Carolina Plays a Slow Game Against Greensboro. Too Many Fumbles.

The 'Varsity played her third game last Thursday afternoon with the team from the Greensboro Athletic Association. The game was slow and totally uninteresting with the exception of a few pretty runs around the ends. As was the case in the Guilford game Carolina fumbled too much at times when fumbles were costly. The Greensboro team was very heavy and greatly outweighed the 'Varsity.

The playing of Cunningham at centre and his tackling in the first half were especially conspicuous. Rogers tackled well and made a beautiful run in the first half. Howell also made several pretty runs around right end. For Greensboro Daniels played the star game. His breaking through the line was especially disastrous to the 'Varsity. Devin also played good ball, making several good gains through our line.

Twenty and fifteen minute halves were played.

October German.

Despite the exceedingly unfavorable weather a goodly number of our State's fairest daughters came up to attend the October dance given by the German Club on last Friday evening.

Indeed wet weather and intermediate Germans have almost become synonymous expressions on the hill.

However those who were so fortunate as to be present Friday evening spent a most delightful evening "tripping the light fantastic" and were well repaid for their attendance.

The Raleigh band furnished the music for the occasion, and under the skilful and efficient leadership of Mr. H. C. Cowles, Jr., ably assisted by floor managers, Moore and Woodard, some very pretty and intricate figures were danced during the course of the evening.

The following is a list of those couples present:

October Number of the Magazine.

We have before us the October number of the North Carolina University Magazine.

This is the first issue under the new management. It is a credit to Editor Wilson. It contains several articles of permanent interest and importance. Of these the opening article, "Knighthood and Nobility in America," may be mentioned as of especial interest, not only to the students and friends of the University, but to the general reader as well.

It deals with the efforts made at different times to establish titles of nobility, aristocratic societies and such things, on the American continent. Some ridiculous and comic, some serious. Six of these attempts are spoken of under the heads, "First American Lord," "The Albion Knights of the Conversion of Twenty-three Kings," "The Illustrious Order of The Golden Calf," "Lock's Grand Model," "Transmontane Order of the Knights of the Golden Horse-shoe," and the "Society of the Cincinnati." After a brief historical sketch of each, the writer shows how they found in the great free American continent a hostile soil, in which such societies could not find root.

An article of some literary merit is the "Allegory in Tennyson's Holy Grail."

All students of literature are interested in this great poem. The writer of this critical essay shows that he has made a clear study of his subject and treats it in a strong manner.

During the summer, while the hundreds of students were scattered over the entire state enjoying their holiday, there came sad news from Chapel Hill—Wilson Caldwell had died—and all those who knew him felt that one had departed from our midst whose place could not be filled. And so it is but fitting that our leading college publication should contain a sketch of one who served us so faithfully. "Wilson Caldwell" is the title of an article which will attract the attention and interest of hundreds of students and alumni. It is on account of the funeral services of a faithful servant, and contains an extract of the speech made by his old friend, Dr. Battle, which adds a double interest to the article.

The only attempt at fiction in this issue is the tragic story of the love of two young mountaineers for a beautiful mountain girl.

Another article of interest to the student of literature is, "The Idyllic Note in Adam Bede." It is well written and shows a keen insight into the author's purpose in her great novel, "Adam Bede."

"Helbeck of Bannisdale," Mrs. Humphrey Ward's latest novel is reviewed. The reviewer does his work well. "College Record" and "Alumni Notes" contain the usual interesting monthly review of the
