V. P. I. FAILS TO SCORE.

Carolina Does up Her Old Rival in Handsome Style by a Score of 6 to 0—Great Team Work by the Tar Heel Artists.

In defeating V. P. I. Saturday North Carolina made amends for her defeat of last year. The V. P. I. team was a surprise to us, as few people outside of the cadets at Blacksburg knew how strong the team was, for coaches, students and supporters of the team had kept everything a secret. In all her preliminary games V. P. I. had intentionally kept the score down and had sent out most discouraging reports of the team's progress.

Every man played good ball and our victory was deserved. In the first half the play was entirely in V. P. I.'s territory and but for a bad decision of the referee, we would have scored easily. V. P. I. kicked off to us. Jacocks was instructed to play a kicking game and on the second down punted 45 yards. V. P. I. was forced to return the ball by the same method as she could make little impression on our line. Jacocks and Roberson returned the ball at least ten yards every time they kicked while Barry and Townsend invariably downed the backs who received the kicks in their tracks. V. P. I.'s backs handled punts so poorly that we gained many yards on every exchange. On Jake's second punt we regained the ball as V. P. I. fumbled. On two punts and a few line plays, all within three minutes, we carried the ball the entire length of the field and had it on their three yard line. The referee here made a miserable decision, giving the ball to V. P. I., who immediately kicked out of danger. Webber broke through for thirty yards, almost passing the last man, who, fortunately for V. P. I., tripped our tackle. Soon after Story made twenty-five yards around the other side. Here the referee penalized us five yards because some spectator, unknown to us, called out: "Hold them, Carolina!" Time was called for the first half with the ball in V. P. I.'s territory.

At the beginning of the second half we kicked off to V. P. I., who advanced the ball 5 yards. After a series of line plays they advanced the ball about 20 yards, when we held them for downs, forcing them to kick. We advanced the ball about 15 yards when we kicked. V. P. I. then, after a series of quarterback runs, brought the ball to our 35 yard line when another guard back run was attempted. Webber broke through and tackled Harris so fiercely that he fumbled. Townsend was on it like a flash and was down the field for a touch down, and before V. P. I. realized it they were scored on. Barry kicked easy goal.

V. P. I. then kicked off, the ball going over the goal line. We brought the ball out to the 25-yard line when Jake punted 45 yards. It was here that V. P. I. made a desperate effort to score, but were disappointed by the fierce defense put up by Carolina.

The game ended with the ball on Carolina's 35-yard line in the possession of V. P. I.

University Sermon.

The University sermon for October was preached by Dr. A. L. Phillips, of Richmond, Virginia, in Gerrard Hall Sunday night. Dr. Phillips's father and grandfather both lived in Chapel Hill and he is an alumnus of the University. He spoke with much feeling to the students and town people who gathered in the Chapel to hear him.

His subject was "Christ's Aid as a Man to Men." He based his remarks on Mark's account of Christ's temptation in the wilderness. The speaker said: "These temptations of Jesus were the testing of Him as a man. Many centuries have been spent working out the Divinity of Christ. To-day this is virtually accepted as true and the study that is done along this line tends to strengthen Christ's Divinity. But men are now turning to the humanity of Christ. To see in what respect He was a man. Because men want the sympathy of a God-man. Christ was a God always and a man always.

"The humanity of Christ was shown in His temptations. Christ went in the wilderness at the beginning of His work as the Messiah for three reasons: first, to work out His own character; second, that He might clearly define His work as the Messiah, and lastly, that He might meet Satan who pretended that he was the master of this world. Satan's purpose in meeting Christ at this time was to tempt Him to come into His Messiahship by a short cut. He appealed to Christ on three sides to get Him to make this short cut. The first was through the material or sensual, secondly, through presumption, and thirdly, through His ambition. At each thrust Christ met him with the Bible and overcome him.

"These temptations mean to each man that Christ will help him because He has been tempted in the same point. Christ came to help a man be a man and His life as a man means victory over sin to the one who learns the lesson and relies upon Him."

THE SENIOR SMOKER.

An Innovation that Proved a Great Success.

The Senior class had a smoker at Pickard's hotel last Wednesday night which was a delightful affair. Fifty-nine of the sixty-two members of the class were present, and everybody had a good time. Dr. Howe and Professor Williams were the guests of the class.

The affair was an innovation and had for its purpose the bringing of classmates closer together. President Townsend said in his address that it was a great fault of University life that men leave here and never know the members of their own class. "The class of nineteen-five proposes to correct this evil, and where can we begin better than here around this festive board?" After this address a well-appointed menu was served.

Over the coffee cups and with the cigars came addresses by the guests and responses by the members of the class. Dr. Howe spoke first and gave an interesting account of student life and class organizations at his alma mater, Princeton. His talk made every student there feel that a great loss has come to us from the needless and senseless divisions that exist here between classmates. Dr. Howe was responded to by Mr. Carr and Mr. Barnhardt who expressed their belief in the uselessness and banefulness of divisions and in the hope that they will not longer be.

Professor Williams said that the occasion was one for which he had hoped and worked for many years, for it marked the breaking down of artificial barriers which keep men from the enjoyment and accomplishment of their fullest rights and development as University men. He was responded to by Mr. Wilson and Mr. Shore in short, earnest talks.

After these addresses everybody pushed back from the table and spent the remainder of the evening in singing and in listening to informal speeches by members of the class. Several men were called on and responded in happy remarks. The company dispersed only when the lights blinked, and going away some one made the remark: "The only trouble was it was not two hours longer."

Death of Mr. J. W. Lisk.

Mr. J. W. Lisk, of Norwood, N. C., died in the infirmary here Friday, Oct. 18, at twelve-fifty p. m. Mr. Lisk entered the University last September, and had been here only a few weeks when he was taken ill and went home. He returned to the University after an absence of a week, apparently recovered, but was soon taken ill again, this time with typhoid fever, from which he died. Although Mr. Lisk had been at the University but a short time, his upright character and pleasant disposition had won for him the friendship and respect of all who met him and his death cast a gloom over the entire college community.

The body was taken to Durham Friday night and from there to Norwood where the interment took place Sunday. Messrs. A. H. King, C. C. Barnhardt, W. B. Love and J. L. Hathcock as a committee from the Di Society accompanied the body as far as Durham, and Messrs. F. W. Dunlap, representing the Di Society, and D. M. Umstead, representing the Freshman class, went on to Norwood to attend the funeral.

At a call meeting of the Freshman Class Saturday morning, October 29, 1904, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from us our friend and fellow classman, John W. Lisk, of Norwood, Stanley county, N. C., to a brighter home above; and whereas, he was a promising member of our class, therefore, be it resolved:

First: That we, the members of the Freshman Class, feel the loss of our comrade; and,

Second: That we tender to his bereaved loved ones our sincere sympathy and commend them to Him Who doeth all things well.

Third: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the TAR HEEL, University Magazine, to each of his county papers, the State papers, and also a copy to his sorrowing family.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst our fellow member, J. W. Lisk; therefore be it resolved:

1. That we, the members of the Dialectic Society, while bowing in humble submission to the Divine decree, cannot but deeply realize and regret our loss.

2. That in his death this Society has lost an earnest and faithful member.

3. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

4. That these resolutions be spread on the minutes of this Society, and copies furnished the family of the deceased, the TAR HEEL, and the University Magazine.

Query for the Georgia Debate Received.

Georgia has submitted the following query for this year's debate:

Resolved: That the best interest of civilization would be subserved by Russian victory in the present Russo-Japanese struggle.

Carolina of course has the choice of sides.
