

One Touch of Nature

OLNEY LOCALS.

(Correspondence of The Daily Gazette.)

OLNEY, Apr. 3. — On yesterday the funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Fairies was preached at Olney and the body was laid to rest in the cemetery at that place. Mrs. Fairies died the day before on her birthday. She was eighty-four. For many years she had been an invalid having suffered a stroke of paralysis years some time ago and continually grew worse.

On Thursday little Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fairies was laid to rest in our cemetery. The funeral was preached by the pastor Rev. T. G. Tate.

The little one was sick only a few days with pneumonia. Its being taken was much felt by the family as the little one had started life as such a tiny delicate little thing but by most careful nursing and care was developing into a fine baby when pneumonia suddenly developed. The patients have the sympathy of many friends.

On yesterday we celebrated our communion services. We have had preaching since Thursday. Rev. Mr. Tate did all the preaching himself for this meeting. While with all the extra work (sometimes coming together three times a day) we feel it has been very hard on him. We have had most excellent sermons and they have been a power for good to all who heard them.

The following members were received into the church by profession of their faith:

Misses Edith Robinson, Aline Howe, Bertie Dixon, Ora Lee Dixon, Esther Davis, Isabelle Davis, Margaret Torrance and Katie Mae Huffstetler and Evans Brandon.

By certificate from other churches: Mrs. Howard Huffstetler, Mr. and Mrs. Wooten, Mrs. Shivers and Miss Carter.

On last Tuesday night Rev. T. G. Tate and his Sunday school class of young men had a great time. From last reports we hear it was an ice cream supper with quantities of ice cream. We believe oysters or fish fry, was talked of but ice cream won.

Our superintendent suggested yesterday that some more of our teachers had better try an ice cream supper, if it will make a clan grow as rapidly as this one is doing. This class promises to soon be our banner class.

On next Wednesday at two o'clock the Woman's Auxiliary will meet at the church. The study will be conducted by Mrs. Lewis Kerr. Mrs. Edith Torrance and Mrs. C. P. Robinson will be joint hostesses, and they extend an invitation to every woman in the church to attend this meeting.

Miss Mary Boyles of Mecklenburg, now teaching at the Myrtle school in Gastonia, spent the weekend with Mrs. Raymond Robinson. Miss Boyles was formerly a teacher at Little Mountain School, and her many friends were glad to welcome her back to our church.

Mrs. Mary Jane Lineberger who has been quite feeble for some time has been decidedly worse for the past week. Mrs. Lineberger is now in the home of her son, Mr. Robert Lineberger on the Union road.

On yesterday a visitor dropped into the plate an envelope bearing a most liberal check, marked "manse fund," which was greatly appreciated by the congregation.

These unexpected helps that come as surprises, warm our hearts and make us take courage and push forward.

Some of our schools were treated to an April Fools day on Friday. We hear the after effects were not so pleasant, as running away and for a day playing truant. Children will be children. Most of us can recall similar escapades.

THEIR WEDDING HALTED BECAUSE HE WASN'T DIVORCED FROM HIS FIRST WIFE.

Just before they entered a church at Waltham, Mass., to be married Miss Helen Marie Boates, of Boston, and Elmer R. Antcliffe, of Waltham, posed for this photograph. Before the ceremony was completed a police inspector stated that Antcliffe had not been divorced from his first wife. Rather than disappoint the guests, all adjourned to the home of Miss Boates where the wedding feast was served. Antcliffe was then taken to jail to serve a sentence of three months for making false statements in applying for a marriage license.

HENRY FORD, RADIO ENTHUSIAST, HAVING HIS RAILROAD EQUIPPED WITH WIRELESS.

Henry Ford is very enthusiastic about the possibilities of the radio telephone. He is having a wireless system installed along the line of his railroad. While passing through Atlanta en route to Florida, he spent more than half an hour in the broadcasting station of The Atlanta Journal. He is shown here listening in on a code message which trickled in from Russia.

FEW CHICKENS RAISED IN NORTH CAROLINA

(By John Paul Lucas.)

RALEIGH, March 29. — The United States produced last year nearly 400,000,000 chickens. North Carolina produced less than 15,000,000.

The eggs and chickens produced in the United States as a whole last year aggregated in value more than $1,000,000,000. North Carolina's proportion of this was approximately $20,000,000.

North Carolina farms last year produced an average of less than 50 chickens each, maintaining flocks averaging much less than that number.

