To tobacco belongs a large share of the credit for developing the wealth and prosperity of the South. The census of 1920 shows that in Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas, Tennessee, Florida, and Mississippi, while the acreage of cotton was twenty times that of tobacco, the value of cotton lint and seed output was only 6.1 times greater than that of tobacco.

Tobacco, the first American export commodity, for 300 years held a distinguished place in our foreign trade, and its culture and manufactured treatment continue to be an important industry in the South today.

Throughout the South there are great deposits of asbestos, cement, lime, clays, fullers earth, mica, glass sand, ochre, graphite, tungsten, pyrites, lead, silver, copper, iron ore, and precious stones.

The Carolinas have bauxite, and phosphate rocks abound in Tennessee and South Carolina.

Effective Ways to Circumvent the Moth

Before you put away your clothes inspect them carefully for concealed moth eggs, which can be destroyed by a thorough beating of your clothes.

Heat, likewise, will do the work. Hang your clothes out of doors in the hot sunshine for a day or two, if possible, before putting them away, or press them with a hot iron, or soak them in boiling water.

For safe storage, cedar chests and cedar lined closets are effective if they are kept shut tight. Open them only to put in and remove clothing.

Since moths detest light, a window in your clothes closet will do much to keep the insects from your things. Shake and brush the clothes at least twice a month.

If possible use air-tight containers, such as paper bags, sealed pasteboard boxes or paper wrapping for storage. Pack clothes with moth balls or flakes. Furs should be brushed, beaten and aired thoroughly every two or three weeks during the summer.

When your clothes become old give them away. Every garment, especially if made of wool, hung on a hook at the back of the closet, is a potential home for moths.

Finally, when you see little clothes moth millers flitting or crawling about, swat them.—Popular Science Monthly.

Didn't Care To

Mary Elizabeth was spending the day with her grandmother, and, seeking a more exciting type of entertainment than was offered, she quietly slipped out of the door and headed for the neighbors. Half-way there she was found by her grandmother, who was appalled to see she was without either hat or coat in the near-zero weather. Hastening to the door, she called after her: "Mary, come back and put on your coat." To which Mary turned a deaf ear. As the command was repeated a little louder Mary called back: "I didn't hear you."
"Didn't hear what?" her grandmother countered. "Didn't hear you say to put on my coat," the little culprit replied.—Exchange.

Furniture "Temple"

A monumental "temple of furniture," of Egyptian pyramid type of architecture, towering thirty-four stories and costing more than $6,000,000, is to be built in Grand Rapids, Mich. When completed, the "temple" will be used primarily for a furniture exhibition building. It will have more than 1,000,000 square feet of floor space. A central tower of thirteen stories above the main structure of twenty-one stories will be flood-lighted at night.

Too Strong

Mary was six and attending school for a few months when she took her little sister Dorothy to visit. The latter utterly disgraced her sister, for when she was asked how much two and two were she said sixteen.

In telling it to her mother, who said, "well honey, she's only a baby and don't know any better," Mary replied, "But she didn't need to say so many."

Trade With China

Declared exports from China to the United States during 1925 totaled $159,502,913, compared with $129,133,386 in 1924 and $176,965,603 in 1923. These totals represented the combined returns for all of the American consulates in China. The increase in 1925 is remarkable in view of the numerous serious obstacles to trade during the period.

ad Fashion Started

by Soviet Official

Cabinet officials will be obliged to outfit themselves with the costumes of many weird lands if the innovation of Georges Tchitcherin, the taciturn commissar of foreign affairs of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, becomes the vogue. When he received the delegation from the Mongolian autonomous republic, which only Soviet Russia recognizes as a separate part of China, Tchitcherin wore a Mongolian costume. A long gown with flowing sleeves started under his chin, a peaked Mongol cap was on his head and the table where all were grouped to be photographed was trimmed with candles. The new style adds to the picturesqueness of diplomatic comedy.

