ALTHOUGH Virginia has won the first of the two games that Carolina has scheduled with her this spring there is still another chapter to follow. The game in Greensboro Saturday will be played under very different circumstances. Virginia is hard to beat at any time on Franklin Field, but she is quite a different proposition when the rooters are Tar Heels and the game is on Carolina soil. The game Saturday will be the game of the season and no student at the University can afford to miss it. The rate for the trip is low enough to justify the larger part of the student-body in running up to Greensboro for the day, as it should do in order to give the boys on the diamond the greatest incentive possible to win.

THE defacing of University property is hardly essential to the peace and happiness of any man in college. However when an athletic victory stimulates the students to unwonted jubilation of spirits allowance can be made for their ardor exhibited in the tracing of such characters as 17 to 0 on dormitory walls. But when men go out with a pot of black paint and proceed to adorn the buildings around the campus promiscuously with hieroglyphics that are meaningless to themselves as well as to the rest of the college it puts a different aspect on the case. To the average student their actions appear only as pure and unprovoked devilment, that might be quite properly requited by the pouring of the contents of their aforesaid can over their aforesaid selves.

THE class of 1910 is to be congratulated on the manner in which it has equipped its baseball team. The members of the Freshman team this spring all have suits of the same pattern, brand new suits with "1910" stretched clean across them that make their wearers look like big leaguers—even if they fail to play that way sometimes. This is a good beginning. If the successive Freshman classes will continue the practice of adopting special uniforms begun by the class of 1910 all of the class teams will be fitted out in a manner creditable to their classes and to the University. The class of 1910 should take care to see that these suits do not disappear during the summer time, but are handed down from year to year through the four years of its college life.

Two Class Games.

The Freshmen and Sophomores met on the diamond Friday in a hard fought contest. After wavering for some time Fortune at last decided in favor of the Freshmen, who won the game by the narrow margin of 9 to 8.

After this victory the athletes of 1910 suffered a rude jar Monday when they met defeat at the hands of the husky sons of '08 to the tune of 16 to 6. Harward, the Freshman pitcher, was easy for the Juniors. Groome pitched a very good game for '08. Rand, of the Juniors, played a star game. His batting was sensational, netting a home run and a three-bagger, these coming in consecutive innings.

The Shakspeare Club.

The Shakspeare Club held its regular meeting for April in Dr. Hume's study Tuesday night. Professor H. H. Williams was the guest of the occasion, and addressed the club on "The Philosophical Basis of the Drama". He made a most interesting discussion of the essential differences in the viewpoints of the ancient and modern writers of drama, calling forth much comment. The program was completed by a paper on "Falstaff as a Complex Unity", by Mr. O. V. Hicks, which was treated further by Dr. Hume.

Historical Society.

At the meeting of the North Carolina Historical Society Monday night Mr. Stable Linn read a valuable paper on the history of the judiciary in North Carolina from the Revolution to the close of the Civil War. Dr. J. DeR. Hamilton finished his sketch of the life of William R. Davie, begun at the last meeting, and Dr. Battle read some interesting extracts from the life of Micajah Anderson, of Edgecombe.

The Odd Number Club.

The Odd Number Club met in the English conference room Friday night. An interesting program was rendered in the shape of a short story, "An Evasion of Justice," by Mr. W. E. Yelverton; a series of sketches by Mr. H. B. Gunter, and some pieces of verse by Mr. S. H. Lyle.

Already Coach Yost, of Michigan University, popularly known as "Hurry-up Yost" is getting to work with his material, preparing for next fall's games with Pennsylvania, Vanderbilt, and other eastern or middle-western elevens. Captain "Joe" Curtis, of the Michigan eleven, who broke his leg last fall just on the eve of the Pennsylvania game, has had the misfortune to shatter the bone in the same place. He may be out of the game again this season.