According to B. E. Kaupp, head of the poultry department at the State College of Agriculture and Engineering, each farm family should maintain a flock of not less than 100 hens and preferably 200, and the production of chickens per year might well be two or three times that number.

If each farm family in North Carolina anything like approximated Mr. Kaupp's estimate of their possibilities, instead of producing eggs and chickens worth $20,000,000 a year, North Carolina's poultry crop, including eggs, would be worth $60,000,000 to $75,000,000 per year.

This would just about equal the value of last year's cotton crop and would not compare unfavorably with the tobacco crop of last year. The aggregate would exceed the value of the combined crops of sweet potatoes, cow peas, soy beans, peanuts, wheat, oats, rye and hay.

Too many farm families are indifferent to the fact that a flourishing flock of chickens and other poultry will not only supply the family table, but may be a source of constant weekly revenue. There are few farm families in North Carolina which would not clothe and educate their children from the proceeds of a properly handled flock of poultry.

"After all, the handling of poultry on a farm is very little trouble if it is properly and intelligently done. For best results there should be proper housing. One third to one half the flock should be discarded each year and replaced with pullets, because our winter eggs come from pullets, and winter eggs are the most profitable.

"On the average four horse farm a flock of 50 birds will secure half of its living from foraging, utilizing the waste around the barn and in the fields. In foraging the chickens and other fowls are really worth much to the farm as a protection against bugs, worms and other insects which injure growing crops. The chickens on the farm should not be confined. The garden, not the chickens, should be fenced."

"In the 'Live-at-Home' campaign, which is being carried into all communities of the State, the matter of raising food and food supplies for home consumption and not for the market is being emphasized. In the matter of all poultry and poultry products, however, it is recognized that there is a distinct opportunity here for increasing the farm income in every section of the State, because the demand for poultry products in North Carolina considerably exceeds the supply.

It is true that the market for poultry products is not thoroughly organized. Just recently while eggs were selling at 45c and 50c per dozen in Charlotte, Raleigh, Greensboro and other cities in the State, they were being sold in some smaller cities and in many towns and other sections at less than half that figure. A proper system of marketing will remedy this condition and make the production of poultry products more uniformly profitable than it is at present even. Mr. Kaupp is devoting much attention to the planning and prospective development of some system of poultry marketing whereby such inequalities in price may be avoided.

DEATHS.

MRS. MARY A. HENDRICK.

Mrs. Mary A. Hendrick, mother of Mrs. W. J. Clifford, of Gastonia, died Sunday morning, April 2nd, at 2:15 o'clock at her home in Shelby, aged 87 years, eight months and 29 days. Her death followed an illness of four weeks and a period of declining health extending over four years.

She was born in Cleveland county, August 12, 1834, and was married to Chapel Hendrick, April 29, 1852. He preceded her to the grave thirty three years.

The children surviving are Miss G. Hendrick, F. V. Hendrick, Mrs. A. H. Cline, of Shelby; Mrs. W. J. Clifford, of Gastonia, and an adopted daughter, Mrs. Cletus Spake. She is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Julian Evans, of Lenoir; nine grandchildren and eighteen great grandchildren. She professed faith in Christ her Lord in early life and was united with Zion Baptist church where her membership remained until her death. Her girlhood home was a short distance from this church.

After her marriage she lived for a number of years six miles north of Shelby. Forty-five years ago she moved to the place where she lived at the time of her death. She was a good mother, strong in her religious belief and a woman of fine business ability. She lived through three wars. During the War Between the States she did her part well in keeping up her home and providing for her husband and his companions who were serving in the Confederate army.

Funeral services were conducted at her home at 2:30 Sunday afternoon followed by burial by the side of her husband in Sunset Cemetery in Shelby. The pallbearers were Josh Lattimore, Festus McKinney, H. D. Wilson, Oscar Palmer, George Webb and Andrew Spangler.

Those attending the funeral from Gastonia were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Clifford, Mrs. H. B. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Saunders, Miss Virginia Saunders, Mrs. Julia Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Joe S. Wray, Mrs. M. C. Thorn, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Reeves and Mr. W. T. Tucker.

"Can I be of any assistance?" asked the sympathetic motorist of a man who was looking unutterable thoughts at a disabled car. "How is your vocabulary?" "I'm a minister, sir." "Drive on." — Birmingham Age-Herald.
