Today's election will decide whether New York City wants to be decent or not.

We regret to say that there is not any too much enthusiasm around here about working the roads.

If the town is to keep on growing we must have more industries. Otherwise we will soon come to a standstill

A contemporary publishes a poem signed "O. H." After reading it we said the same thing.

Of course you can't blame an office holder for not resigning from a good job; he says. it is against human nature to turn bose of a good thing until you have to.

Of course the ones that fail to land go back he will be a good one again. that P. O. job are going to be a little sofe; that's human nature. A $2,800 job is something to be sore about.

Today is election day in many of the States and politicians will watch the results closely to see how the wind is blowing.

We are not worrying much over who is to get the Post Office; we are expecting to get our mail just the same as before:

The roads of North Carolina cannot be made good in two days. The 5th and 6th of this month are set aside for creating enthusiasm more than anything else. We must not stop after working those two days, but the work on a lesser scale must go on con-
