THE TEACHER AND THE PUPIL.

If a boy or girl comes from the right sort of home, is surrounded by the proper influences in the home, and is taught the obedience and the respect to superiors that is their right, that boy or girl will give no trouble in the school room. In the first place, he will come to school with his lessons prepared. If, for some reason or other, he fails in the assignment for the day, he will receive the punishment or rebuke prescribed by the teacher without a word of complaint or trouble of any sort. If, on the other hand, he comes from a home where he is accustomed to having things his own way, where the father assumes no authority or supervision, and the mother is unable to, where he is used to doing as he pleases, when and where and as long as he wishes, there's going to be trouble, and the teacher will more than likely get the blame for failure to understand, or to co-operate.

When a teacher stands before a room full of boys and girls, she can tell within one hour the type of homes from which the children come. There are numbers of ways by which they know. Many children come to school from a home where they are allowed to do absolutely as they please. If they want to prepare their lessons, they do. If they want to play or go to the movies, they do that thing, and the parents allow them to have their own way. When a child like that comes to a schoolroom and attempts to inaugurate a program of that sort in the little community over which the teacher rules, there is going to be trouble, just as surely as there will be trouble in any organized society when offenders and criminals take the law into their hands. There must be law and order in the schoolroom just as certainly as there must be in the state. And the offender must be disciplined, or anarchy will result. In a room of 40 pupils, the teacher is faced with 40 different and distinct individualities. There are forty homes represented, forty standards of living and conduct, forty codes of obedience, forty fathers and mothers to please. It is obvious that she cannot set up a separate standard for every one of the forty. There must be one impartial and just rule for all and all must measure to this.

If every one of those forty children are taught in their homes respect for elders, and obedience to superiors, along with a generous admixture of the old-fashioned, but never-failing remedy of hokery tea, there will never be any trouble in that schoolroom.

IS THIS THE REASON.

We fear the Solicitor has taken to him self more than was due him. There was no intimation, directly or indirectly, in the editorial remarks of Wednesday's Gazette, that he was responsible for the delay in bringing certain cases to trial. It is a known fact, however, that the laxity of the courts is woeful. We do not profess to know the cause or to assign the reason therefor. It is a fact generally known that many cases are continued from one term to another by reason of the merest technicalities of the law. More often these are chargeable to the defense rather than to the prosecution.

We were talking to two lawyers the other day and asked them their reason for this practice among their profession, the habit of allowing cases, that involve great moral questions, to go untried, hanging over from one term to another. "Why," said one, "if you haven't got a good case for your client, find some legal technicality, and if you can get the solicitor to agree, continue it until the next term."

"When it comes up then, what do you do?" was the question asked. "Continue it again, if you can," was the reply. "And if you keep on postponing it, it will finally die out."

THEY DON'T ALL LIVE IN PORTLAND.

Out in Portland, Oregon, they have a Franklin club, whatever that is. A speaker was telling them about themselves the other night, and he used the accompanying argument. Henry Grady originated it years ago, and it was one of the things that helped to make him famous. He applied it to Georgia farmers who had in the '80's, but the sense of it is equally as true nowadays. In some, nay, many Southern communities.

It reads: "Some of us Portland people get up at the alarm of a Connecticut clock, but ten or our Chicago suspenders to our Philadelphia pants, wash our faces with Cincinnati soap in a Pennsylvania basin; sit down to a Grand Rapids table; eat Nebraska bacon and Chinese eggs; spread our toast with Australian butter or eat rolls made of Wisconsin flour and Kansas lard; walk out of a house plastered with a Scotch mortgage; ride downtown on a Detroit jitney; do business with money borrowed from the East; advertise with printed matter produced in San Francisco; traverse streets bounded by New York capitalists; at bedtime read a verse from a Boston Bible; say a prayer composed in Jerusalem; crawl under a New Jersey blanket, and are kept awake by the yawling of a Portland cat, the only home product of the entire layout."

As long as Southern farmers continue to raise cotton exclusively their noses will be on the grindstones. For, it is just as The Charlotte News reports, "A prominent banker of the city was saying yesterday that business would likely recover in this part of the country just in proportion as the cotton farmers reduced their acreage. That is a view of the situation that has plenty of meat in it."

"It's just as logical as it can be. The wonder to us continues that there are farmers who persist in refusing to see the end from the beginning of a proposition as simple as this. We heard the other day of a farmer who was arguing that since cotton was selling for three fourths less than it did when he made 10 bales, he would have to make 40 bales now in order to have as much revenue from his crop. That sort of a farmer needs to be interviewed by somebody and stirring language used."

Under the provisions of a law enacted by the recent General Assembly, county commissioners will hear protests and complaints against the revaluation figures of last year. Under the law there are three ways of settling and adjusting grievances. Indications are that the Gaston commissioners will face a full day Monday at their regular April meeting.

Lincolnton in the county next above us voted school bonds Tuesday to the amount of $200,000. York to the south of us voted $125,000 for similar purposes. People may talk hard times, but when it comes to educating their child or children, they are generally ready to shell out.

