IN MEMORIAM.

MRS. LOU GALLOWAY WEBB.

Like the silver dew drop on the brow of morn
She sparkled, was exalted and went to Heaven.

The subject of this sketch was born on the 15th day of March 1870, the daughter of A. J. and A. M. Galloway. Married to Edward Osborn Webb on October 15, 1894. To them were born four daughters, May (Mrs. H. R. Shuford), Willie, Lillian and Jessie Gertrude whom the angels claimed in holyhood. Entered into rest on Monday morning, March the 27th.

At 1:30 o'clock the following day impressive funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church in Dallas by her beloved pastor, Rev. J. L. Vipperman. He had made preparation for a funeral sermon from I Sam. 14-17, but was deeply inclined not to do because of the heaviness of his heart experienced in her going. Therefore he simply read Phil. 1, 19-29 and Proverbs, 31, 10-31.

After which the funeral cortege slowly wended its way to Lowell where the beloved form was reverently laid to rest beside that of her little baby girl.

The floral offerings were beautiful and the large number of friends accompanying the stricken relatives bore testimony to the respect and affection for the departed one.

The husband's work taking him from home most of the time, the care of home and children fell principally upon her hands and heart. First a devoted wife, she then poured out her affection upon her three young daughters giving them unlimited time, care and attention, ministering to their temporal wants, entering into their lives and interesting herself in all their varied employments and pleasures. Her home, the embodiment of neatness, comfort and cheerfulness, was a most inviting spot to them. And as motherly daily held up to them the importance of the diligent performance of duty and the value of the virtues of industry, temperance and economy. She always found time for their simple recreations and the reminiscent joys of home life. Her efforts were duly rewarded by the implicit obedience and the deep devotion, love and admiration of her children.

She made the home a happy gathering place for neighbors and friends and will be sorely missed in her own neighborhood.

Mrs. Webb possessed a very pleasant personality. Of medium height, graceful, erect carriage, with beautiful soft brown hair and eyes of the clear limpid blue seldom seen after childhood. With a most winning smile, she attracted all who came within the sphere of her influence. With children in particular she was especially sympathetic and they readily yielded her respect and affection, hence her success in the school-room where she so ably served at different times when home duties would permit. She possessed the gift of pen and there are those of us who have among our treasured keepsakes many of her poems.

There was about her life a fragrance that made one couple her in thought with the flowers, and tinted clouds, and soft, sweet music. By the bare fact of living and association she smoothed every one with whom she came in contact. She did and said the right thing because in the fitness of her soul, there was not room for coarse alloy.

In her manner, straightforward, candid, innocent, thinking no ill, fearing no wrong, she went through life as unswayed as a soul as ever lived in this sin-troubled world.

She was strongly drawn by the ties of kinship and was loyal and true to all her relatives and connections.

In her, her friends found a ready sympathizer in their joys and sorrows and in her the poor and needy met a wise counsellor and a generous helper.

While decided and firm in her own convictions, she was fair and courteous, was kind to the human family, with an almost universal benevolence. She administered thus in the true spirit of charity.

From her lips no account of self claimed merit was ever heard, nor did she seek the applause of the public. She had been for years a devoted member of the Baptist church and her regular attendance upon its services, her labors in its behalf, her work in Sunday school and her strict performance of all her religious duties are known of all fellow church members, and have often been to them an example and inspiration. For herself, her firm faith and unwavering trust in a merciful Savior were a note of her daily life, thought and conversation.

Thus it was when physical pain and weakness became her portion, she bore them without a murmur and with ever a cheerful countenance and a hopeful word to her anxious household, always forgetful of self. She was ready to answer her Savior's call and gently, softly as a flower droops of eve—she sank to rest upon the Eternal Bosom.

To speak of her and to do her justice is the delight of her many relatives and friends, who thronged around her and watched the shade of her last hours, and to portray adequately the cardinal virtues of her remarkable character is more than at present, I find myself able to do.

As a mother—I can safely say no woman could excel her; as a friend—the high regard in which she was held by all her neighbors here in Gaston county and her beloved "Mountain home," Toxaway, sufficiently attested the hospitality of her soul. As a woman—she combined the greatest energy of character with the most refined and cultivated tenderness of disposition. Ready to forgive the frailties of her sex, she raised for herself an elevated standard of female excellence up to which she most exactly lived, discharging every duty which in her estimation was proper to be practised by the female society.

Her life was indeed beautiful and the memories of it will remain with the bereaved husband, and precious daughters, the aged mother, brothers and sisters, even as the odor of roses clings to the broken vase.

"I cannot say, I will not say
That she is dead, she is just away.
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
She has wandered into an unknown land.
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be since she lingers there."

WAS PART OF PROJECT TO SEIZE WHOLE CITY (By The Associated Press.)

LONDON, March 31. — It is widely believed in Dublin that the armed raid on the plant of the Freeman's Journal yesterday morning was part of a project for the seizure of the whole city which failed through the lack of forces, says The Daily Mail correspondent.

The raid created a sensation, and there was considerable uneasiness last night, the people exclaiming some fresh coup by the republicans. The latter's claim of big secessions from the Free State section of the Irish Republican army, including half the forces guarding the Bank of Ireland, has been given wide publicity, and seems to have added to the nervousness throughout the city.

Call 50 and The Gazette's ad man will come to see you promptly about that advertisement.

TO INSERT FEMININE GENDER IN CONSTITUTION FRANKFORT, Ky., Apr. 1 — Kentucky voters at the congressional elections next November will have a chance to insert the feminine gender into the constitution of Kentucky. The General Assembly voted to submit a constitutional amendment to lift the last limitation on the political rights of women from that document by passing a bill amending section 145 of the constitution so that the word "male" will be stricken out and the word "or she" inserted.

The section, when amended, would read as follows:

"Every citizen of the United States of the age of twenty one years who has resided in the state one year, and in the county six months and the precinct in which he OR SHE offers to vote sixty days next preceding the election, shall be a voter in said precinct and not elsewhere."