Machine Melts Snow

A new motor-driven device for the removal of snow from highways has been invented. It consists of a heated steel drum suspended before a truck on which is the machinery for forcing crude oil into the drum, where it is ignited. As the motor-driven truck moves forward the heated drum rotates over the snow, melting it rapidly. The truck moves at about three miles an hour.

Hot Water and Soap

"Hot soap suds and water," the good old-fashioned remedy for all cleansing purposes, has real germicidal properties, according to experiments carried on at the Army and Navy General hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., by Dr. J. E. Walker. In the Journal of Infectious Diseases, Doctor Walker says that any ordinary soap used with a reasonable degree of care will kill several kinds of bacteria, notably those that cause pneumonia, diphtheria and several of the pus-forming organisms. The dysentery and typhoid bacilli die harder. Strong soaps made of what is known as saturated fatty acids are necessary to annihilate these tough ones. A salt water soap, prepared exclusively from coconut oil, is the most readily available efficient soap to rid the hands of possible typhoid bacilli. Unfortunately an all-round coconut soap is too irritating to the skin for ordinary use.

Has Clock Doing "Stunts"

The town clock of West Chester, Pa., lost its reputation for accuracy and there was talk of retiring the veteran of 1842, when Joseph W. Belt, photographer and man of all trades, volunteered to take it over for a year without pay. He soon had the clock running true to form and even doing tricks in its spare time. Every day at noon it casts a baseball from the top of the tower and the person who finds it receives a reward of ten cents from the merchant whose name it carries. A reservoir carries balls for three weeks and the scheme is working perfectly. Belt is planning other doings for the clock.—Indianapolis News.

Air Brush for Face

Patsy Chapman of St. Paul, Minn., has a new idea for applying face paints. She uses an air brush, the liquid colors being blown on her face, according to Popular Science Monthly.

One day she observed a painter blowing paints on an automobile. He explained that the paint went on smoother and looked better than if he had used a brush.

Miss Chapman determined to try it in the art of theatrical make-up. A friend agreed to manipulate the brush. The method is said to result in a more delicate blending of tints.

Time Well Occupied, Says Wife of Genius

Mrs. Albert Einstein finds being the wife of a genius no sinecure. Having herself no penchant for science, she devotes the long working day she has laid out for herself to reading and answering her husband's mail, a huge mass of which comes in half a dozen languages, and which has to do with scores of subjects, from relativity to autographed photographs. She says her husband believes that a woman who aspires to scientific eminence should forget sex and become "a sort of neutral character." He does not "expect as much from a woman as from a man," and when Mme. Curie's name was mentioned to him, he said, "She is the exception to the rule. When you will produce four other women like Mme. Curie, then you have established something of a foundation for a new rule." Professor and Mrs. Einstein, who are orthodox Jews, are pronounced Zionists, believing that the Jews "need a homeland for the sake of their dignity and their self-respect." San Francisco Arionian.

Helped Feed Armies

A. W. Maconochie, inventor of the "M. and V.," or meat and vegetable rations, known to millions of British soldiers during the World war, recently died at the age of seventy in a hospital in London. The rations consisted of beef and vegetables, and were first used in the Boer war. They had been cooked in cans, and army cooks had only to heat the cans.

Inasmuch as 80 per cent of the people live in the open country, agricultural progress, while less conspicuous to the casual visitor, is most significant of all.

The place of the South on the map of the world ought to make it the heart of industry and civilization. The greatest system of waterways on the globe gathers into a mighty trunk line which pours through the South to find its outlet in your Southern Gulf. This vast land-protected sea is an ocean in itself, giving to the South trade advantages which, if used, would be unrivaled. The Panama Canal opens the commerce of mankind to the South more than to any other single part of the public. From Norfolk to Galveston the South has a chain of seaports, the poorest of which is better than the best German seaport, and the best of which is as good as those of England.—Review of Reviews.

When one travels through the States of the South, he sees everywhere signs of great material progress. He sees scores of prosperous cities all in a real sense new, many of which were but villages twenty-five years ago.—Review of Reviews.

It is of great significance that this zeal for education anticipated the material progress of the South, and has conditioned it.—Review of Reviews.
