POET'S CORNER.

A THOUGHT.

Through lowering clouds of mist and rain
A ring-dove yestreen winged its way,
And ever and anon did cry
Aeolus like, in plaintive strain.
I stood and watched the bird in flight,
As arching down the leaden west,
It onward sped—in seeming quest
Of haven far 'neath falling night,
"Oh Heart!" I cried, "a message plain
To you this hour is spirit-brought,
What though life's day with cloud is frought,
All ends not under skies of Pain,
The yearning wail but births the thought
That joy is sorrows last refrain."—L.

FRESHMEN AWARDED MEDALS.

Friday the 22nd was an eventful day for the Hillians. The absence of the usual Washington's Birthday Oration was well atoned for by a lecture on Philosophy of "Wit and Humor." In the afternoon the time honored custom of encouraging deserving Freshmen by presentation of appropriate medals was observed, and at night the Inter-Society Debate took place. The most important occasion of all was perhaps the medal awarding, beginning at two and one-half p. m. and lasting until eventide. Mr. T. B. Lee called the meeting to order and after appointing Messrs. Yates J., Atkinson, McFadyen and Robertson W. R. as tellers, deputed the soph class "in toto" to wait upon and conduct rostrum-wards the freshmen. The balloting was heavy and complicated, the lack of the tellers, great, but at length the following ticket of awards was determined, and medalist required to speak accordingly.

For Conceited Man—B. Shepherd.

For Lazy Man—Wharton.

For Twister—Daingerfield.

For Borer—Shefersee.

For Liar—Johnson.

For Ugly Man—Conner "Tobe."

For Poetry Man—Busbee, R.

For Dude—Hampton.

For Cheeky Man—Lindsay.

For Pedigree Man—Simmons.
For Booter—Newby.
For Sports medal—Booth.
For General Cussedness—Wright.

The Lazy Man's medal was presented by the three-year-ago recipient "Billy" Hendren. The gentleman who last year walked off with Liar's medal, in a few well chosen words relinquished his erstwhile honor to his successor and Bob. Gray laid down at the feet of Red Wharton the palm and reputation for laziness he had so long sustained. The recipient for Fools medal would be published but inasmuch as he has threatened to sue the editors of TAR HEEL, his name will be withheld until he enters upon life next fall, when every one will discover him and acknowledge that the medal was rightly bestowed, since he cannot properly appreciate what was intended for a joke.

AMONG EXCHANGES.

Seven hundred and forty-six dollars have been raised for a memorial of Clarence Bayne, pitcher on last year's base-ball team of University of Pennsylvania.

The Berlin University buildings were erected in 1754 and were formerly the palace of Prince Henry, brother of Frederick II. They were fitted up in 1809 for the then recently founded university.
