Concerning the Track Team

Some years ago Mr. Lake saw fit to present the University with a cinder track. This track is now a sea of trouble. Enough men will not come out. There are over six hundred men in this institution, some which when hard pressed can doubtless make good time over a dirt road. There are also men here that could not make a hundred yards in a hundred years. But if both classes came out there would be something doing, something done. Track work is not a bore. Some men may be violently opposed to taking a bath every afternoon, but it is not so bad after a week or so. The track is not a form contest. If both your foot handles would not fill a pair of fashionably cut trousers, don't feel bad about it, but come out and try to develop them. You won't have to wear goggles to keep the cinders out of your eyes if you don't get too far behind; still if you do you can look indifferent and say the pace bores you; you are afraid of running over some one.

If you want to feel like a king and several members of Parliament, come out every afternoon and drop cigarettes. The track is better than a spring tonic—makes you feel springy all over. Occasionally you will have to wear lead in your pockets to keep on the earth, but if you forget it, you can grasp a telephone wire and call for the fire department.

If you cannot afford to buy a pair of track shoes, drive some spikes in an old pair, or wear tennis slippers.

Will twelve kind men please come out during the week so we can keep one meet? The one coming out first may get a free ticket to the Honolulu Automobile Show in 1912.

"A university is a great social engine whose purpose is to conserve to augment and to scatter abroad knowledge to the end that both the quality and power of life may be increased; it has for its 'raison d'etre' the functions of preparing men and women for directive leadership in society, of engineering the public will and conscience, of making the application of trained power to life, and of exalting righteousness, virtue and truth."—Dr. Alderman in last Founders' Day Speech.
