AN AESTHETIC WIDOW

By M. QUAD Copyright, 1913, by Associated Lit-

Mrs. Abigail Longbody was a woman living in the town of Farmdale. She was a widow. She was almost six feet tall and weighed nearly 200 pounds. The Widow Longbody had a female friend over at Clover Hill, who had become aesthetic. She saw benu-ty in the despised sunflower. She paldtated when she saw catalp growing. She raised her eyes to beaven over burducks and pigweeds. At the first go off the widow laughed about it, but when seriously informed that it was the thing to do she adopted it.

Deacon Tracy, widower, bad bee courting the widow and had almost decided to pop the question. He had dropped in and was just clearing his throat to say something that the world has forever lost when she stopped him

"Deacon, you look like a fright with those whiskers, and I hope you will have them hoed off before you call

"Hoe off these 'ere whiskers!" he exclaimed in amazement. "By gum, but do you know what you're talkin'

"Then for mercy's sake get them dyed! The color grates on me!" "I'd like to see myself feedin' dye to them whiskers! Anything else on your

"You drag your legs when you walk!" "I do, eh? I remind you of an old knee sprung horse, do 17. Waal, 1 kin drug them legs right outer your house and take my whiskers with 'em!" Mr. Johnson, who bought butter and eggs and shipped them away to the city, had also an eye on the widow Longbody. She always entertained him very pleasantly when he called, and he had begun to feel the rose of love blooming in his heart. On what proved to be his last call the widow queried

"Mr. Johnson, why don't you wear a wig?"

"Yes, a wig. You always sit with your legs poked out like a pair of posts. A man with such shanks as yours ought to hide 'em!"

"I have been insulted, woman! I'll leave your house!" "And have your eyebrows thinned out!" was the widow's parting shot.

In front of the widow Longbody's home ran a stream they were pleased to call Plug river. A bridge across it had long been needed and calked of. and the county finally voted it. Every bridge in the country districts has always been painted red. 17 painted at all. It was red for this bridge. The widow was away for three days, and when she returned the bridge was half

"Stop, stop! It cannot be! Il shal not be!" cried the nesthetic. "What's the kick?" asked the man who had the work in charge.

"It screams! It howls! It shricks It murders harmony and kills the landscape! I could not live here a day with that red thing staring me in the face.

She was told that she would have to endure it or move. Aestheticism was all right when applied to sunflowers and buil thisties, but when it came down to red bridges that was a mat-

"Ob, it is, eh?" was answered. "Well. there's another thing that is a matter

Along the western side of the town the widow owned a strip of land which had a hill on it-a bill and a spring. With her free consent the water was piped down from the spring to supply any families and used to sprinkle the streets. When they refused to change the color of the bridge the water refused to flow downbill. The people howled, but they were helpless. After howled, but they were helpless. After a week it was agreed that the aesthetic might name the color. She decided on a pearl gray. After a third of the bridge had been covered she changed it to vivid green. Then she wanted white with green trimmings.

"No more fooling!" was the decision of the taxpayers when they realized that the widow Longbody might final-ly demand that the bridge be covered with gold lenf.

"Very well," replied the woman as she prepared her second surprise. Her husband had opened a street for his own convenience and had never deeded it to the town. People had bought sites and erected houses. They suddenly found themselves fenced in. When they went to the lawyers the le-gal talent bunted the matter up and "If you touch the fence she can have ou arrested for trespasa." The town hated to be benten by a an and was talking about a big lawsuit when along came a lightning rod-man. He was a jim dandy of a man He was a woose from Wooserville. He talked and he woosed and he won In a fortnight he had won the widow's heart and hand. When this fact was rumored the bridge committee called

"Well, what about the bridge?"
"Paint it any old color you want to!"
"And that fence across Kirby street?
"Tell 'em to tear it down!"

And you you are no looper nes

"Not by a darned sight." Jim and I have already settled on corned bee! and emblage for our pridal dianor. Sorry I've had trouble with the town, but you see I was living on water crackers all the time and trying to be the next thing to an angel."

Those Kentucky heroes who saved 6000 fare is of bourbon from the flood evidently do not believe in water for drowning sorrow.
