REGARDLESS of the fact that the show a week ago last night was not up to the standard expected, and, regardless, further, of the fact that the manner of the man who was doing the tricks was decidedly objectionable, the hissing indulged in by a part of the student audience on several different occasions can hardly be defended. Hissing is rather a cowardly mode of expression, any way you take it, and the University student should be above its use. We hope that no lecturer or entertainer who visits the Hill in the future, no matter how poor his attempt to please may prove, may have the opportunity of saying, on departing, that he has been hissed by an audience of University students.

A SECOND building is soon to be erected on the campus by direct appropriation of the State. The chemical laboratory was the first, and the infirmary follows it closely, but none to soon. The present infirmary is totally inadequate even under ordinary conditions, much less so in an emergency. The new building will accommodate twenty patients, or about eight more than the maximum number of applicants today, and, hence, should be sufficient to answer our needs for a number of years. Let us hope that the third building to be presented to the University by the State may follow the second as quickly as the second is following the first.

A TOTAL of seventeen hits and twenty-eight runs is not a bad showing for the first game, even against vastly inferior opponents. So thought the Varsity very probably until they struck the Scrubs Monday afternoon. The second team's eight runs to their zero changed the looks of things considerably. The fact that the Scrubs were victorious is not to be regretted, though. Nothing can contribute more to the development of a strong Varsity than having a strong Scrub to play against, and such is the state of affairs at Carolina this spring.

WHILE the Varsity did not have a real opportunity Saturday to show what sort of stuff it was made of, it will have plenty of chance before THE TAR HEEL appears again. Wake Forest, on Saturday, will be a more serious proposition, and the four games next week will be strictly business for all concerned. Every man on the Hill should go out to the Lafayette and Cornell games, for they will mean some good baseball.

THE announcement of the resumption of the University's custom of holding a summer school for teachers will doubtless be welcomed with joy by the lawyers who intend remaining on the Hill for the summer law school.

The Summer School.

The University of North Carolina will resume this year its custom of holding a summer term for teachers. This is not a summer school for teachers after the old pattern, but is a term of the University conducted by its own faculty with all the usual requirements for attendance and examinations at the close of the work. The term will open June 17th and close July 27th, lasting six weeks. There will be a registration charge of $3.00, but all teachers may come without charge for tuition.

The branches taught will cover the ordinary high school course, the object being to provide such instruction as will enable the teachers of the State to prepare themselves more thoroughly for their work. The courses will be so graded that a teacher can come several summers and make decided progress in the subjects selected. It will be impossible to make provisions for the subjects in the primary schools. It is believed that the University can render more efficient service in this way by training some fifty or a hundred teachers thoroughly for their work than by offering a short course for several hundred teachers, as has been the custom heretofore.

The Shakspeare Club.

The Shakspeare Club met Tuesday night at Dr. Hume's study. The latest stage representations of Shakspeare's plays were explained by Mr. Logan. Papers were presented by Dr. Hume on "Alexandrine Verse in Pistol's Mock-heroic Speeches"; Mr. Stanley Winborne on "The Jew in Fiction"; and Mr. W. D. McLean on "Ideal Truth in Shakspeare's Prince Hal Compared with Historic Fact". Robert Waters' "Shakspeare Portrayed by Himself in Prince Hal" and the New York Shakspeare Society's Bankside Edition of Henry IV were reviewed by Dr. Hume. An interesting discussion of the "Modern View of the Jew" was made by Dr. Raper, the guest of the club.

Elisha Mitchell Society.

At the meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society Tuesday night Mr. J. E. Latta gave a lecture on "Some Recent Improvements in Electric Traction" and Mr. N. C. Curtis read a paper on "Symmetry in Architecture." Mr. Latta's lecture was fully illustrated with lantern slides.
