SHORT LOCAL ITEMS

—Misses Agnes Baker and Evelyn Gettys, of the Girls Club, spent the weekend in Charlotte and Rock Hill, respectively.

—Will Warren, Gastonia's most popular man, is out on the streets today after a siege with the grip, or nearly that is prevalent in Gastonia at present. Many people are reported on the sick list.

—Community sings, Sunday school convention, American Legion meeting (venue attraction and several lodge meetings call for a full week of activities in Gastonia for the coming week.

—Mr. L. N. Spears, a prominent attorney of Chattanooga, Tenn., spent Saturday and Sunday at his sisters' (law, Mrs. J. W. ... Mrs. Matie S. Anderson, H. ... night for Philadelphia on a train.

—The play, "Better Than Gold," will be given tonight in the Raleigh school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock for the benefit of the Raleigh Concert Band and the Boys Baseball Club. The public is invited.

—Everybody who has a bit of ground around his house is digging in it these warm spring days. Garden making is in full force. Many have planted potatoes, radishes, lettuce, beets, and some have even planted beans and early corn. You can't keep out of the dirt these days.

—Mr. Roger Grier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon G. Grier, arrived Saturday night from Seattle, Wash., where he received his discharge from the Navy after a service of two years. He was with a survey boat and spent a considerable portion of his two years in Alaskan waters.

—The regular meeting of Gastonia Commandery, No. 28, Knights Templar, will be held Tuesday night, March 8th at 7:30 o'clock. Officers will be elected and the Knight of Malta degree conferred. There will also be special music by the Knight Templar choir. A full attendance is desired.

—Mr. W. L. Balthis returned this morning from Washington, where he has spent the past few days with Mrs. Balthis, who is in a Washington hospital for treatment. She underwent a serious operation Saturday, but rallied well and is getting along nicely, said Mr. Balthis. She will not be home for several weeks.

—Marion sent Irving off with a whoop and a hurrah. Raleigh welcomed Daniels home with a popular demonstration—why can't we send Bulwinkle off with a big demonstration when he leaves here in April? was the question asked this morning on the street. Bulwinkle is just as much to Gastonia and Gaston county as Harding was to Marion and I for one say let's do something big for him when he goes to Congress in April.

—Major B. F. Ristine, U. S. A., spent Saturday here with Capt. Stephen B. Dolley inspecting the recently organized Guard Guards. Major Ristine was the guest of the company at the Armington Hotel during his stay. As a result of his inspection it is altogether likely that the local military company will receive Federal recognition and support. Major Ristine found here the largest percentage of attendance in the State. In the afternoon he was driven over the city and suburbs by Mr. W. T. Rankin and was most favorably impressed with Gastonia.

—General Tribune, local police Thursday arrested here J. H. Davis, wanted in Charlotte and Gastonia for "check flashing." The man passed one worthless check here, but paid it back, and no warrant was issued here. He will be turned over to the Charlotte police, and taken there for trial. It is stated that he passed four checks in Charlotte and one in Gastonia, for a total of about $50. The man has relatives here, and had been visiting them. He was arrested on West Depot street Thursday afternoon.

—Congressman A. L. Bulwinkle returned Sunday from Washington, where he has spent several days attending the inauguration and getting himself beat. Major Bulwinkle will live at the Hotel Driscoll, very near the capitol. Speaking of the inauguration, the Major said: "That amplifier used to carry Harding's message is one of the most wonderful things I ever saw. A crowd of 150,000 people heard his speech with an ease. There are two carloads of machinery in the apparatus. It was underneath the stand from which Harding spoke. The special session of Congress will convene early in April.

—Cleveland Star: Judge E. V. Webb this week appointed Hon. Stonewall Durham, of Gastonia, district attorney for the Western district of North Carolina, which position he will fill until his successor is chosen. Mr. Durham is already district attorney, having been appointed by President Wilson last fall, but his term expires today upon the inauguration of President Harding. His successor, who will be a Republican, has not been appointed and perhaps will not be for some time so Judge Webb had the authority to appoint in case of emergency. Mr. Durham's appointment last fall was never confirmed by the senate.

—Lincoln County News: Mr. D. Ward Milam, evangelistic singer, composer and choral director, who has been spending several days in this city with Mrs. Milam, has been secured by Presiding Elder Jordan, to teach singing to the young preachers at Rutherford College. He left for Rutherford College Wednesday to begin this work extending over several weeks. Mr. Milam will go to Raleigh Saturday to take part in the big home coming celebration on March 6, in that city in honor of Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Josephus Daniels. Mr. Milam has been invited by the Raleigh committee chairman to lead in the big mass singing in the Raleigh auditorium. This celebration is to be State-wide and large numbers are expected in Raleigh on the 6th for the Daniels' home coming.

WHAT A KINDERGARTEN WOULD MEAN TO GASTONIA

(Written for The Gazette.)

Few people who have not come in direct contact with kindergartening think of it as a science. Yet a science it is, and none the less so because it deals not in the three R's but the three H's—head, heart and hand. It is, moreover, a science already developed to such perfection that its salient features can be set forth in a few brief sentences.

The most forceful of these are: First that it is the beginning of education, and not wholly in the most obvious meaning of these words, but also in many subtle ways which any mother can tell you of two weeks after her child's initiation into kindergarten work. Second, and even more important than this, is the fact that kindergartening is training for citizenship in the sense that every kindergarten is a democracy in which the mental and physical activities of the individual child are directed toward the good of the group. The freedom of action and development noted in kindergartens is just what the world implies: freedom, pure and simple, and not, as it is sometimes mistakenly called, license.

That is to say, no more and no less than liberty in so far as it does not interfere with the freedom of others. Closely allied with this principle is the fact that children are taught to use initiative learning themselves to solve the little problems that arise during the course of each day and are trained, furthermore, in leadership, in accordance with the degree in which each manifests an aptitude for leadership.

The early inculcation of such principles as these in the mind of a child is of a value in his after development that most be readily apparent to all. Yet the benefits derived by children from kindergarten training are by no means wholly along these lines. The kindergarten pupil emerges from his first contact with systematic education with firmly implanted ideas of his more purely social obligations in life. Though the world itself may be yet far out of his reach, he has already made his first steps in the practice of hygiene, through such simple lessons as the need of clean hands and teeth, and so on. He has been trained in courtesy in dealing with those of his own age as well as with his elders; in table deportment, through small lunches arranged in the school room; in response to and appreciation of music through songs, and in language, through hearing and reproducing stories and poems. And he has acquired facility in the use of his hands through the making of various objects needed in play—doll furniture, valentines, Easter baskets and the like. Such activities as these are also important in their encouragement of originality and imagination in the child's mind.

That anyone observing the quick unfolding of a child's understanding and the rapid broadening of his interests under the stimulation of kindergarten training can hesitate to support the need of such an institution in every community is inconceivable. Gastonia, we are sure, will welcome the addition of this system to its educational facilities and further in every possible way the plans for its introduction, which are already well under way.

Mr. J. L. Beal received a telegram this morning stating that his father, Mr. J. B. Beal, was quite sick at Kissimmee, Fla., where Mr. and Mrs. Beal, senior, have been spending the winter. No particulars have yet been learned regarding Mr. Beal's illness.
