Suffered Eczema Fifty Years—Now Well.

Seems a long time to endure the awful burning, itching, smarting skin disease known as "tetter"—another name for Eczema. Seems good to realize, also, that Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment has proven a perfect cure.

Mrs. D. L. Kenney writes:—"I cannot sufficiently express my thanks to you for your Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment. It has cured my tetter, which has troubled me for over fifty years." All druggists, or by mail, 50c. (Adv.)

I used them for some time and am now all right." Sold by all dealers. (Adv.)

Good Reason for His Enthusiasm.

When a man has suffered for several days with colic, diarrhoea or other form of bowel complaint and is then cured sound and well by one or two doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, as is often the case, it is but natural that he should be enthusiastic in his praise of the remedy, and especially in this case of a severe attack when life is threatened. Try it when in need of such a remedy. It never fails. Sold by all dealers. (Adv.)

It is easier to check the baggage than it is to check the baggage smasher.

Remarkable Cure of Dysentery.

EARLY SETTLER HERE ON VISIT

LOUIS B. MIDGETTE OF ORIENTAL SEES MANY IMPROVEMENTS IN NEW BERN.

Louis B. Midgette (Uncle Lou) of Oriental, one of Pamlico county's oldest and most respected citizens is in the city for a short visit. Mr. Midgette probably knows the topography of his native county better than any other living man. He, located at Oriental where there was not more than half a dozen buildings in the town and erected a structure which he later turned into a hotel and Midgette Hotel is known all over the State. Every body in that county knows Mr. Midgette and he greatly enjoys his popularity.

This is Mr. Midgette's first visit to New Bern in more than a year and he found many improvements had been made during the interim. Immediately after arriving in the city he called on Colonel James A. Bryan a life long friend and next visited George H. Roberts cashier of the National Bank. After talking over old times Mr. Midgette boarded the street cars and rode from one end of the line to the other then back again over the entire system. He told a Journal reporter yesterday afternoon that he didn't get an opportunity of riding very often and that he wanted to get enough while he had the chance.

While advanced in years Mr. Midgette is almost as active as a man of forty and thinks nothing of working at any task which he happens to have from early morning until sunset. He will return home this morning.

ANOTHER VAGRANT WILL WORK ROADS

BASIN WARD, COLORED, WILL HANDLE SHOVEL FOR THIRTY DAYS.

Basin Ward, a notorious negro who has for years made his habitation in the north western part of the city and who has faced a long succession of Mayors, was before Mayor Bangert yesterday morning on a warrant charging him with being a vagrant. Ward bears the reputation of being able to clear himself of a charge in the police court if there is any possible loophole and he made every attempt to do this yesterday but the evidence was conclusive and a fine of twenty dollars and the costs of the case was imposed. Failing to secure the necessary coin of the realm to liquidate the fine and costs he was sentenced to the county roads for a term of thirty days.

At the expiration of his term on the roads Ward will by no means be out of trouble. When arrested by Policeman A. L. Bryan two half-pints of whiskey were found in his pockets and later two witnesses informed the officer that Ward had attempted to sell them whiskey. An attempt to sell intoxicating liquors is not a violation of the State laws, but it is a violation of the Federal laws unless the retailer has a government license, and when Ward's term expires on the roads he will be taken into custody by the government and will be given an opportunity to prove to Commissioner C. B. Hill that he is not the man who was offering the whiskey for sale.

PRESTER JOHN.
Legends of an Elusive Warrior of the Twelfth Century.

The famous if somewhat phantom personage Prester John, who for two or three centuries occupied so prominent a place in the historic annals of Europe and in the minds of Europeans, was, from the most reliable accounts, a Christian conqueror of enormous power and great splendor, who combined the character of priest and king and ruled over vast dominions in the orient in the middle ages. He had, it was related, established a powerful empire either in Asia or Africa, and wonderful stories were told of his victories, his riches and his power.

His mode of warfare, which was unique and entirely effective, indicates an intimate acquaintance with explosives and combustibles. He possessed an army of life sized copper soldiers mounted on brazen horses, which were charged with explosive materials, projectiles and poisonous gas. This formidable array was marshaled to the front and spat forth its deadly fumes and dangerous projectiles with horrid effectiveness, making havoc in the ranks of the enemy.

The first mention of this extraordinary man, who appears and disappears from historic annals at long intervals, occurs in the Chronicles of Otto, Bishop of Priesengen, who narrates Prester John's conquest of the Persians at Eghanna, in the extreme orient, in the year 1145.—Boston Herald.

CREATING NEW STATES.

Work That Congress May Do, but, Once Done, Cannot Undo.

