Football at Columbia.

Although football has been abolished at Columbia in fact, the spirit is far from being dead. 1,000 students held a grand demonstration on the Columbia campus the other day in favor of the game. So high did the feeling run that some desired to burn President Butler in effigy, and one luckless instructor, who was known to be in sympathy with the President, suffered the misfortune of having pies shied at him in the mess hall. Doubtless Columbia will be in the game again before long.
