

Some Publications by Members of the Faculty.

It will be of interest to both students and the alumni of the University to note the recent literary productions by members of the faculty.

In a recent issue of the "National Geographic Magazine" Prof. Collier Cobb published an illustrated article which attracted attention throughout the United States. This article, entitled, "Where the Wind Does the Work", is a graphic description of the shifting sands of Hatteras Island. Prof. Cobb has been studying conditions on Hatteras Island for a number of years, and his work is highly valuable from a scientific standpoint.

An article by Prof. E. K. Graham, "Teaching Literature in the Colleges," occupies the leading place in the educational department of last month's "Bookman". Another article by Prof. Graham, "Ben Jonson and the Character Writers" appeared in the "Sewanee Review" for July.

The July "Arena" contains a treatise on "Some Aspects of Contemporary Fiction" by Dr. Archibald Henderson, a frequent writer for that magazine. Within the past few weeks another article by Dr. Henderson on "Henrik Ibsen" has been translated into both Danish and Norwegian. This article also appeared originally in the "Arena" early in the year.

Dr. J. D. Bruner has published two articles of interest during vacation. One, "The Character of Victor Hugo's Ruy Blas" is to be found in the "Sewanee Review" for July, and the other, "The Infatuation of Ruy Blas", in the June issue of "Modern Language Notes".

"Our Language, Vol. II", by Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, which appeared early in the summer has just been adopted by the public schools of the state.

Dr. C. L. Raper's new book on "Wealth and Welfare" also came out during the summer. This work is a very clear discussion of the principles involved in the consumption, production, and distribution of wealth. It is now in use at the University as the textbook in Economics 1, and will be adopted generally throughout the country.

The first volume of Dr. K. P. Battle's "History of the University" has been completed and will soon appear in print. Articles by Professors N. W. Walker and E. K. Graham will appear shortly in the "North Carolina Journal of Education."

Just A Suggestion.

The co-eds, deeply interested in the crisis that has arisen between the Sophs and Fresh, have, so we understand, submitted, as a solution of the problem, the suggestion that it be made an offense punishable by expulsion for any upper classman—Sophomore, Junior, or Senior—to appear on the campus after 7:30 P. M., and that Freshmen be permitted to range at large after that hour only when heavily armed. This is a most worthy suggestion and we feel sure that it will be adopted unanimously by the authorities.

Cunmy Makes Good.

It is with pleasure that we chronicle in this issue the success of our last year's Varsity pitcher Cunningham, familiarly known as "Old Mink." Cunningham has been pitching summer ball this past season for Strausburg, in a Pennsylvania minor league. His record there was an enviable, one and one that we should justly be proud of. It is impossible to get the exact details of his work this summer, but in general terms he pitched some 17 games of which he won 12, lost 4 and tied 1.

"Cunmy's" good work for Strausburg brought him under the eye of Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics who decided to give him a trial. On his first trial, when he was sent in to relieve Waddell after the game was hopelessly lost, he showed so much grit that Mr. Mack decided to put him in against Washington. The result was that Cunmy held Washington down to four hits and beat them 4 to 1. An error was the only thing that saved them from a shut out.

We folks at Carolina predicted a bright future in baseball for "Old Mink," but we hardly expected to see him go to the top so rapidly. However, the quicker he gets there the more we rejoice, and wherever he goes or wherever he pitches, here's to him!

Dr. Southers Speaks.

Dr. Edwin "Cyclone" Southers, of the New Dixie Lyceum Bureau, spoke in the chapel Monday night under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Only a medium sized crowd turned out, but Dr. Southers kept his audience interested for over an hour in spite of this handicap. The subject of his address was "If I Were the Devil." His lecture was directed especially against the sins of hypocrisy, slander, and the like, and he lost no opportunity of scathing them. Dr. Southers' costume in his impersonation of Mephistopheles was rather out of the ordinary, and he favored his hearers from time to time with figures of speech which were, to say the least striking.

Shakespeare Club Meets.

The Shakespeare Club held a most pleasant and instructive meeting last evening at the residence of Dr. Hume. Interesting papers were read by Messrs. S. Rae Logan, J. J. Parker and George Attmore. Dr. Hume also favored the club with one of his entertaining lectures.

The purpose of the Shakespeare Club is to assist the students of Shakespeare in making a critical study of his works. In the past this organization has done good work under the able direction of Dr. Hume, its founder, and the prospects are bright for more valuable work this year.

Undergraduate Department. The One Hundred and Forty-first Session will begin September 28, 1906. The course, which covers a period of four years, of eight and one-half months each, is eminently practical, and properly graded, beginning with laboratory instruction in the fundamental subjects, and concluding with a comprehensive system of clinical instruction, terminating in the Fourth Year with the assignment of students as clinical clerks in the Hospital.

A large proportion (at least 80 per cent.) of the graduating classes secure positions as Resident Physicians in Hospitals.

Summer School for Graduates. The clinics and laboratories of this Department are open throughout the year for the benefit of those who wish to engage in graduate work. For those whose time is more limited, a comprehensive course is given, beginning this year May 14, and continuing for a period of six weeks. This course is designed to meet the needs of the practitioner.
