CAROLINA VS. CAROLINA.

The Two Carolinas Contest on the Diamond in Chapel Hill and the Tar Heels Win.

North Carolina met South Carolina on the Chapel Hill diamond last Friday and lowered the colors of her sister State by a score of 14 to 3. The game dragged its length for two hours which were largely consumed in the making of runs and errors. Carolina (which is of course us) took Dubose's measure in the first inning and pummeled the spheroid for five hits and five runs. That was all, however, for the next seven innings, as far as we were concerned. The visitors got one in the second and two in the third and that was all as far as they were concerned. In the eighth Carolina resumed her batting streak and trotted around seven times, adding two in the ninth.

Patterson, in spite of the poor support, pitched a star game for Carolina allowing barely two hits. Perhaps it was because the boys thought it was no use to play hard that 6 errors were marked against us. Dubose, the visitors, twirler, was batted freely throughout until the eighth inning when he was injured by a collision with the first baseman and forced to retire in favor of Taylor. The feature for the visitors was the good work of Captain Heyward at second. Heavy batting was the feature for Carolina, Story and James leading.

Calder lead off by walking, stole second and tallied on James's two-bagger to left. Story smashed out a single, scoring James, stole second and scored on Stem's double, after Patterson and Cunningham had been retired second to first. Harris's single brought Stem in from third and Roger's bingle did likewise for Harris. Then with Rogers, Montgomery and Calder on bases, James went out second to first.

Swygert, for the Palmettoes, succeeded in getting hit by a pitched ball in the second inning, stole second and third and came in on Davis's single to left. In the fourth Belser reached first on the fumble of short stop, went to second when Wilds was hit by a pitched ball and scored, together with Wilds, when the second baseman fumbled Swygert's liner.

In the ninth, Calder, James, Story, Patterson, Cunningham, Stem [the first six up] and Montgomery added each a chalk mark to his credit. A double by Calder, singles by James, Story and Stem, aided by sundry errors and a base on balls, did the work. In the ninth Story's two-bagger brought in James from second, and Patterson's out, short to first, rendered a like service for Story.

The Claims of the Ministry

Rev. J. B. Scherer, president of Newberry College, preached the April University sermon Sunday night. Dr. Scherer stated that he had been asked to speak to the students upon the claims of the Christian ministry, and would therefore, choose no text. The best way to present its claims is to present its aims and the qualities it demands of those who enter upon it.

The ministry demands first of all that the minister be a man—one who will not succumb to the peculiar temptations of the ministry to unmanliness, neither hiding behind the minister's cloth nor confusing himself with his office. It demands that he be a religious man—not a religious man, for that counts nothing—but a man permeated with true spiritual life. It demands, further, that he be willing to minister to others rather than to be ministered to, to try to please, rather to be pleased. This is one of his great duties. If he fails to meet it, he is unfitted for his work.

The calling of the minister is the highest known to man. He who is seeking to answer the highest call that comes to him errs irretrievably if he leaves out of consideration this field of work.

The State Championship.

The deciding game for the championship of the State will be played between Kittrell College, of Kittredge, and Shaw University on the Shaw campus this afternoon.

VICTORY THE SECOND.

Nineteen to Nothing Tells the Tale of the Merry-go-round in Favor of Us.

The second game with South Carolina College pulled off at Greensboro Saturday was—not a walkover but—a trot-around for the Tar Heel sluggers, the score at the ending of the ninth being indicated by "19" and beneath it a great round zero.

Cunningham pitched for Carolina and the two lonely swats allowed by him tell how well he pitched. Carolina gave him gilt edged support, making only a single error. Heyward was the Palmetto slab artist and the eighteen in Carolina's hit column tells another tale—a tale of merciless slugging of a raggedly supported pitcher. The slaughter was not long in beginning for in the very first inning, three complimentary passes, given to Calder, Patterson and Harris, coupled with a two base hit by James, and a single each by Stem and Rogers counted in four runs. The visitors failed to reach first.

North Carolina raised her stock two in the second. A hit by Calder scored Cunningham who had previously singled and gone to second on a wild throw to first. Calder took second on a wild pitch, "lifted" third surreptitiously and scored on Story's out at first. The visitors again failed to "make good."

In the third Harris "counted" on an error of third baseman, Rogers and Holmes on double by Calder and Calder on a passed ball trot in. One more was scored by Story in the fourth, but the fifth and sixth were blanks. The seventh yielded five, Stem and "Cunny" raking in two baggers, while the eighth contributed three. Both sides appeared to be satisfied with the score and no change was made in it in the ninth. For more detailed information read the tabulated score.
