The baseball team took its Easter trip, faculty and students had Easter holiday and, not to be outdone, the Tar Heel took an Easter rest and did not appear last week. It happened that its vacation came about ten days after Easter but it was as well taken then as at any other time. Our poor overworked editorial force and typographical force and financial forces needed it and simply had to have it.
We had other urgent reasons for missing an issue but they must ever remain "editorial secrets."

Our representatives went to Vanderbilt, saw, and conquered, but were in turn captivated by the generous and genuine hospitality extended them. It was well for Carolina that her representatives did not have a longer stay in Nashville before the debate, for if they had, they could never have had the heart to requite with defeat so much courteous attention as was shown them.

The debate itself was of unusually high order, the comprehensiveness of the question at issue and the restricted time limit, compelled close study, thorough familiarity with all the points involved and fluent and accurate expression.
Our representatives had familiarized themselves with every phase of the question, discarded rhetorical flourishes, devoted themselves to close argumentation and with their recognized ability as debaters won for themselves and for their alma mater, no small victory.
The greatest credit is due them, for they labored under the double disadvantage of having the unpopular side of the question and in speaking before an audience in sympathy with their opponents.

Though their opponents on the question at issue, the debaters as well as faculty, students and townspeople speedily proved themselves in every way friends of our representatives and showed themselves perfect hosts. The debate next year is held at Chapel Hill and it shall be our aim to receive our friends from Tennessee as heartily as they received us, their treatment of visitors can not be improved upon. We reserve however the privilege to again win.

Before we play our next game in Atlanta we should be careful to see that our "hoodoo" which resides there has been removed.

Last fall just before our games there, several members of our football team became disabled and we lost a hard luck game, and the story is almost repeated in the case of our baseball games this spring.
The team left one of its best men and heaviest batters in the infirmary here and almost as soon as it reached Atlanta it had to send its strongest team in our history thus disabled, it could only take one game from Georgia, and tie the second, while Georgia's team is as weak as ours was strong. We have not the slightest criticism to offer our team and its captain who labored under such great difficulties. But we do hope that before next fall someone will put a silver bullet through our Atlanta "hoodoo."

THE GEORGIA GAMES.

Graham dies at first.
Georgia comes to the bat and dies easily.

The fourth inning is uneventful for both sides.

In the fifth Graves gets first on Rounsaville's error. Woodard puts one in Elder's hands, who throws to first and Rounsaville completes the double play by getting Graves at second.

Willcox and Holt both single over third and score on errors by Elder and Blacksheer. Graham retires the side.

The sixth gives Carolina nothing but as Georgia goes to the bat it starts raining which results in giving her four runs. Whitfield is hit by ball, Rounsaville walks and Richardson is out to Holt. Willcox being unable to control the wet ball lets McBride walk. Lawson tries his hand in the box, finding the same trouble and giving Cox his nag, forcing in Whitfield. Hall hits an easy one to Woodard who fumbles and in his attempt to get the man at home, throws under the grand stand. After three have scored Graves finds time to get Hall at home. Elder is out from Lambeth to first.

Georgia's men go out in one two, three order.

Woodard is out stealing third.
Graham hits to Hall who gets second by Woodard's fielding of Richardson's ball. The next two men fan.

Lawson in home. Wilcox out from Cox to first. Umpire scores Lambeth from third on a balk by Cox, after Wilcox is out.

Richardson hits safe and goes to second on a wild throw. McBride hits to Lambeth who gets Richardardson at third. Whitfield fans and Holt is out on a fly to Oldham.

Score—Carolina 4. Georgia 0.

is out from Cox to first. Carr strikes out. Lawson hits safe, steals second and third. Holt scores on McBride's error. Oldham is out from Elder to first.

Georgia dies easily.

Score—Carolina 5. Georgia 0.

Carolina does nothing in her fifth.
Cox is out from Wilcox to first.
Rounsaville makes first on Carr's error. Oldham being unable to get on the ball he goes to third and scores on Richardson's single. Mc-Bride walks. Ridley who has relieved Whitfield strikes out. Hall hits safe scoring Richardson.

run.

Graham gets a pretty single to left. Carr does same scoring Holt, Lawson flies out to Hull. Graham is thrown out in home. Oldham hits to McBride who gets Carr at second. Georgia accomplishes nothing in her eighth.

At the beginning of Georgia's ninth Rounsaville gets a three bagger. Richardson gets first on Holt's error and Rounsaville scores.
Lawson goes in the box and strikes out McBride. Ridley gets his base on balls. Hall hits to Carr at short who holds the ball long enough to Richardson to score and Hall to first. Kidley steals third and scores on Graham's fumble of hard chance. Hall goes to third.

Elder steals second. Hull strikes out. While Lawson is taking his position Hall comes home, the umpire calling him safe. Georgia and the umpire thinking this the winning run leave the field and could not be found until too late to play the game. The umpire then recalls the extra run and declares the game a tie.
