VIRGINIA WINS

IN THE GREATEST GAME EVER PLAYED IN THE SOUTH.

Carolina Loses by a Single Point—Luck Decides a Hard Fought Game by the Close Margin of Eleven to Twelve—An Immense Crowd, Curious, Gay and Restless.

The game was the greatest ever played by Southern teams. Two strong teams played before the greatest crowd that ever saw a football game in the South, and they played the game that was the most important of the year to both of them. Both teams were in splendid condition and were nearly equal in weight; Carolina was much lighter in the line but had heavier backs. There were but two fumbles in the game, and it is not too much to say that each team did its best. Carolina carried the ball much farther in rushes and kicked farther. But she lost. And luck decided the game. The press dispatches said it was the "irony of fate that a Carolina man gave Virginia the point that decided the game." Coach Brown said that he never saw before an incident like Webber's knocking the ball over the cross bar. Perhaps it was luck, perhaps it wasn't, that made Barry fail for the first time this year to kick a goal.

There was individual starring in the game and splendid team work. Carpenter played a wonderful game. Townsend showed what he has in other games this year, that there is not a better end in the South. Jacocks and Barry were stars. Stewart was great. For Virginia Council, Lankford and the Johnsons were the stars.

Usually the continuous report is used in making up the detailed account of the game. The telegraph connection broke just after the opening of the second half, and we were unable to get it. We take the following account from the Richmond News Leader:

Mayor McCarthy has ordered every available police man to come to the field.

CAPTAIN STEWART.

A line has been staked off for the crowd, and the game will be resumed in a few minutes now.

The crowd is becoming more orderly.

The teams have played ten minutes. The crowd is simply taking the field and stopped the game for fifteen minutes. The crowd is all over the field on both sides and behind the goals. Teams going off the field until something is done. They have gotten some rope, but I am afraid it won't do much good.

The crowd has been gotten off the field and the game is about to be resumed at 2:40 P. M.
