

Was in Misery All Over

"I was in a dreadfully run-down condition," says Mrs. Chas. L. Lacroix, of Montgomery, La. "I suffered a great deal of pain. I was in misery all over. I could not sit up and I could not lie down. I couldn't sleep and at times I would have dreadful vomiting spells. The aches and pains seemed to cover my whole body.

"One night my husband brought me home six bottles of Cardui and I began to take it. I could tell that I was improving from the first bottle, but I kept on taking the medicine, for I knew that I needed a tonic that would build me up and strengthen me where I was weak and run-down. That is exactly what Cardui did for me. After I had finished the six bottles I felt fine.

"I feel truly thankful for what Cardui has done for me, for I could not have gone on living in the desperate condition I was in."

"SIR WALTER," "DON QUIXOTE" AND "ASBESTOS" REACH QUEBEC

known, a white-hatted "Bobbie" stands on the street corner and beckons to the traffic. Poor fellow! Each car waits for an individual signal from him!—and he doesn't seem to get tired, for no one is in a hurry. Everyone has a life time before him and he doesn't mind how much of it he spends threading through the narrow winding streets.

We stopped for coffee and a sandwich at midnight. The lady behind the counter told us of a Canadian soldier that had passed that way a half hour before walking from Philadelphia to Montreal—two hundred miles further along. In less than ten minutes we overtook him and offered him a ride. We surprised him by telling him who he was and what he was doing. We almost regretted our generosity, for he began telling where and how he "got his" (i. e. wound in the right shoulder and lungs damaged in the first gas attack during the war.) The poor fellow was a little unbalanced and as he told his story he grew more and more excited, acting his gruesome part in the war over again for us. In vain we tried to quiet him, for through the long hours before dawn he kept up his harrowing tale, punctuated by bayonet thrusts, grenades and shell bursts. Then he grew grave and almost wept as he told of taking the last message from his dying captain, and how he disobeyed his sergeant by getting up to deliver the message to the colonel in the midst of a rain of machine gun bullets, through which he walked unharmed. Towards dawn he quieted down and slept for awhile, much to our relief, for we had become wrought up too, hearing his terrifying story. The weirdness was more hair-raising on account of the fact that a storm was brewing and as he grew louder in his raving the wind grew more boisterous, crashes of thunder grew louder, and with increasing frequency lightning flashes lighted up curves where the road apparently dropped off into nothingness.

We were uncertain about the truth of the fellow's history until we passed the Canadian customs house, just before sunrise. The customs official had been an officer over Private Ince (our passenger) during the war and confirmed the story. Perhaps later we'll tell of an incident during our three days in Quebec, in which Lee's forces again won a victory over the Northerners, and in which "the Cavaliers" became heroes in the space of two or three minutes. We have gotten three cablegrams of thanks since we steamed out of the harbor.

Line Hills upon him, stood placidly for a moment on the gravelled walk, then howling a victory cry, was seen to leisurely begin a trot which led him down to the jail branch, disappearing in the direction of Country Line Creek. Chaw the meat, and save the bone; Old Blue Neck, lives on tally-home.

Makes no diffence, if he is a hound, You gotta quit kicking my dawg around. My dawg "Brum" is a good ole hound. He trails the 'possums o're the driest ground. Makes no diffunce if he is a hound, You gotta quit kickin my dawg around.
