

Modus Operandi
So calculated his movements,
That he could repeat the same
With much of the song in his Mind as he pleased.

Modus Operandi
So calculated his movements,
That he could repeat the same
With much of the song in his Mind as he pleased.

Innocent

Most posture of persons may not be about self.

Wife
What makes you this size?
Reading from the pocket, "I see I see in mine packages, mine
I have never been outside of mine."

Extra for the Color

"I am not mother and I do not want any more children, so you must be out there soon. All the time I have had."

Friends
Friends pay us and they are indeed a joy to us.
Friends and friends and friends and friends.

That's Different

Deceitful talk always, it is the same in all cases, and it is the same in all cases.

Friends
Friends pay us and they are indeed a joy to us.
Friends and friends and friends and friends.

Overdue

"My wife seems to be still away from me, but I am still here.
I am still here, but my wife is still away from me. This is now that I am still here."

Heartlessness

"People came for miles to see me play 'Hamlet,'" said Mr. Stratford-on Avon.

"Quite true," answered the heartless manager. "But you have no idea how many of them said the ride was the best part of the entertainment."

RESIGNATION
If you feel your life is over again you probably made the same mistake."

"Probably. And if I did, were some other worse dried doltiness turn out the same?"

Police

The poor police eyes us doubt
And he can't prove us out
But I will show to him, and when He hasn't got us out.

Complicency

"Your speeches are shorter than they used to be."

"The audience likes less that who replied Senator St. Gaudens, and so do I. They like me—make no applause as well as noise by the hand."

His Opinion

"What's your opinion of golf?"
I'll tell you. If I had credit as good to join the details of my best messes I may play that game. It would be a great misfortune, however, to play by myself."

Might Please Wives

"Next should pass a law to prevent them from kissing our wives."

"It might be a good thing at that."

"Many men would immediately start to breaking the law."

Table Psychology

"You can tell the disposition of those two by the dessert they are eating."

"How so?"

"Don't you see one is eating jello cake and the other deviled ham?"

Hobson's Choice

Accepted Suitor: Won't you be glad to have me for a brother, Dorothy?

Six Year Old: I don't know, but I suppose it's the best I can do, since papa won't let me have a dog."

Not So Now

"Do you believe in an elastic currency?"

"I want mine elastic enough to stretch from one pay day to another anyway."

Preferred Quality

"They tell me that young Simpson who visits your daughter is a young man."

"That may be, but I wish he were a going one too!"

A Matter of Course

"This is no case in her favor."
She did. It rose when every one expected, and there was the war to follow.

CHARACTER TOLD BY HAND

Charles Schwab Can Afford to Disregard Appearances, but Not So the Average Man.

Charles Schwab, the steel king, was pictured recently in the feature section of a New York newspaper wearing a pair of ragged, decrepit-looking gloves. To every appearance they might have been a little token to the magnate from the ashtray. Beneath the picture was an explanation by Mr. Schwab that he had "worn these gloves for over a year."

"Duty soiled ugly gloves?" And yet Charles Schwab, one of the greatest industrial lords of the earth, proudly boasted how long he had made them wear.

Mr. Schwab's boast doesn't ring sin-cere. He probably would not advise one of the rising young executives of his company to wear old gloves or soiled gloves. On the contrary, he likely would call down that young executive for doing exactly what he has bragged about.

Mr. Schwab can afford to wear those gloves. If he wanted to he probably could wear green golf knickers to work, and get away with it. But the rest of the world, exclusive of Mr. Dempsey, Mary Garden, Babe Ruth, and other prima donnas who have "arrived" so speedily in their respective careers, must watch its step.

A noted American psychologist recently said that he could tell more about a man by his hands than any other physical factor. Our faces are our gifts, and so are our feet; likewise, but we make up our hands.

One look at a man's hand gives you an instant idea via this character. If he has soiled and dirty hands it is the kind of action who does things? Does one shake hands? Is he nervous? Or does he extend his arm with a vibration of clapping fingers?

What do his gloves look like? Do they show signs of a continual escape position? Thus indicating his soft, sweet, sweet, or any other sign of morality?

Would he be so simple as to finger his gloves? You're a nice boy, but you're not so nice.

He indulges in a bit of gambling?

He indulges in a bit of gambling?

In spite of these many many men who are otherwise scrupulously particular about their personal appearance never grow a bit perturbed upon noticing that their gloves look like a fast summer's bird's nest.

Debts That Need No Payment.