Several times it has been proposed to make two states out of the state of New York. In fact, resolutions have been introduced in the state legislature once or twice, but have died in committee. The purpose has been to include all of the present state south of Westchester county in a new state to be called (in one instance) the state of Manhattan. North of the Bronx district the name of New York was still to be retained. The surrounding islands of the south—all those of Long Island sound, Long Island complete and all of the counties comprising New York city—were to be embraced within the new state of Manhattan.

The creation of a new state confers a right that cannot later be abrogated and in this respect is unique in the establishment of political areas. After the people of the district in question have decided by vote that the carrying out of a new state is desired, congress passes upon the application. Up to this point congress is supreme. Once, however, congress agrees to the new state creation and the new state becomes an established fact, then no power of the republic can undo what has been done by legislative act. No repeal can revoke the privileges of a law abiding sovereign state.—New York Sun.

Ball a Girl's Game.

Of all the games ball seems to be peculiarly a girl's game throughout the ages. The Roman girls used to strike balls with the palm of the hand to keep them coming or would fling them against the wall to drive them back on the return or would pass the ball from hand to hand in the ring or in a row. The ball of the olden times was soft or hard, as occasion demanded; it was plain with painted or embroidered cloth; it was a hollow large ball or a small light sphere. The Roman poets make frequent allusion to it as a girl's game. It was described as a first sport of summer. One writer observes, "When I saw the girls on the street playing ball then came to our ears the song of birds." The game was a favorite one with youths and maids, who would contend for the ball, that the one who gained it might throw it to the one loved best.—Kansas City Times.

An Artist at Six.

Among painters the prodigy of prodigies was Sir Thomas Lawrence. One of his earliest pictures, it is said, was produced in 1775, quite early enough, for the lovely cherub who painted it was then six years old. He was getting on in life, tottering on the verge of twelve, when the quality crowded his studio at Bath. The fates were kind to the infant prodigy when they made his father landlord of the Black Bull, Devizes, the inn where fashionable men and women called for rest and refreshment on their way to the waters. At the Black Bull the prodigy made his first acquaintance with the great world which flattered him in after life and which he flattered on canvas.—St. James' Gazette.

A Pertinent Query.

The drummer had been bragging about his achievements for a goodly time, and finally the meek little man in the corner piped up.
"Excuse me," he said, "but perhaps you can tell me why you gentlemen are called drummers?"
"Well, why shouldn't we be so called? We drum up trade, don't we?" was the retort.
"I know," said the meek little man, "but the drum is not a wind instrument."—Harper's.

Unchanged.

"That's just like Jim," said the widow, wearily, after a flapping curtain had knocked over the urn in which all that was mortal of her cremated husband had been placed and spread its contents on the floor. "Always dropping his ashes everywhere!"—Harper's Weekly.

WISHED SHE COULD DIE

And Be Free From Her Troubles, but Finds Better Way.

Columbia, Tenn.—"Many a time," says Mrs. Jessie Sharp, of this place, "I wished I would die and be relieved of my suffering, from womanly troubles. I could not get up, without pulling at something to help me, and stayed in bed most of the time. I could not do my household work."

The least amount of work tired me out. My head would swim, and I would tremble for an hour or more. Finally, I took Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I am not bothered with pains any more, and I don't have to go to bed. In fact, I am sound and well of all my troubles."

Cardui goes to all the weak spots and helps to make them strong. It acts with nature—not against her. It is for the tired, nervous, irritable women, who feel as if everything were wrong, and need something to quiet their nerves and strengthen the worn-out system.

If you are a woman, suffering from any of the numerous symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. It will help you. At all druggists.

Wren's Bomb For St. Paul's.
St. Paul's—old St. Paul's—once knew the effect of a bomb that actually exploded. After the great fire it was at first thought that the ruins might be repaired, but too much damage having been done it was decided to pull the fabric down—a task in which many lives were lost. To put an end to the tedious work Wren hit upon the idea of inclosing eighteen pounds of gunpowder in a wooden box and exploding it under the central tower. The result was to lift the arches some nine inches, so that the ruins "suddenly" jumping down made a great heap of ruin in the place without scattering. The architect proudly boasted that his powder box had lifted 3,000 tons and saved the labor of 1,000 men.—London Graphic.

"Celestial" as Applied to China.
Every one knows the epithet "Celestial" applied to China, but few know its origin. According to a very old legend, Tibet is a fragment of a planet once peopled by a yellow race, which in some way became detached and fell on the earth. The dazed inhabitants of the fragment were unprepared and cold and hungry, they made their way toward China, which they peopled. This origin of the Chinese race led to their calling themselves "Celestials," and it is for this reason that the emperor calls himself Son of Heaven. Such, at least, is the legend.—Toronto Globe.

Grandma's Old Friend.
An old lady laughed immoderately at a story told at a dinner in Chicago. The story teller looked at her inquiringly.
