Lumbago.

This is a rheumatism of the muscles of the back. It comes on suddenly and is quite painful. Every movement aggravates the disease. Go to bed, keep quiet and have Chamberlain's Liniment applied and a quick recovery may be expected. Mrs. F. J. Dunn, Brockport, N. Y., writes: "I can honestly say that Chamberlain's Liniment cured me of lumbago a year ago last summer. When I began using it, I was flat on my back in bed and could not turn to the left or right. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment in the house and this was applied to my back. It promptly drove away the pains and relief."

TWO POSTS. Two towns of 5,000 people lie in one county in a middle western state. In each town there is a post of the American Legion. The people of the one town know that their town has a post because they read occasionally a notice in the town's newspapers announcing that on the following Friday evening John W. Smith post will hold its regular monthly meeting. On the Saturday after this notice appears, another town states that John W. Smith post held its regular meeting. That is all the item says. A stranger asking anybody in the town about the American Legion would be told that it was "a society of the boys who were in the war." Aside from that, nobody knows much about it. The town simply is aware that the post exists.

In the other town, however, things are different. The stranger stepping from a train sees a poster announcing that Robert H. Jones post maintains clubrooms at 147 High street and will welcome all visiting Legionnaires. Happening to pick up a local newspaper several hours later, the stranger reads that Jones post will meet that night to discuss many problems of interest not only to Legionnaires but to the people generally. The newspaper item tells what those problems include—the proposal to plant poplar trees along the Lincoln Highway in the valley; the proposal to establish a war museum which in time will be transferred to a memorial building if one is ever erected; the organization of the baseball team for the new season; the proposal to hold an aerial tournament on the Fourth of July. These and other questions the newspaper item mentions. Next day, as he is leaving town, the stranger sees another copy of the newspaper telling what Jones post had decided to do at its meeting. The stranger asks the friendly old man who sells him a cigar "what kind of an organization" Jones post is. "It's a great outfit," he is told, and the friendly old man recites what Jones post did last year. He knows all about it.

The difference between these two posts is this: The one leaves to chance the handling of the news of what it does. The other post has a publicity committee which sees that the editors of the local papers know all that the post is planning and doing. The power of this post goes with the added understanding which each one of its accomplishments gives to the people of its community. Jones post has learned how to speak for itself. American Legion Weekly.