The American Legion at Hickory is preparing to build a $5,000 swimming pool for the youth of that town in a park near the center of the city. The city council has given them a free lease to the property for a number of years. There's public spirit for you.

STAGS HOLD FIRST ORGANIZATION MEETING

The local drive of the Patriotic and Protective Order of the Stags of the World held their first meeting Wednesday night in the Moose Hall in the old Gazette building.

There are 90 charter members and those who were there Wednesday night inaugurated a campaign to increase the membership to 150 by next Wednesday night.

On vote of the members officers were not elected last night, but will be next meeting night.

State Director E. Lamar Bailes made an interesting talk telling of the advantages of the order and outlining a program for the local drive to work to a committee composed of R. F. Shelby, chairman; R. M. Smith and Louis Hoagman was appointed to secure option for a permanent range and club rooms to report on the next meeting night. It is planned to conduct a membership campaign for the next few weeks, winding up with a big stag entertainment which will be a very unique affair, the details to be announced later.

Indigestion and Constipation.

"Prior to using Chamberlain's Tablets, I suffered dreadfully from indigestion. Nothing I ate agreed with me and I lost flesh and ran down in health. Chamberlain's Tablets strengthened my digestion and cured me of constipation," writes Mrs. George Stroup, Solway, N. Y.

LEADING AUTHORITIES NOW SHOW JUST WHAT TANLAC REALLY IS

Physiological Action of Principal Ingredients of Celebrated Medicine On the Human System Is Explained.

SUPREMACY CLAIMS WELL SUPPORTED

Many of the Medicinal Elements Have Been Known and Used Since Civilization First Began.

Tanlac, the celebrated medicine which has been accomplishing such remarkable results throughout this country and Canada, is composed of the most beneficial foods and herbs known to science. The formula is purely ethical and complies with all National and State Pure Food and Drug Laws. Altogether, there are ten ingredients in Tanlac, each of which is of recognized therapeutic value. Many of these ingredients have been individually known and used since civilization first began, and some of them have been used and prescribed by leading physicians everywhere, but until they were brought together in proper proportion and association, as in the Tanlac formula, humanity had not heretofore realized their full value and effect. In referring to one of the most important ingredients of Tanlac, the Eschscholopia Brittanica says: "It has been the source of the most valuable tonic medicines that have ever been discovered." In referring to others of the general tonic drugs contained in Tanlac, the 13th Edition of Potter's Therapeutics, a standard medical text book, states: "They impart general tone and strength to the entire system, including all organs and tissues."

This same well-known authority, in describing the physiological action of still another of the ingredients of Tanlac, which is of value in treating what is commonly known as "run-down condition," uses the following expression: "It is highly esteemed in loss of appetite during convalescence from acute diseases."

There are certain other elements in Tanlac which, because of their influence upon the appetite, digestion, assimilation and elimination, improve the nutrition and vital activity of the tissues and note important organs of the body and produce that state of general tonicity which is called Health.

The United States Dispensary makes the following comment regarding another ingredient: "It may be used in all cases of pure debility of the digestive organs or where a general tonic impression is required. Dyspepsia, atonic gout, hysteria and intermittent fever are among the many affections in which it has proven useful."

There are certain other ingredients described in the Dispensary and in other standard medical text books as having a beneficial action upon the organs of secretion, whose proper functioning results in the purification of the blood streams passing through them. In this manner objectionable and poisonous ingredients of the blood are removed and the entire system invigorated and vitalized.

Tanlac was designed primarily for the correction of disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. At the same time, however, it is a powerful reconstructive tonic and body builder, for it naturally follows that any medicine that brings about proper assimilation of the food and a thorough elimination of the waste products must, therefore, have a far-reaching and most beneficial effect upon the entire system.

Although Tanlac's claims for supremacy are abundantly supported by the world's leading authorities, it is the people themselves who have really made Tanlac what it is. Millions upon millions have used it with gratifying results and have told other millions what it has done for them. That is why Tanlac has become the real sensation of the drug trade in this country and Canada, and that is why it is having the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world today.

CAPTAIN AND SON GIVE UP TO U. S. MARSHAL

NEW YORK, March 31.—Captain Adolph C. Pedersen, of the American barkentine Puako, and his sons, Leonard and Adolph, Jr., who were convicted in 1919 of maltreatment and imprisonment of members of their crew and sentenced to prison servitude, have surrendered to the United States marshal here following failure of their appeal.

The alleged maltreatment of the Puako's crew occurred on a voyage from Vancouver, B. C., to Cape Town, South Africa. One of the crew was said to have jumped overboard and drowned while clinging to a log line; another committed suicide.

Captain Pedersen and his sons first were charged with murder, but acquitted. Their conviction on the charge of maltreatment and imprisonment of men was affirmed by the United States circuit court of appeals September 29, 1919. The father was sentenced to 18 months in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta and the sons each to six months in the Essex county, New Jersey, penitentiary.
