A Rising Young Alumnus.

The following clipping is taken from a state paper in regard to a young University alumnus, J. Motley Morehead, who graduated here in 1891. "Mot" learned electrical engineering from practical experience in some New York shops, was afterwards connected with the Jersey City electric railway, and until recently with the Thompson-Houston Co.

"We are pleased to note the safe arrival in England, of Mr. J. Motley Morehead. He goes in the interest of large iron masters of Leeds, England, to lay out, and put in active operation an electric plant for manufacturing calcium carbide. Thus the startling result comes round that starting with Mr. Thomas L. Willson's original conception, backed by Maj. J. T. Lorehead's determined persistence, through three years of depressing efforts in neighboring works of the Willson Aluminum Company the end is that one of our North Carolina boys goes across the ocean to teach the hitherto foremost nation of metal workers of the world how to smelt lime, and one of the many uses will be to greatly lighten the dingy city of London, for it has been found that with calcium carbide, the Englishman's coal gas can be cheaply raised from a 17 to 25 candle power gas. Mr. J. Motley Morehead is an electrician and chemist, and is capable of rising to any environments."

The Legislature of the State of Virginia is discussing the question of co-education at U. Va. When the news reached the students there, one of the editors of College Topics became possessed of three night-mares. This is one of them:

Scene—The bulletin board. Crowd standing around commenting on notice.

Miss Angles (adjusting spectacles)—So that is the final selection of the football team? Well, I told them, when they elected Maud Hanks captain, that she would certainly put all her clubmates on the team.

Miss Wintergreen—Maria Heavy-foot playing centre! Why, Sallie Timbers can walk all over her any day.

Miss Fruit—Oh, Maria's an all right tackler and gets the ball back well, but she is too tall for her weight. She isn't stocky enough.

Miss Angles—What a pity that Sue Undertow is laid up with water on the knee. She will be sadly missed at full back. I told her she ought to wear shin guards.

Miss Sportington—Get on to the Chairman's notice: "The riotous behavior and puerile vandalism manifested by the young ladies on several recent occasion meets with the sternest disapprobation from the faculty. In future, the regulations against drinking will be strictly enforced." Now, ain't he a tnebe rose?

Miss Giddeigh—Oh, that's just a little joke of his. Let's all go down town and catch a short drink.

The Crowd—Good shot!

Miss Sportington—Well, so long. I've got to take a hand in a little game over at the Commercial. Be at the beer tea in Yahoo to-night?

The Crowd—Bet your life! Well, so long, old woman. (Stroll off singing "The Faculty Won't Be There.")

A Wonderful Invention.

Zoology teaches us that the hairs of the head are hollow, and contain an oil that gives them life. In clipping the hair with scissors, this hollow is left open, and the hair loses its life-giving properties.

I have a Machine named the Singeing Machine, which removes the hair and at the same time closes up the hollow causing the hair to retain its life-giving properties, and therefore stopping the hair from falling out or dying and giving it a soft life growth.

Call and examine this machine and have your hair singed.

Special attention given to dressing Ladies hair. Cutting hair done with exquisite and artistic skill by the old University Barber of twenty years experience.

The Singeing Machine is highly recommended by scientists throughout the country.

Very respectfully,
T. D. DUNSTON,
Professor of Tonsorial Art.
