possibilities that was most welcome.

The Journal ventures to join the officers of the Chamber in extending thanks and appreciation to the visiting speakers.

Maj. Hemphill and Thomas J. Pence, well known newspaper men and the latter the manager of publicity for Woodrow Wilson in the pre-convention campaign and conspicuous also in the publicity work of the pre-election campaign, are mentioned as probable successors to William Loeb, collector of the port of New York, at a salary of $12,000 a year.

SHE GAVE UP ALL HOPE

Physicians Failed To Help Mrs. Green, But She Finally Found Relief in Cardui.

Meets, Va.—Mrs. J. C. Green of this place, says: "I suffered with womanly troubles so that I could hardly sit up. Two of the best doctors in our town treated me, and I tried different medicines, until I gave up all hope of ever getting well."

One day, I decided to try some Cardui. It did so much for me that I ordered some more, and it cured me! Today, I feel as well as I ever did in my life.

The pains and the trouble are all gone. I feel like another person in every way. I wish every sufferer could know what Cardui will do for sick women."

A few doses of Cardui at the right time, will save many a big doctor bill, by preventing serious sickness.

It tones up the nervous system, and helps make pale cheeks fresh and rosy. Thousands of weak women have been restored to health and happiness by using Cardui. Suppose you try it. It may be just the medicine you need.

SANITARY FOOLISHNESS

Idea of health and disease have recently undergone radical changes. Doctor Rosenau, Professor of Preventive Medicine at Harvard, points out how we are rapidly getting over some of our sanitary foolishness in the following article:

"The bad name of the night air was due to the fact that the dreaded malarial mosquito is nocturnal in its habits. Like many another wild animal, it sleeps during the day and prowls about at night in search of its victim. In malarial countries the natives who go out often drape light scarfs or mantillas over their mouth in such a way as to vocer the mouth and nose. They do this in order to filter the 'poisonous' night air. Meanwhile, the malarial mosquito injects its poison through the exposed skin of the forehead and hands."

"Sewer gas has long been needlessly dreaded. It is now definitely known that sewer gas is not the cause of diphtheria, typhoid fever, or any other infectious or contagious disease. It can hardly be more harmful than the similar gases to which a farmer is exposed when he works on his manure pile."

"Since the great work of Pasteur, we have learned: first, the particular germs that are the true causes of most of the communicable diseases, and second, the methods by which these are spread. Moreover, we know how to prevent them. So precise has our knowledge become that it is possible to live unscathed in the midst of a raging plague. During the great epidemic of cholera in Hamburg, in 1892, none of the doctors or nurses contracted the disease, although they were in close contact with it. That epidemic was one of the most severe in modern times; it killed about eight thousand persons, and there were nearly seventeen thousand cases in a few months. It is possible also to protect ourselves against typhoid fever, smallpox, plague, diphtheria, and many other infections."—Board of Health Press Service.

IN RE SLOGANS.

If New Bern has got to have a slogan, we believe it would pay to look a little further and see if a better one than "New Bern New Bern" cannot be found. The combination of words is not particularly euphonious, the syllables not being such as to fall trippingly from the tongue.

The sentiment is not altogether the right one either in our opinion as it seems to imply a degree of disrespect for what New Bern has accomplished in the past. This has been for many years a substantial city and there is no need to apologize for its past.

As to just what good a slogan does a city there seems to be some doubt. We observe for one thing that a slogan is a mere matter of words. What every city needs is action rather than words. With so much to be done to keep up with the march of progress we are not certain that it is a good investment of time to spend much of it devising something to say.

But we are for co-operation and the rule of the majority and if the majority want a slogan and want the one that is just now in the public mind the Journal will co-operate in enabling it to fare forth grandly on its mission.

MORE AND BETTER FARMERS (Philadelphia Record)

The way to cheapen food is pointed out by the head of the Bureau of Soils in the Department of Agriculture, but it is not a road by which we shall arrive.

rive at our destination next year or the year after, and ten years hence there will be more of us, the demand for food will be greater, and even with increased supplies there may be no real decrease in prices.

With all the infinite variety of farm implements and the hundreds of agricultural colleges and experiment stations, the quality of agriculture is not improving at anything approaching the pace of mechanical improvements.

PNEUMONIA

One of the most dangerous of the acute infections of the winter months is pneumonia or inflammation of the lungs, and belongs to those diseases which are very widely distributed.

It seems to be a well known fact that about two-thirds of the cases of pneumonia occur in the winter and spring months. It is most common at the extremes of life, that is, in the aged and in children under five years old.

Nearly all pneumonia is caused by a germ known as "Pneumococcus." This germ lodges and grows in the nose, throat and air passages. It also attacks animals, and is it claimed by some authorities that men can contract the disease from them.

These germs are often found in the discharge from the mouth and nose, and are doubtless spread by dust as they are not killed readily by dryness.

While every precaution should be taken to avoid these germs, the principal preventive measure is to keep the blood and body in a good, healthy condition.

The predisposing causes in primary cases in old age or infancy are bad hygienic surroundings, the impure air of overcrowded, poorly ventilated rooms, bad feeding, and institutional life; and in old people the disease is favored by the diminished powers of resistance and the less perfect expectoration.

Exposure to cold and wet is one cause and this accounts for the greater frequency of the diseases in the cold months. Users of alcohol are especially susceptible to the attacks of pneumonia germs.—Board of Health Press Service.

MAN COUGHS AND BREAKS RIBS
