BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 28.—The mansion occupied by Governor John M. Parker was placarded during the night with printed notices of a "naturalization" ceremony of the Baton Rouge Ku Klux Klan scheduled for Thanksgiving night.

The governor upon rising this morning and looking across the mansion grounds saw hundreds of sticks arranged in rows as tombstones on which were attached the dogtags.

The executive took the matter as a joke, laughing as he related the affair to his friends.

The downtown streets of Baton Rouge was also posted during the night.

The handbills read as follows:

"Baton Rouge Klan November 30, Realm of Louisiana, Invisible Empire of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, announces public naturalization of candidates Thanksgiving night, 8:30 p. m., on the Greenwell Springs road.

"The public is cordially invited. Parking space will be provided in the main grounds. Traffic will be handled by competent persons. Visitors are requested not to arrive before 8:30 o'clock (this to avoid congestion of traffic.)"

On Thanksgiving Day this city will have as its guests 2,000 school teachers attending the state convention besides thousands of visitors who will be attracted by the annual Tulane-Louisiana State University football clash.

"WORSE THAN PAIN"

Louisiana Lady Says She Has "Never Found Anything Better Than Cardui for a Run-Down Condition."

Morgan City, La.—"It would be hard for me to tell how much benefit I have derived from the use of Cardui," said Mrs. I. G. Eowman, of 1319 Front Street, this city.

"I was so run-down in health I could hardly go. I was thin. I had no appetite. Could not rest or sleep well. I was so weak, and so very nervous, I was no pleasure to myself.

"I suffered some pain, but the worst of my trouble was from being so weak and easy to get tired and out of heart.

"This nervous condition was worse than pain.

"Some one told me of Cardui, and I decided to use it.

"After using a few bottles, I regained my strength. I wasn't so nervous, and began to eat and sleep, and grew stronger and was soon well.

"I have never found anything better for a run-down condition."

If you suffer as this Louisiana lady did, you, too, should find Cardui helpful for your troubles.

MERE MAN—AMONG THE TUAREGS

(A Geographic News Bulletin prepared and issued by The National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.—Apropos of current discussions regarding the comparative status of women's rights in the United States and other countries the following bulletin of the National Geographic Society is quoted—not as argument—but as important evidence on this point:

"Amongst the Tuaregs, found in the vlayet of Tripoli, it is man the brute who by all the laws of the country has to obey the women. Descent is traced through the mother; woman shows her proud face to all the world, while the man goes veiled. In the presence of a woman of noble birth, men cover their faces and heads altogether. The women give the children what little instruction they have and train them to respect and obey them.

"Bullied and worried by his women-folk, the Tuareg has no liberty at all. All the goods, tents, camels, and clothes are the women's property. The stick he carries and the great wooden box into which he puts what his wife suffers him to have are all the man's possessions and all he retains if for some reason his wife chooses to divorce him.

"In Ghat, when a man goes out after sunset he is usually followed by a negro servant, sent by his wife to dog his steps, and woe to him if he forgets himself or comes in too late! He will find the door shut and must count himself lucky if he is not put onto the street altogether.

"The young man who, in spite of all this, wants to marry must pay a heavy sum for the bride, to obtain which he is obliged to look for other means than his usual work of rearing camels or carrying goods for the Arab trader. Thus he is forced into taking part in one of the annual razzias.

"The ladies decline when the right moment has come, and the men sally forth against some luckless caravan or to the rich highlands of Tibesti. These senseless raids have destroyed many a fertile oasis, and have accelerated the final disappearance of trans-Saharan trade."

Tom Sims Says

The jail is empty in Ardsley, N. Y. But it shouldn't be.

Fire destroyed one of Armour's packing plants. They say it smelled like 9999 brides cooking supper.

Russian Children in Dire Need of Clothing-- Many May Die from Exposure, Says Report To Hoover

"Hag—why, America doesn't know what rags are in Russia," was the exclamation recently made by a world-famous Russian singer who was on his way to America. And his comment is more forcefully borne out by a cablegram sent by Col. William N. Haskell, head of the American Relief Administration in Russia, to Herbert Hoover, head of the organization, in which Colonel Haskell forecasted that millions of children and adults saved from famine last winter face death from exposure this winter because of the lack of warm clothing.

Particularly urgent is the need of the children, for many of these who have been going to A. R. A. kitchens for food will be unable to go now because of the lack of wraps of any kind. In the homes for children too, the need is almost as urgent, for the general costumes of the little ones in these institutions has been found to consist of but one garment—made of flour sacking, or other coarse material. As fuel is almost impossible to obtain, the plight of these little ones, in a winter as severe as that of Canada is desperate, Colonel Haskell says.

In some ways the condition of the adult population is even worse, for the cost of such clothing as there is for sale in the cities is far above their reach. With a pair of shoes costing more than a month's wages and an overcoat of even fair quality equivalent in price to a year's pay, the Russian workman is "out of luck."

To help in meeting this crisis, the American Relief Administration has instituted a system of "Clothing Remittances," similar in plan and operation to the famous Hoover Food Remittances, and several hundred banks and other organizations which co-operated in handling money for food packages are being asked to do the same for persons who wish to send clothing remittances.

For $20—which is the price of a "Clothing Remittance"—any person or group may have delivered to any designated person in Russia a package containing approximately the following clothing material: 4 2-3 yards of 56-inch, 20-ounce dark wool cloth sufficient to make one suit of clothes for either a man or woman or for two children's outer garments; 4 yards of black cotton lining; 16 yards of muslin sufficient for four suits of underclothing; 8 yards of flannel-lette, sufficient for two men's shirts or two women's shirt waists, and buttons and thread sufficient to make up the material.

Many Food Remittances were sent for "general relief"—that is, were not designated to any particular beneficiary, and it has been decided that Clothing Remittances may be handled in a similar manner. These will be used in the most urgent cases, some of which are pathetic.
