MIXED DATES.
A typographical error in Monday's issue of The Gazette caused quite an amusing incident to transpire aboard the afternoon P. & N. train. A lady passenger requested a copy from the news agent and glancing at the date returned it saying, "I want Monday's Gazette, not Saturday's," and the agent hurriedly ran his eye through the stock on hand, finding that all he had were dated Saturday, July 3. A representative of the paper desiring to straighten matters out, and without looking at the date of Monday's paper, he had finished reading, handed over his copy, only to have the lady discover that also bore the Saturday date and she was about to compromise on a Charlotte News, when the typographical error was discovered and all were convinced we had been reading real Monday news from The Gazette with a Saturday date line.

To safeguard street cars should their poles slip off while crossing railroad tracks a wireguard has been invented that carries current and imparts it to the loose trolley wheels.
