Gastonia, The South's City of Spindles

A DREAMER'S DREAM.

Inspired by the good news that there will soon be a hard surfaced road connecting Dallas and Gastonia, citizens of that progressive town are beginning to look up.

We are particularly impressed with one point in our correspondent's story. We refer to the great possibilities that Dallas and Gastonia, have in store as residential developments.

Dallas is not any more distant from the city of Gastonia than is Queens College from Independence Square in Charlotte. The opportunities of Gastonia and Dallas are even greater than those that faced Charlotte in the initial stages of the development of that suburb.

You can never tell what's going to happen.

A WORD.

The Gazette is quite sure that the men and women of Gastonia are more interested in their children than in any other earthly thing. They are interested in their education, their growth and development, their future happiness and well fare.

And with that purpose, and that alone, every voter in the city should approach the election of the city school commissioners. As one good citizen of the city said to The Gazette this morning, "We should not let politics enter into this school question. It is too big for politics, the sort that we usually scramble over in municipal or county elections."

There are vital issues confronting the incoming school board in Gastonia. There are many big problems they will have to solve, and among these one of the biggest is the matter of a new high school building for the city.

HOMES AND HOUSES.

We are sure there are many in Gastonia who feel the need of more moderate priced homes for people of moderate means. High prices of building material have hindered many who would have been living in their own homes ere this had it not been for the prohibitive price of lumber, brick and other material.

coming down and this spring and summer ought to see a new era of construction in Gastonia. Let's build homes instead of houses to live in.

In this connection we would call attention to the excellent building and loan organizations in Gastonia that are functioning for the purpose of home building and owning.

BUSINESS IN THE SPRINGTIME.

One of the best exhibitions of the way in which normal business conditions can return to the country is found in The Springfield Republican.

The new wealth it is now necessary to produce will not come from the sweat of salaried leaders and lobbyists of farmers' organizations in Washington driving the congressional politicians to enact an emergency tariff to protect farm products.

How long it will take agriculture to come back in this country depends of course on many variable elements, but so far as the cost of labor is concerned the farms and plantations of the west and south should be able to operate this year at considerably less cost.

Of course when those in control of the government talk about maintaining American standards of living, they speak in a sense. A man out of work does not maintain his old standard of living.

HISTORY OF "HURRICANE."

The recent outbreak in New Light township, Wake county, where two school houses, a church and two dwellings were burned by the lawless element has emphasized the fact that the disturbance occurred in the "Hurricane."

Ever since the great storm many years ago swept across the eastern corner of Granville and the adjoining territory in Wake, uprooting many trees in its path, that section has been known as the "Hurricane."

Some years ago a rough element in the Hurricane district of Granville fraternized with the lawless element across the border in Wake but the good people of Granville organized and drove them out. But such a thing as burning churches, school houses, and dwellings was never practiced in that portion of Granville county.

What sort of people are these New Lighters, anyway? They are in no wise related to the law-abiding people of Granville county. Instead of the flaming torch they need to know the fear of God.

QUILLEN'S SAYINGS

Flashes of Wit and Humor from the Pen of Great Paraphraser.

By ROBERT QUILLEN. (Copyright 1920, Associate Editors.)

Yap appears to be observing a commendable neutrality.

We don't need so much Pacific Beer if we have a little more Pacific diploma.

The only building that has come down far enough to suit us is the house of Hohenzollern.

Eventually John Bull may decide that a black and tan kept at home is worth two in the ambulance.

Men might live longer without tobacco, at that; but one can't see what good it would do them.

"The worst never happens," declares an optimist. So here is one man who hasn't yet seen the trouble.

The gin men have no chance to complain. Their business is holding up.

Our own opinion is that these fat married men do a lot of eager chasing before they are tempted by a vamp.

There are many ways to collect what Europe owes, but letting her tax payers move over here isn't one of them.

The wets will argue that the frame still gets stowed, but you will notice that it seldom gets into the best society.

When the Puritans force us to go to church, we shall have one consolation. Pipe organs have no jazz attachment.

George Harvey says he is learning not to talk. It is unfortunate, that we haven't a few thousand more diplomatic poets.

When civilization gets kicked about from pillar to post, she can always find a haven with the hard-headed business man.

The second-hand stores are offering some attractive silk shirts in used models.

About the only thing as horrible as Germany's war record is that high so piano one neighbor plays on his phonograph.

When some people cast their bread upon the water, they keep a string on the bread and demand a mortgage on the water.

Kansas argument is doubtless convincing, but it is rather hard on the horse that furnish the feathers to go with the fat.

When the driver of the car decides that he can beat the train to the crossing, the Fool Killer washes up and rails it a day.

The Junior Rockefeller says a man should not choose a wealthy wife. Not if he has had the foresight to choose a wealthy size.

Observe the way the men stop to look now, and you will understand why the world made little progress before clothes were invented.

Now that England has resumed trading relations with Russia, she can wait patiently until Russia has something to sell and something to buy with.

Lady: "Here, my poor fellow, is a quarter for you. It must be awful to be blind, but I think it's worse to be blind."

Expert: "Yes it is, ma'am. When I was blind they were always handing me counterfeit money."

and until conditions are improved to such an extent that a good house and church at least are safely left alone overnight, New Light will stand as a testimonial to the impotency of the law in Wake county.

CANVAS THEATER PRICES REDUCED

25, 35 and 50 Cents (Including Tax). You can't beat that when you consider the excellence of the performances given by the United Southern Stock Co.

"Friendly Enemies," the most wonderful play ever offered, never before presented at such a small price.

Former President Wilson said every true American should see this great play. Manager Foyssoux says if it isn't the best play ever seen at the Canvas Theater your money will be refunded.

"Friendly Enemies" is the best comedy my company has ever played and that is going some. Don't miss it, or you miss the treat of your life.

Canvas Theater night doors open 7:15, curtain 8:15. Prices only 25, 35 and 50 cents.—Adv.

GASTON AND ROADS.

Charlotte Observer.

We were saying something a few days ago about road construction in Gastonia, and The Gastonia Gazette brings information that the commissioners are going ahead with the plans by which the county will shortly be provided with hard-surfaced roads.

"There must be more religion in the homes of America if divorce is to be curbed," Dr. William F. Davis, Kansas City clergyman.