English law does not recognize gambling or betting debts, as a general rule, although there have been exceptions. More peculiar is the fact that a barrister cannot sue for his fee. Most other countries have the same practice with regard to gambling debts as ourselves. Venezuela is one of the very few states in which such debts are collectible by law. In Holland you cannot sue for a bet made upon cards, but you can for one on a horse race or any similar outdoor sport. In Sweden a physician cannot sue for his fee, while in Belgium a solicitor is in a similar position. By Chinese law, not only the doctor, but also the priest, the fortune teller and clairvoyant are without legal remedy. All these debts are, however, bound upon as "debts of honor" and payment is rarely evaded. The same sort of idea with regard to debts of honor holds good everywhere else and, absurd as it seems, a man who fails to pay a gambling bet of $50 is in a far worse position socially than another who goes through the bankruptcy court. France's way of treating bankruptcy differs from ours. There a bankrupt is deprived of all rights of citizenship, which are not restored to him until he has paid his debts in full.—Montreal Family Herald

Interesting Altitude Test.
A Lieutenant of the French aviation corps recently successfully subjected himself to a test to determine whether or not life could be sustained at 42,000 meters, 13,800 feet, or about seven and one-half miles altitude, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Entering a large Wright cylinder, the signal to start the exhaust pump was given. At a pressure corresponding to an altitude of about 13,500 feet (two and one-half miles), the experimenter was compelled to resort to specially designed mask and an oxygen tank. At about 30,000 feet (five and three-quarter miles) observers noticed that he seemed to experience difficulty in moving his limbs. This is an experience reported by all aspirants to the altitude record. To a figure corresponding to the height of about 34,000 feet (six and one-half miles) the subject closed his eyes as though weary. As the barometer touched a figure equal to a height of 39,360 feet, the trial was stopped and air slowly admitted to the cylinder that there might be no disastrous shock.

Petroleum

Kansas ranked third in the production of petroleum in 1918, according to a publication of the United States geological survey. Just off the press, received by J. C. Mohler, secretary of the state board of agriculture, California ranked first and Oklahoma second. The production of Oklahoma was given as 103,347,970 barrels, California 97,531,997 barrels and Kansas 45,451,017 barrels. The increase in petroleum products was much greater in Kansas than in any other state, amounting to a gain of 8,914,892 barrels, as compared to 6,395,740 barrels in Texas, 4,650,400 barrels in Louisiana and 3,654,447 barrels in California. The report shows a falling off of production in Oklahoma in 1918, as compared to 1917, of 4,160,401 barrels.

10¢

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE CELEBRATES ITS SEVENTY-SECOND ANNIVERSARY

CHICAGO.—The Chicago Board of Trade is celebrating its seventy-second birthday. Members of the association which was formed by a handful of merchants in 1848, bought and sold during the last year nearly 400,000,000 bushels of "rush" grain, grain on the track or in the terminal elevators ready for immediate delivery.

"This does not include dealing in contracts for future delivery, where 'hedging' facilities provide insurance against loss through transportation or other obstacles," says John R. Mauff, secretary of the Board. "Without helping facilities, the American grain grower has never faced such a situation. The Board has, every day for over seventy years, provided a market for the farmer, or, rather, the Board itself, has provided a market for the farmer, either buys or sells grain. It is the result of the private, world-wide, yearly gathering meeting place for grain dealers, which they must operate."

machinery in the world. When wool prices tumbled there was also lately no market for wool. But through the Board the American grain grower has never faced such a situation. The Board has, every day for over seventy years, provided a market for the farmer, either buys or sells grain. It is the result of the private, world-wide, yearly gathering meeting place for grain dealers, which they must operate."

Phone 286

117 South St.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE GASTONIA DAILY GAZETTE

A Big Drop in JELL-O
2 packages
2 for 25¢

The Genesee Pure Food Company,
Le Roy, N.Y.

THE GASTONIA MILL SUPPLY COMPANY

SERVICE

Dodge Steel Pulleys,
Pioneer Steel Hangers,
Leather and Rubber Belt,
Packing, Lamps, Hose.

Shake Hands with this Big Taste!

Pete Van Doren used to be a regular bad side for gambling tobacco over his leather counter. He has smugly left the city to Sweet Orange and is the great snuggler.

Sweet Orange

—Tuck a pinch into your snuggery.

—Get that Big Taste!

—Sweet Orange snuggles into your cheek comfy-like.

—Juicy. Fruity. All day long.

—One package calls for another.

AT LAST—fresh tobacco!

The original Sweet Orange Cigarette is fresh and tasty. See no extra FLAVOR. For FLAVORED Wrappers, pull out the 15, 1920.

It's just that good!

LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.