IS IT WRONG?

Statesville Sentinel.

There is no room for doubt as to the need of greater observance of the Sabbath day than is the case today, but we have not fully made up our minds that the people can be legislated into a better moral state or observance of the Holy day.

"As a man is in his heart so is he." It might be possible to pass an observance law that would be as near air tight as our present prohibition laws, but passing a law and enforcing a law is two different propositions.

When the people feel in their hearts that a more rigid observance of Sunday is essential the proper keeping of the Sabbath will follow. If they are prohibited by law and forced to keep within their domicile regardless of their personal views on the question we have our serious doubts as to the Christian benefits their forced confinement would bring.

We admit that the promiscuous practice of joy riding on Sunday is wrong. But, at the same time we are living in an age that is racking on the body and mind of man. We are living during a period when man must travel in "high" rather than in "low" as was the custom in the past. Six days of combat with the elements of business and commerce takes about all the energy that the average human being can generate. A little ride out in the open air on Sunday is a wonderful vitalizer. The diversion and sunshine, with fresh air is a great tonic. It is hard for a man to have a pure mind with low vitality and yet all work, or forced confinement brings on a state of stagnation that will eventually prove a menace to each individual that comes under this category.

We ourselves think perhaps the pleasure derived from a little riding on Sunday will offset the small wrong of some joy riding. However we do not believe that an afternoon in the open air, spent whether that time be spent in an automobile or on foot, is any more harmful than the same length of time spent in enforced confinement or in a state of inactivity, with a long and plodding pace. It may be wrong, but we fail to see it.

MAKING MONEY DO THE WORK.

History Record.

Many merchants and folks who are not merchants for that matter, are given to raving discounts to get by. These folks look at a bill and see that the discount allowed is only something like two per cent, for instance, and they think that it is not worth accepting, or earning. Well, it does not sound very large, but it looks large when it is worked, and it is a fact that many large institutions earn big dividends by meeting their obligations promptly and accepting discounts in return therefor.

This table was prepared by a man who knew a discount when he saw it, and his plan of accepting discounts within the time allowed has put a pretty wal in his jeans. It might be just as well to put it in file and see that it is worked out to your profit. Says the table.

No Eels For Him.

A neighbor bought a wonderful country home and set about making it even more wonderful according to his own ideas. One of his suggestions was a fish pond which should contain eels.

"But you can't keep eels in a pond," objected the neighbor to whom he had confided his plan. "They have to go down to the sea every year, you know."

"Well, I won't have 'em!" gasped the professor. "I always takes the missus and kids every year, but I ain't going to take no eels."
